The Work Year Starts
Buying in Chicago
Rugged Individualism
Hitler Still Busy

— By ARTHUR BRISBANE —

LABOR DAY GONE, the real year of work begins, and this, happily is a year of hope. The country is no longer drifting, definite plans are made, developed and pushed. The nation has passed from the stage of mourning to the stage of action.

For the United States there is ahead prosperity as great as has ever been known, and infinitely greater. For the individual there are prizes to be won greater than have been won before.

It all depends on how you work.

Do not miss Chicago's wonderful Century of Progress Exposition, if it is possible for you to go. The success of the exposition, extraodinary in these times of depression, justifies the courage and confidence o. Chicago's citizens. Last Sunday 300,000 paid admission to the exposition.

More than $20,000,000 has been spent among the concessionarie: and for admissions since the fair opened. The attendance to date is nearly 14,000,000. And, cheerful for Chicago, the Chamber of Commerce estimates that more than a hundred and fifty millions have been spent by visitors in hotels, restaurants, theaters, shops, etc.

Chicago's thanks are due to the men that had courage to plan this exposition, and energy to carry it through.

Already in Chicago prices of building materials have been advanced for the first time in several years, and the "Buy in September" movement, pushed by Mr. Hearst's newspapers, including his two newspapers in Chicago, has produced excellent results.

According to the New York Times, Chicago's "leading retailers report sales increased 25 to more than 50 per cent. Strengthening of prices has influenced many buyers to anticipate further requirements."

If you buy in September, you will help the work of recovery, and save money for yourself.

The Rev. C. E. Wagner's statement that the era of "rugged individualism" is not compatible with the policies of NRA is not clear to the average man. He sees rugged individualism in Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson, whom the President chose for the head of NRA. He believes that if another Cromwell, Mirabeau, Andrew Jackson or Napoleon should appear on the scene, individualism would again play its part.

The "rugged individualism" of Chancellor Hitler causes agitation throughout Europe. England worries about a possible Nazi attack that would be aimed at the Tyrol. The allies, determined at Versailles to keep the conquered nations forever flat on their backs, are eagerly permitting Austria to increase the size of her army to fight Hitler if necessary.

Stalin in Russia has invited his former enemy, Marshal Pilsudski, head of Poland's government, to visit Moscow as Russia's guest and witness Red Army celebrations on Nov. 7. And Stalin sends Pilsudski a present.

Until Hitler's rugged individualism rose to the surface in Germany, Russia and Poland had been openly hostile.

Hitler, reviewing 150,000 men, well-trained, making a long speech about his "3,000,000 fighters, also well-trained," says he has no desire for war, and "a new war could not give Germany greater honor than the last war."

That depends on the definition of "honor." There is no question that the Germans fought with extraordinary courage against world-wide odds.

One thing is certain, another war could hardly be for Germany a more horrible calamity than the last war. Intelligent Germans, anxious to see their nation go ahead and recover, will regret it, if they allow Hitler to drag them into a war for his own glory.

$4,800,000 EAST BOSTON PLAN O. K.'D BY CURLEY

Three plans for the development of East Boston, calling for the total expenditure of $4,800,000, were approved today by Mayor Curley and department heads. The first calls for extention of the tunnel to a point beyond the airport at a cost of $3,000,000; the second for a strandway to be built at a cost of $1,200,000; the third for the widening of Porter st., at $600,000. Orders incorporating the plans will be drawn up for presentation to the council next week.

ABANDONED BOY GIVEN TO STATE

That month-old boy, abandoned two weeks ago on a Swampscott estate, was placed in charge of the State today, by Swampscott police after all clues to his identity had proven worthless.

Seven letters from families who seek to adopt the infant were also given to state officials for investigation.

The child was found Aug. 18 by the caretaker of an estate in Burpee rd., Swampscott. He was lying in a new basket, and was well clothed. The infant has blue eyes, dark hair, and is apparently of Italian parentage, physiciasn at the Lynn hospital said.

12 Solons With $1300 Off to 'View' Canadian Rum

With $1300 of State money in their jeans, 12 members of the State Legislative committee studying hard liquor laws in anticipation of repeal, left North Station at 9 a. m. today for a four-day junket to Montreal and Ottawa.

The trip is for the sole purpose of making "a first hand investigation in the Canadian provinces" of the methods of dispensing hard liquors, according to the committee chairman, Sen. Harry D. Putnam of Westfield.

Today only 12 of the 17 committee members were on the train when it pulled out of North station. Rep. George J. Tarbell of Lincoln, and Rep. Kendrick Washburn of Middleboro expect to leave tonight.

Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware is still in Europe.

Rep. Henry Estabrook, oldest member of the House, was forced to forego the trip because of a broken ankle sustained a week ago. Sen. John D. Mackay of Quincy did not make the trip and refused to state his reason.

Announcement of the junket brought severe criticism from citizens who declared it was unnecessary. Sen. Putnam came to the defense of his committee by declaring that available reports and books on the Canadian liquor situation was an "imperfect method of getting essential facts."

'RIDE' VICTIM TRACED TO HER CAR

Police Link O'Rourke Murder to $60,000 Rum Yacht Raid

BULLETIN

Two men, one from South Boston, one from Dorchester, were questioned at headquarters in connection with the O'Rourke murder late today. Police said that neither was suspected of the crime but that both might have important information. A woman relative by marriage of one is being sought for questioning, making the second woman sought in the case.

Police began search for a Newton woman today as new clues opened up a vista of astonishing possibilities in the murder of John E. 'Rourke, young West Roxbury rum runner, found with two bullets in his head in Easton yesterday.

The woman, registered as the owner of a car O'Rourke was driving on an expedition connected with rum running a week ago, was said by the police to be a Dorothy Pierce.

The O'Rourke murder, which police believe was committed in Boston some hours before his body was "dumped" at Easton, appeared to be linked with seizure of the smugling yacht Pueblos and $60,000 worth of rum by federal men at Scituate, Aug. 21.

CLAIMED SEIZED TRUCK

Brockton authorities provided the link soon after local police had definitely established O'Rourke as a gangland rum lieutenant who posed as a truckman and mover.

They recalled that on the morning of the seizure of the Pueblos, several trucks and 18 men, many of whom were from Brockton, O'Rourke appeared in Brockton to claim a truck which had been mysteriously abandoned in the heart of the business district.

O'Rourke was driving a car registered to Dorothy iPerce of Newtou, according to Inspectors Barry and Erving of Brockton, and he told them the truck was his, that he had rented it for $5 to a man by the name of Benham, of Wareham, and that Benham had suddenly tired of driving it while passing through Brockton.

Despite the fragile structure of this tale, and the discovery by the officers that the truck hadn't been properly registered, O'Rourke was permitted to tow it away.

DEATH THREATS MADE

The police had little doubt then, and are positive now, that the truck was one of several that got away when the federal raiders

$200,000 Deery Suits Set for Next Week

Salem, Sept. 5—Three suits, totaling $200,000, were called for trial today in superior court against Edward F. Deery, former director of the Salem Trust Co., and brother of John A. Deery, former president, now serving a year in jail for alleged discrepancies in the bank management.

The suits, trial of which was continued until Sept. 11, were filed by the Lawrence Trust Co., $100,000; the Bancroft Trust Co. of Worcester, $50,000, and the Brockton Trust Co., $50,000, all on promissory notes.

THRONGS SEE REVERE BOAT BLOW UP

Seaplane Dashes to Rescue as 2 Men Swim to Shore

Hundreds at Revere each saw a speedboat burst into flames as the engine exploded off Ocean Pier this afternoon, hurling two men into the water.

The Ocean Pier seaplane, piloted by Richard Wicks, swiftly took the air and went to the crew's assistance, but the two men swam unaided to the breakwater off Roughan's Point.

The blazing craft drifted toward the breakwater, where it burned to the waters' edge, while firemen watched helpless from the end of the long pier.

Standing on the breakwater, surrounded by water, the two men who escaped the flames were offered assistance by another speedboat, but they refused, choosing to remain until low water, for some unexplained reason.

The other boat darted across to Ocean Pier and returned with a hand extinguisher, but this was of no use against the flames.

As the Revere fire trucks rolled along the pier they were followed by nearly the entire beach crowd, and motorists swarmed to the scene.

The burned boat was about 40 feet long. Its name could not be ascertained from the pier even with the use of binoculars.

WOMAN MISSING ON DOLE TRIP

Boston police today began a search for Mrs. Kathleen Hayes, 28, mother of five children, who disappeared Saturday from the welfare department in Chardon st., whre she went to collect hr wkly dole of $15.

Her husband, George D. Hayes, of Valentine st., Roxbury, appealed to the police to aid him in his search for the missing mother. He told police he accompanied Mrs. Hayes to the welfare department and after waiting two hours for her to rejoin him he made inquiries about her.

Hayes sought his missing wife at the City hospital and other hospitals in the city. She was scheduled to be operated on today at the City hospital.

Her children are Kathleen, 5 months, Charles, 18 months, Grace, four years, eorge six years, and Francis, 10 years.

Hayes is a skilled automobile mechanic but has been unemployed for nearly two years.

Hurricane Lashes Texas; Loss Mounts to Millions

Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept 5 (AP)—A tropical hurricane of terrific intensity roared in from the Gulf of Mexico today, isolating Brownsville from the outside world and causing untold damage along 200 miles of the Texas coast.

Two lives were lost in the swamping of a small boat on Lake Medina at San Antonio, far inland from the gulf.

All communication was cut off to Brownsville, a city of 22,000, almost at the southern tip of the state in the rich "Winter Garden" area.

Here, some 200 miles north of Brownsville, the government weather forecaster expressed the opinion that the center of the disturbance moved inland about 20 miles north of Brownsville at 9:30 a. m.

Surging waves rolled into the lower part of Corpus Christi's business district, while most of the city's 35,000 inhabitants sought safety in strong public buildings or the residential district on the bluffs. The weather, however, showed prospects of clearing and the forecaster predicted that Corpus Christi would not suffer more unless the tide of eight feet unexpectedly rose.

Frail buildings fell like paper before the blasts, small ships which had not been securely tied were tossed about and two of them battered at a long section of the municipal pier here until it gave way.

An 80-mile wind was reported at Harlingen, 30 miles from Brownsville, before the lines went down.

Passengers on a southbound Missouri Pacific train, due in Corpus Christi from Houston at 4 a. m. were rescued at 6 a. m. today after the train was marooned by high water six miles north of here. The passengers were brought into town by automobile. The train left Houston at 9 p. m. last night.

Nazi Attack on U. S. Man Is Confirmed

Berlin, Sept. 5 (AP)—U. S. Consul-General George Messersmith confirmed today that H. V. Kaltenborn, son of a former editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, had been attacked by Nazi storm troopers.

He said he was not able to announce the details because no protest had been lodged at the consulate. Messersmith unofficially brought the incident to the attention of German authorities since Kalterborn did not want the episode mentioned.

4 AMERICAN WARSHIPS RUSHING TO CUBA

Ordered There as Rebels Overthrow De Cespedes' 22-Day Reign

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)—The United States ordered a cruiser and three destroyers to Cuba today to protect American property against possible disturbances in connection with the new revolutionary movement which has embroiled the island.

The resignation of the government headed by President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, in power less than a month, was expected momentarily.

Power was seized through a bloodless coup d'etat by radical elements. A commission of five was selected to take over the government from the administration which succeeded deposed President Gerardo Machado Aug. 12.

The movement spread from Havana to Santiago, where the army rebelled, ousting the governor and the mayor.

It was the second time in a matter of weeks that war vessels have been sent to Cuba, the first time being during the disturbances in connection with the overthrow of the Machado government.

Today's step was taken promptly after Secretary Hull had been apprised of the swiftly developing situation in two long telephone calls from Ambassador Sumner Welles in Havana.

Secretary Hull told reporters the cruiser Richmond had been ordered from the Canal Zone to Havana, that the destroyers MacFarland and Bainbridge had been ordered from Key West and Norfolk, and the destroyer Sturtevant from Guantanamo to Santiago.

Already the sharp prows were cutting the waters, it was said, while President Roosevelt made his way to Washington on the Astor yacht—returning from vacation—to take a personal hand.

Forces of marines and blue-jackets capable of providing a respectable landing force are aboard the warcraft.

It was emphasized that intervention in Cuban affairs by this country is not desired, but that the forces being sent are expected to protect foreign life and property.

Even Ambassador Welles on the ground in Havana was unable precisely to estimate the danger with conditions changing from moment to moment.

Early this morning Sec. Hull was called from his bed to learn of the new movement in Cuba. After hasty consultations among high officials, it was decided to adopt

AUTO TRADE WATCHES FORD AS CODE GOES IN OPERATION

AUTO MAGNATE MAY LISTEN TO PUBLIC

Action on Blue Eagle Awaits the Return of Roosevelt

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—Public opinion today apparently was the first chosen jury of President Roosevelt's recovery administration for deciding the case of Henry Ford's conspicuous absence from NRA membership.

As the rest of the automobile industry began its first official work day under the Blue Eagle, NRA leaders evidenced every intention—for the present at least—of "letting nature take its course" with Ford—the industrial campaign's first major holdout.

What the future might bring if the Detroit manufacturer continues indefinitely to operate without the Blue Eagle was uncertain. But the administration was represented as determined that no important employer should reject the recovery program. The final decision was President Roosevelt's with his powers to license manufacturers and the President was returning to his office today.

Other problems pressed equally for solution after Labor Day's week-end of speechmaking. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, gave his attention to soft coal negotiations, seeking a final agreement for President Roosevelt's signature.

Of more underlying significance, however, was Johnson's immediate task of perfecting his enforcement organization and of measuring the extent of new purchasing power created by the government's manifold recovery efforts.

To help boost consumption, Johnson promised in Chicago yesterday to launch, around Sept. 20, a vigorous campaign to promote buying. He warned, that NRA's program must lift the cost of doing business and therefore the cost of goods, adding that "the slightest move toward inflation might send prices skyrocketing overnight."

Ford Expected to Shun Blue Eagle

Detroit, Sept 5 (AP)—A vast silence today shrouded plans the Ford Motor Co. may have for compliance or competition with the automobile code, which became officially a part of the recovery program today.

There was a growing belief, with no apparent evidence to contradict it, that Henry Ford expects to "go it alone," without benefit of the NRA blue eagle.

Ford continued his vacation inthe woods, near Big Bay, Mich., miles distant from telephone or telegraph.

Edsel Ford was ending his vacation in Seal Harbor, Me., where he has refused to discuss matters of policy. He is expected back tomorrow. The elder Ford, according to reports, may not return before Friday or Saturday.

Every apparent indication pointed to a determination of Ford to "go the NRA one better" in wages and working hours for his 42,000 employes, and to stand adamant on his refusal to open his books to a code administration board or to accept the code provision for collective bargaining with workers.

Rent Money Goes Out With 2 Men

Lawrence, Sept. 5—The next time Oscar Voigt, a storekeeper at 106 E. Haverhill st., allows anyone to walk behind his counter to look at his telephone book, he will be certain that all money is out of sight.

He reported to police that he was counting out $7 preparatory to paying his week's rent, when a customer entered and he left the money on the counter to attend to the woman.

Meanwhile, two young men entered and asked to be allowed to look at his telephone book. He granted their request and they stepped behind the counter, where the book was attached to a chain.

More customers entered and while Voigt was busy, the two young men left. When the store was clear again, the proprietor discovered, also, that the spot where he left the money also was clear.

Mrs. Mary J. Bass Dies in Haverhill

Haverhill, Sept. 5—Mrs. Mary J. Bass, 78, widow of William L. Bass, died in the family home, 29 Carleton ave., Bradford, after a long illness. She was a native of this city and is survived by a daughter, Ethel, two sisters, Miss Anna Gile and Mrs. Nellie Thurston, and a brother, James Gile.

Her funeral will take place from the family home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with burial in Linwood cemetery.

Steel and Bullets Hem Bailey in as 'Pretty Boy' Taunts Him

Desperado Is in Blood-Rusted Chains After Mystery Escape

Oklahoma City, Sept. 5—Stone walls and steel bars were reinforced today by keen eyes and ready machine guns to keep the word of Joseph B. Keenan, director of the nation's anti-gangster campaign, that Harvey Bailey, alleged plotter of desperate crimes, would never again escape jail with his life.

The steel doors of the Oklahoma County jail clanged shut behind Bailey last night scarcely a dozen hours after his startling escape from the county jail at Dallas, Tex., by means of a pistol which Bailey said he found in the mattress of his bunk.

The result of his daring break, the only successful one ever made there, was to hasten his removal to Oklahoma City to face charges of plotting the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, for $200,000, one of the largest ransoms ever paid. The trial is set for Sept. 18. Bailey probably will be arraigned today or tomorrow.

WHERE PISTOL CAME FROM

Meanwhile, authorities at Dallas launched an investigation of how Bailey obtained the pistol with which he gained his freedom and saws with which he escaped his solitary cell enabling him to surprise a jailer and trusty, who was bringing his breakfast.

Recaptured at Ardmore four hours after forcing his way from the Dallas jail and kidnaping Turnkey Nick Tresp, Bailey, manacled hand and foot, was brought here by a five-car caravan of heavily-armed officers.

Apprehensive of an attempt to free Bailey at Ardmore, following a tip members of his gang were awaiting him east of there, federal officers speeded his removal to Oklahoma City, where four other alleged members of the Urschel kidnap ring already were held.

The four are Albert Bates, named as one of the actual kidnapers, and R. G. Shannon, his wife, and son, Armon, on whose Paradise, Tex., ranch Urschel was held for nine days until the ransom was paid, and where Bailey later was captured as he lay asleep, a machine gun under his bed.

IN BLOOD-DRENCHED CHAINS

Sighted by Sheriff Sam Randolph of Love County, at Marietta, Bailey was captured by Ardmore officers, who were advised of his approach by telephone, after a chase in which his pursurers fired three shots, none of which took effect.

On Bailey's wrists as he was brought to Oklahoma City were the blood-flecked handcuffs worn by Frank Nash, outlaw killed at Kansas City along with four officers, when machine gunners apparently attempted to free him July 17.

Bailey is accused in that slaying, the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven men in Chicago in 1929, and the world's largest bank robbery, the $2,000,000 looting of the Lincoln, Neb., National Bank & Trust Co., September, 1929.

While in jail at Dallas Bailey was quoted as referring to Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma desperado, as "small fry," an incident which was recalled as three men and a woman fled from Enid after a gun battle with officers, leaving a letter in their abandoned car addressed to Bailey. It was unsigned, but gave Bailey the impression it was written by Floyd.

"PRETTY BOY" FREE

Taunting Bailey with being in custody while "I'm outside," and scoffing at "tough guys stealing a harmless man," the letter stated:

"I don't carry guns around with me to impress anyone. I carry them as a dire necessity. . . . I know some day I am going to lose, but when that time comes I will not throw up my hands and rely on brains to get me out. I may be a "small-time hister' and you the brains of money, a $200,000 tot, still I'm outside while you probably are wracking your enormous brain to beat the chair."

The three men and the woman, reported wounded, wrecked three stolen automobiles in their mad dash toward the Kansas border. They last were reported near Alva, Okla., where they stole an automobile from a young farmer who stopped to help them out of a ditch.

Before he acquired the reputation of being one of the nation's most notorious criminals, Bailey was known as a hard-working railroad fireman and engineer.

Blue Eagles Revive Old Bowery

New York, Sept. 5 (INS)—"Oh, the night that I struck New Yawk—I went out for a quiet walk—folks who are 'on to' the city say—better by far that I took Broadway—but I was out to enjoy the sights—and there was the Bowery ablaze with lights."

The lights are not so much today. But the Blue Eagle, has swooped low over the Bowery; in the windows all up and down both sides. No street has felt the benefits of the new deal as has this street of homeless men.

The Bowery contains, as well as flop houses, New York's store fixture trade. Store fixtures today mean bars.

The Blue Eagle is not the only bird on the Bowery. Louis Ruhe, the animal dealer, has 10,000 canaries singing in one room. And upstairs, Felicia, a newly-imported baboon, gave birth to a baby which clings to her breast with all four paws.

And exposure to light is blinding Jack McSoley in the back room, beloved of artists and poets, of his 80-year-old saloon which never closed. The walls are covered with old photos and theatrical handbills. Near the door a front page of a newspaper is framed. A paragraph reads:

"We have seen a gentleman who left Brussells on Sunday evening, at which time the people were manifesting the greatest joy for a decisive vitcory gained by the Duke of Wellington on that day. The wounded were being brought back in wagons."

Cowperthwait's, the old furniture store, 126 years on the Bowery, is having a "recovery sale"; Blue Eagles all over the windows. Cliffe's, the 128-year-old drug store, has its eagle. But business in its old mainstay, the sale of leeches for black eyes, is not so good. "No fight in this 3.2 stuff."

Bob Wickes, "Rembrandt of the Needles," is having a big run at his tattoo shop. The Blue Eagle is the biggest thing for the tattoo trade since King George V of England had himself decorated almost 50 years ago. Everybody wants the eagle and wants its permanently.

Speedier Air Travel Forecast at Parley

Chicago, Sept. 5 — Commercial aircraft have gained more speed in 1933 than in any previous year, P. G. Johnson, president of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation asserted before the aviation group of the International Automotive Engineering Congress.

Typical cruising speed of commerical planes was about 100 miles an hour from 1925 to 1927, Johnson said. This year he said planes were capable of cruising 171 miles an hour

FINAL DRIVE TO GET 750 FIRMS UNDER CODE

Million Blue Eagle Pledges Expected This Week

Action toward whipping into line 750 business firms in downtown Boston which have not yet signed up in the NRA campaign was begun today by the recovery committee at the Boston Chamber of Commerce building.

These firms have all been tabulated and the heads will be visited. It is expected, however, that when President Roosevelt's agreement is explained to them in detail, and they have engaged in a heart-to-heart talk with the recovery committee members, they will sign up.

Meanwhile, the consumers' cards began to arrive at the Chamber of Commerce today, and Natt W. Emerson, general manager of the Boston committee, said he believed there would be at last 1,000,000 Blue Eagle pledge cards sent in this wek from householders and others.

LAWYERS GIVE AID

One volunteer worker, Mrs. Clara Belle Reed, obtained 703 signed pledge cards from consumers in two days in Precinct 11 of Ward 1, and every signature and address proved genuine and correct, none of the signers having fallen to the frequent temptation in some campaigns impelling him to inscribe a "trick" name and address.

Manager Emerson announced today also that a number of law firms in Boston have offered the free use of members of their legal staffs to the conciliation and adjustment committee of the recovery committee.

DISPUTES SETTLED

These lawyers will meet with both sides on various complaints and attempt to adjust the differences. This committee has already settled 25 disputes and have a number of others nearly settled, with several hundred yet to be taken up.

In the cases thus far considered, the differences have been found to be wholly through misunderstand or confusion in interpreting the NRA creed.

URSCHEL CASH GIRL TRAILED

New York, Sept. 5 (INS)—A smart, stout woman, modestly dressed and carrying a black grip, was the center of a feverish search here by police and federal agents.

She is the sweetheart of Harvey Bailey, who fled the Dallas jail in a spectacular escape, only to be recaptured four hours later, after a thrilling airplane and auto chase.

In her grip is believed to be part of the $200,000 in marked bills, paid as ransom for the release of the kidnaped Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

The trail of the quartet, which Department of Justice operatives lost in Ohio, was picked up again in a unique manner by Sheriff Ellis of Ithaca, N. Y.

The sheriff was driving out of Ithaca, Friday, when two women signaled him with their thumbs in approved hitch-hiker fashion. He gave them a lift as far as Danby.

When Ellis got back to his office his eye fell upon a Department of Justice circular which carried photographs of his two hitch-hikers—Lois Clark and the Kelly woman.

Kitten Put on Ice, Wife Asks Divorce

Salem, Sept. 5—Two months after her marriage Mrs. Doris R. Budd of Saugus began to lose weight and she continued to lose it until 28 pounds had departed, she testified today in probate court, where she sought a divorce from John W. Budd of Lynn on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

She was married secretly Sept. 2, 1930. Shortly after her husband began punching her, she said.

Mrs. Budd testified her husband did not like a kitten she had, so he put it in the refrigerator.

$50,000,000 Grants to States in Month

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)—Federal relief grants to 37 states and three teritories reached a record monthly figure of $49,882,034 in August and brought the total distributed out of the $500,000,000 fund by Sept. 1, to $150,135,478.

Of this latter, $127,793,716 was granted on the basis of one federal dollar for every three spent by the states.

Dorchester Woman Fails for $34,049

Tillie C. Cooper of Supple rd., Dorchester, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal court today listing liabilities totaling $34,049, assets, $1000.

Among the liabilities is a judgment of $3448 in favor of Verna R. Fuller of Bowen's corner, New York. Most of the creditors are in or near Auburn, N. Y.

What NRA Lacks

IN his otherwise admirable speech at Poughkeepsie, President Roosevelt neglected his opportunity to stress the potential value to business of the NRA program.

Like members of the National Recovery Administration, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized the desirability of aid to labor.

As a matter of fact, the President's program is much broader, and should be reinterpreted.

Business executives should be made to realize that their part is not solely TO GIVE UP PRIVILEGES.

The raising of living standards, eminently desirable in itself from the social standpoint, has its economic counterpart in a broadened market for the products of industry.

If sane management is encouraged, business will greatly benefit from the promised immense increase in the gross volume of business in the United States.

In the long run, efficiently conducted business units will reflect the advantage of dealing with well remunerated customers instead of with a market dominated by semi-paupers.

* * *

Given this encouragement, business executives would adhere to the NRA program with more gusto and enthusiasm.

And unless the NRA scheme is modified to make due allowance for business profits, the whole program will be in jeopardy.

There should be less haste in putting into effect new Magna Cartas for industries.

Codes should be studied more leisurely.

At first, those of basic industries should be formulated, and then other trades should gradually be brought into line.

Business managers must be permitted to work out new standards of technical efficiency in order to absorb added costs.

* * *

THE NRA should be made a supplementary instrument TO FACILITATE THE NATURAL FORCES MAKING FOR ECONOMIC RECOVERY.

It should not be pushed rashly.

The aim should not be to punish honest business men for past sins, but to establish solid bases for economic balance, under which there can be a maximum exchange of goods and services among the vast social classes.

In order to encourage business men to act affirmatively, rather than hesitate, the NRA should give definite incentives.

Business can get QUIDS PRO QUO in the form of the right to raise prices where necessary, in exemption from the anti-trust laws, and in relief from onerous income and corporate taxes through the substitution of a federal general manufacturers' sales tax.

Such openings of new avenues to legitimate profit would hearten business men everywhere, and make them see a practical way TO ADD SUBSTANTIALLY TO THE NUMBER OF GAINFULLY EMPLOYED CARRIED ON THEIR PAYROLL.

It would be helpful if the President would re-interpret his Recovery program, and ADD THE BUSINESS MAN TO HIS LIST OF BENEFICIARIES

FOREIGN LEGION TRAPS BERBERS

Rabat, Morocco, Sept. 5—Gen. Jules Hure, commander of the French Legion, reported today, unconditional surrender of Zaid Ou Skounti, Berber chieftain, closing up France's 25 years of Moroccan pacification.

Faithful to the last were the chief's two wives, his three children, and 106 Morocco families. Parched with thirst, they dug themselves into caves and crevices of the mountain with their 4000 head of camels, sheep and goats.

French forces have been unable to count the conquered and surrendered, but they are belived to number approximately 200,000.

BRITISH UNIONS CHEER NRA

Brighton, Eng., Sept. 5 (AP)—The British Trades Union Congress cheered reports today of the progress of the American recovery program as presented before it by G. Burke of the American Federation of Labor in a speech.

Burke paid a glowing tribute to the "experiment" and emphasized the democratic principles of the American recovery legislation.

New Style Hit-and-Runner Leaves 3 Injured in Taxi

Hunt for a new type of hit-and-run driver was begun today by Mattapan police after he had taken three injured passengers from his car, sent them to City Hospital in the taxi he had hit—and then parked his sedan on Blue Hill ave. and fled.

The taxi struck at Blue Hill ave. and Callender st. was operated by Alexander Cohen of 27 Johnston rd., Dorchester, and after the crash the sedan pulled up beside the taxi with the three injured.

They were placed in the cab and the driver was ordered to take them to City Hospital, where they were found to have suffered minor injuries.

They said they were Bernard Kassner, 32, of Theodore ave.; David Armsterdam, 51, of Sutton st., and Frank Shurnofsky, 32, of Hosmer st., all in Dorchester, and declared they were merely being given a lift and did not know the sedan driver.

Police said the car is registered to a Mattapan man.

FRENCH BORDER FORTS DEFY INVADERS

$300,000,000 Chain of Pill Boxes, Caverns, Reply to Nazis

Edward Hunter, noted war correspondent, is visiting Alsace-Lorraine, where France is completing the greatest fortifications the world has ever seen to guard against invasion by Germany's Nazi government, or its successors. Utmost secrecy has been maintained, hence two articles Hunter has written, the first of which follows, are of special interest:

Strasbourg, France, Sept. 5 (INS)—A vast system of military defenses is nearing completion along the Franco-German border after two years of labor by thousands of men at a cost estimated to exceed $300,000,000.

It is France's answer to Hitlerism, to the threat of monarchical restoration in Germany, possibility of a new German invasion and another world war.

MANY CAMOUFLAGED

Lines of forts from Belgium to Switzerland, ranging from carefully camouflaged "pillboxes" to great underground caverns in the rear with artillery emplacements and capable of housing many men in complete comfort are being constructed.

Due to labor shortage, many foreign workmen were employed at first, but only Frenchmen were used in the later stages to preserve secrecy of the vital details.

Residents of Alsace-Lorraine tell how they accidentally come upon these subterranean fortresses while touring the countryside near the frontier.

BOMB AND GAS-PROOF

They are constructed so as to combat every imaginable contingency of modern warfare, airplane raids, gas attacks or protracted siege. No known airplane bomb, French officers say, can destroy them. Ventilation has been arranged to make gas attacks ineffective.

There are underground passages and tunnels by which food and other supplies can be brought up. Steel doorways within make it possible to isolate one section of a fortress from another in case the enemy breaks in.

Far to the north France's Belgian ally is constructing a similar, though not nearly so formidable a system and in northern France itself, near the English channel, the chain of dykes that enabled France to halt the German advance on Dunkirk by flooding the lowlands during the World War, is being improved.

Croquet Party Nabs 'Machine Gun' Kelly

Meade, Kan., Sept. 5 (INS)—A man believed to be George "Machine Gun" Kelly, widely sought in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel at Oklahoma City, was in jail here today. He was one of three men who escaped with a woman after engaging in a gun battle with officers at Enid, Okla., yesterday.

He was captured by a group of men and women croquet players after he attempted to steal a car from one of the women.

Rhode Island Starts Campaign on Crime

Providence, R. I., Sept. 5 (INS)—A plan to launch a campaign against crime in Rhode Island was announced today by Atty.-Gen. John P. Hartigan, in calling a conference for Monday of police chiefs of 39 cities and towns, heads of state police, and captains of departments in larger cities.

They will discuss methods of wiping out racketeers, kidnapers, extortionists, speakeasies and other law violators.

U. S. Navy Refuses to Surrender Officer

Colon C. Z., Sept. 5—Capt. Paul P. Blackburn, commandant of the United States Navy submarine base here, has refused to deliver Lieut. John Henry Cross to Canal Zone civil authorities on a warrant charging involuntary manslaughter.

The civil charges were lodged against Lieutenant Cross following the death of Lieut. Robert B. Morgan in an auto accident about a week ago. Lieut. Morgan was a passenger in the Cross car when it collided with a bus.

X-Ray Shows Rolph Has Infected Lung

San Francisco, Sept. 5 — The presence of a small pneumonic area in the right lung of Gov. James Rolph, Jr., has been revealed by four specialists called into consultation at St. Francis Hospital where the executive is seriously ill.

Myopia Show Today

GRAND JURIES LAUNCH STATEWIDE CRIME RACKETS PROBE

EVERETT QUIZ LINKS SLOT MACHINES

Bishop in Call for Public Aid; Foley Is Given Evidence

The slot machine racket, and conditions in Everett, were the main objectives of the Middlesex grand jury which re-convened today with officials promising "startling" results.

All other grand juries in the state were also meeting today, prepared to join in a state-wide of- but the Middlesex drive held the but the Midlesex drive held the center of attraction.

Preliminary activities of the state crime commission are understood to have stirred officials to action in every sector.

NEW EVERETT EVIDENCE

The Middlesex grand jury met at Lowell, as is customary at the opening of the fall term, but moved back to East Cambridge this afternoon.

Before the end of the week—probably on Friday—Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop will present evidence to the jurors dealing with slot machine operations throughout the county.

Bishop said he was eager to obtain information from the public on the operation of slot machines, and he promised to clean the gambling devices out of any community where he is given information that they exist.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick A. Crafts will give the jurors additional evidence on conditions in Everett this week or next.

EVIDENCE GIVEN FOLEY

Crafts is through temporarily with the Everett phase of the slot machine racket, wherein he was especially interested in the political ramifications. Trial of persons indicted in this connection in Everett will begin later this month.

It is understood that slot machine evidence relating to Chelsea and Revere, which are in Suffolk County, was obtained by the Middlesex County authorities in their probe in Everett, and has been turned over to Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

The center of operations of the entire racket throughout Massachusetts is said to be in Chelsea or Revere, but whether the authorities can "get" the "big shots" remains to be seen. The political influence of the latter is known to have been waning of late, due to the publicity given to killings engendered by rivalry in the profitable slot machine field.

Somerville Driver Held in Salisbury

Salisbury, Sept. 5—Arthur M. MacCallum, 26, 81 Puritan rd., Somerville, who was arrested for driving while under the influence, drunkenness and operating so as to endanger following an accident on the Beach road, will be arraigned in the Amesbury district court Friday.

Police state that MacCallum's car cut out of line and collided with a machine operated by Francis J. Sloban, 20, 46 School st., Merrimac. Carmen Pescue, 29, 10 Grow st., Merrimac, a passenger in Sloban's car, received minor injuries.

Bullets Form Cross on Body of Dead Spy

Havana, Sept. 5—Jose Soler Lezama, accused of spying while a member of the ABC anti-Machado regime organization, has been executed by a group of persons identified as students.

He was riddled with 18 bullets, fired to pattern a cross on his body. It was understood he was given a trial by his executioners.

Child, 5, Perfect Secretary for Dad

Seattle, Sept. 5—Patsy Ann Kell, five-year-old daughter of the state commissioner of labor and industries, is a "perfect secretary" her parents say. She answers the telephone frequntly and replies to queries for her father.

She even says now and then: No, Daddy hasn't any jobs right now."

Two Haverhill Men Injured by Auto

Haverhill, Sept. 5—Roy Coleman and Francis Delaney, both of Stanley ave., Lowell, were treated at Gale Hospital for cuts and bruises received when they were knocked down on Kenoza st. by a machine operated by Charles H. Hayes of How st.

Hayes reported the two men were crossing the street at the time of the accident, which occurred near Lincoln st.

Boston Gets Fleet Convention in '34

Chicago, Sept. 5—Endorsing the NRA and President Roosevelt's programme for a navy equal in strength to that of Great Britain, the National Fleet Reserve Association ended its convention today.

J. M. Aquff, Oakland, Cal., was elected president. Boston was selected as next year's convention city.

COUPLE HELD IN AUTO FATALITY

A girl driver, and a man who was teaching her to drive when the car fatally injured a woman in Winthrop last Friday night, were both arraigned on manslaughter charges in East Boston district today.

Bail was set at $4500 each for Miss Dorothy Brown, 21, of Somerset ave., Winthrop, and Simon Edmonston, 46, of Circuit rd., Winthrop. The case was continued to Sept. 15. They pleaded not guilty.

The victim of the accident was Mrs. Bessie Segal, 62, of 240 Shore drive, Winthrop. The accident occurred as she was crossing the drive near her home.

Both defendants are also charged with driving without licenses and driving to endanger lives and safety of the public. Edmonston is further charged with driving without registration.

JUDGE DEAF TO AD MAN'S PLEA

A plea for leniency failed to move Chief Justice Hall in Superior Court today, and Oliver Stevens, 35, of Portsmouth, N. H., former Boston advertising man, was sentenced to the House of Correction for four months.

Stevens found guilty of thefts totaling slightly mor ethan $100 by means of worthless checks, begged for a chance to make restitution and said his wife and infant would be left without funds if he was jailed.

He said another child died, and this with his wife's illness caused expenses which overwhelmed him.

"Your honor, please—please give me another chance," he said. "I'll pay back the money. I'm working and will pay $20 naw and $5 a week. I won't do it again."

"No, not for four months, that's certain," was Judge Hall's crisp retort.

Harvard Points to Radcliffe in Answering Bier Attack

Harvard University found it very easy today to answer the attack of Dr. Duren J. H. Ward, 84, of Denver, Colo., who stood beside the bier of his wife and denounced "society and an educational system which spend millions annually trying to inform average and moron minds while neglecting super-normal youths"

Dr. Ward cited Harvard as an example of such "conscienceless waste.

"It shuts its doors to brilliant girls while welcoming all sorts of morons to its arms," he said of the Cambridge college.

And Harvard rose to its own defense. Thusly:

"Dr. Ward's statement seems to be based on a misconception of Harvard's organization," a spokesman for the university declared. "While it is true that Harvard has no women's department, it is a well known fact that Radcliffe College has many of the Harvard faculty on its teaching staff."

Dr. Ward, a graduate of Harvard and years ago a lecturer on philosophy and anthropology at his alma mater, made his attack while preaching the sermon at his wife's funeral services. He told the congregation that many years ago Harvard refused to accept his wife as a student.

Dr. Ward closed his strange eulogy by urging that "no university be allowed to close its doors on any person because of sex and that the millions spent to educate youth that is incapable of receiving an education, and on rich morons, shall cease."

HURLEY ROUSED BY 'RIFF-RAFF' BRAND ON IDLE

Treasurer in Rebuke to Tilton for Slap at Dole List

A public hearing on the application of Worcester for approval of $3,731,246 of public works projects before the State emergency finance board was enlivened today when State Treas. Charles F. Hurley registered strong disapproval of the term "riff-raff" as applied to the city's welfare list by Henry O. Tilton, president of the common council.

Tilton was explaining to the board that the welfare list had dropped off about 40 per cent.

"And as the best men find work that will leave only the riff-raff on the list," he said.

"Do I understand you to say that the balance will be riff-raff?" demanded Harley.

"What I mean is that with the approach of re-empolyment, those physically unfit and mentally inefficient will come to the conclusion probably that it is better to say on the list than to get work."

Mayor John C. Mahoney and other officials present, as well as Chairman Joseph Bartlett, minimized the incident, Bartlett saying he had not even heard the remark.

"Well," interjected the state treasurer, "I object to people coming here calling unfortunate persons riff-raff because they happen to be on the welfare list."

The squabble was ended when Tilton declared that he wished to withdraw the term.

The projects asked for included street, sewer and water, hospital and school construction and fire apparatus.

FARLEY COMING TO OPEN P. O.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley will be in town Saturday to dedicate the new $6,000,000 post office and federal building, and with him will be present a galaxy of dignitaries.

The dedication ceremonies will be followed by an inspection trip through the new building and by a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce building, arranged by the Chamber of Commerce and Postmaster William E. Hurley.

In addition to Postmaster-General Farley, the following public officials will attend the dedication and luncheon:

Joseph C. O'Mahoney, First Asst. Postmaster-General; Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Coolidge; L. W. Robert, Jr., assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of public buildings; Gov. Ely; Mayor Curley; James Roosevelt, son of the President; the Congressmen of Metropolitan Boston; Collector of the Port Joseph A. Maynard; former Postmasters Charles R. Gow, Roland M. Baker and E. C. Mansfield, and others.

The public will be permitted to inspect the building next Monday and Tuesday.

Window Crash Call for Police Costs $10

That much-embattled blinker signal and citizen's alarm system doggedly held to by Police Commissioner Hultman means nothing to Bernard Burke, 22, of Sydney st., Dorchester.

In fact it means so little to Burke that when he was assaulted early today in Columbia rd., by two masked men he kicked in the plate glass window or a chain store, to attract police, instead of pulling the citizen's alarm on a police box 20 feet away.

That, at least, was his story in Dorchester court, but he was fined $10, nevertheless, for malicious mischief.

Auto Crash Victim Dies of Injuries

Greenwich, Ct., Sept. 5—Frank Gabrielle, 50, of New York City, is dead here in Greenwich Hospital from injuries received Saturday in an automobile accident on the Boston Post road at Byram Hill.

Gabrielle was a passenger in car driven by Dennis L. Shelton, 39, of Brooklyn, which was in collision with a truck driven by James McKeithen, 25, of Stamford. Police said the two drivers will be held under $2500 bonds on charges of manslaughter.

Suicide Identified as Malden Man

The man who committed suicide by shooting in an unoccupied concession booth in Revere yesterday was identified today as Joseph Leonard Brunnelle, 69, of Medford st., Malden.

Identification was made in the northern mortuary by his daughter, Mrs. Regina DuFresne of the same address.

Youth's Body Recovered

Westport, R. I., Sept. 5—Police recovered the body of Ruel Dunbar, 22, of West Somerville, who drowned at Horseneck Beach.

READ TO BARE HIS MYSTERY WITNESS

Broker Aids the Star in Suit for $100,000 His Wife Brought

Los Angeles, Sept. 5 (US) For the fourth time Claire Windsor golden haired film star, is scheduled to mount the witness stand in defense of Mrs. Marian Read's $100,000 alienation of affections suit which charges the actress stole the love of Alfred C. Read, Jr., dashing young Oakland broker.

Something of a sensation is promised by Read who went to San Francisco during the holidays to return a mystery witness here to testify for Miss Windsor.

"Have located the witness and will bring him down there," read a wire received here today from the broker. He then was in Oakland.

BROKER AGAINST WIFE

Read is to testify for Miss Windsor. He is expected to deny emphatically his love for his wife was estranged by the actress.

As the trial continues more love letters exchanged by Read and Miss Windsor will be read into evidence by Mrs. Read's attorneys.

Miss Windsor was so beautiful to Read he once told her in a letter her radiant beauty would cause track athletes to "run the wrong way."

"The I. C. 4A track meet starts today at Berkeley and of course there is a great deal of excitement over it up here," the broker wrote Miss Windsor while she was in New York.

"One of my proteges is the favorite to win the mile run, and therefore I am going out to the track this morning and give him a fight talk. I believe everyone around the bay here will be there and I wish I could take a certain very charming blonde to lend a little beauty to the affair.

EVEN ATTRACTED HORSE

"Of course, I suppose it is just as well that I am not going to be able to do this, as all the boys would start running the wrong way and the pole vaulters would start hurdling.

"I know if I were running today I would in all probability get in a wrong event or something like that.

"I would, however, like to stand you right on the finish line for my boy to run towards. He would surely break the world's record. You saw what Phar Lap did under similar circumstances.

"If a horse could recognize such beauty, what could my boy do?"

White Beret Girl in Store Holdup

A girl in a white beret drove the getaway car today for a lone armed bandit who walked into a chain store at River st. and Wood ave., Hyde Park, held up the manager, Arthur Saville, and took $8 from the cash register.

Saville, who lives on River st., Hyde Park, had just opened the store when the bandit, about 25 years old, came up to the counter, flashed a revolver and said:

"Don't make any outcry and don't make any noise. I want the dough and I want it quick."

"All I've got here is the change in the register," said Saville."

"Okey, back into that room."

3 Race Horses Die in Chicago Blaze

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP) Three thoroughbreds were missing today after the fire which swept 18 stables at the Hawthorne racetrack, causing damage amounting to $150,000.

The missing horses were Ima Count, owned by Norman W. Church of Los Angeles, and Bocarstone and bridegroom, two selling platers. Officials of the Chicago Business Men's Association said the loss in yesterday's blaze was fully covered by insurance and that work of rebuilding the destroyed barns would be started immediately.

Open Door Policy in Palestine Urged

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 5—After an all-night closing session, the World Zionist Congress adopted a resolution pointing to the need for opening the doors of Palestine o tens of thousands of Jewish refugee immigrants.

Blast Destroys Irish Munitions

Dublin, Irish Free State, Sept. 5—Explosives stored in the magazine at Phoenix Park army munitions center exploded, throwing parts of the building 200 yards but apparently no one was injured.

SPEND A DOLLAR AND MAKE A JOB

NAILS TURN TO PLATINUM

Finger tips of platinum denote prosperity's return. The nails of Bebe Daniels, the screen star, who returned from Europe with her husband, Ben Lyon.

BEBE'S FINGERS ALL AGLOW

BEBE DANIELS

New York, Sept. 5—Just another sign that prosperity is here and not just around the corner platinum fingernails.

Bebe Daniels, chic movie star, brought this latest syllable from Paris with her arrival on the Ile de France.

Rose-tinted, crimson-dipped and pearly-toned fingernails, said Miss Daniels, are as dated as the dodo or the well-known antimacassar. The smart 40, that group of older, sophisticated women who lead French fashions, have adopted this gleaming metallic fingernail mode, according to Miss Daniels.

Miss Daniels was accompanied by her husband, Ben Lyon, and their six-year-old daughter, Barbara Bebe. They have been in England four months in which time they appeared in three pictures at Elstree, England's Hollywood, Miss Daniels will return to work there in the Spring.

Both agree, however, that they will not play opposite each other in pictures. It is their opinion that the public gets much more of a thrill watching two persons who are not married playing opposite each other.

4000 BROCKTON SHOE WORKERS QUIT JOBS

Unions Restored Self-Government Rite as Inquiry Opens

Brockton, Sept. 5 (AP)—Additional factors were injected into the troubled state of the shoe industry today as Edwin S. Smith, state commissioner of labor and industries, was scheduled to begin his fact-finding investigation.

Nearly 4000 of the 8000 shoe workers left their jobs in protest against the discharge of fellow employes for failure to pay dues to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. A new union, the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen, claiming a membership of 3000 to 6000 workers has become an increasingly powerful factor in the situation.

Today, John J. Mara of Boston, president of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, restored to the local unions the right of self-government, taken away last December.

His action today restored charters to the existing five local unions, giving them the right to elect their own officers and to make their own decisions on questions of wages and working conditions.

Meanwhile, 25 to 30 employes in each of two shoe companies, the Doyle Shoe Co. and the E. E. Taylor Co., walked out today after two employes had been discharged for non-payment of Boot and Shoe Workers' Union dues. The remainder of the approximately 200 workers in each of the factories continued at work.

Rain Disappoints Many in Haverhill

Haverhill, Sept. 5—With thousands of persons away at the beaches, camps and other resorts, the week-end holiday in Haverhill were unusually quiet. Rain spoiled the plans of many who had intended to see the baseball doubleheader in Boston or to visit other sections. Rain also prevented golf contests at the Kenoza and Haverhill Country Clubs.

Police made few arrests, nearly all on drunkenness charges.

Stolen Auto Found in Newburyport

Newburyport, Sept. 4—The stolen car of Elmer Monroe, of Payson st., was recovered early today by police on Moseley ave., where it had been abandoned.

GIRL IS HUNTED IN KILLING AT EASTON

swooped down on the Pueblos, but they had no evidence of it.

It was as a result of the Pueblos seizure that U. S. Deputy Marshal George W. Murphy received threats of death and kidnaping from gangsters who believed he "tipped off" the landing.

O'Rourke's racket was rum, and, lately, a sideline of narcotics, police said, although all his West Roxbury neighbors in the attractive residential section where he lived with his wife and two and one-half year-old child were under the impression he lived a dull and unexciting life, moving pianos and such.

The victim had a record of 15 arrests and once was questioned in the slaying of a real "big shot"—John "Big Jack" Rodman.

GIRL WAS SISTER-IN-LAW

Bristol County authorities and State Detectives came to Boston today to work on the case here. Inspector Benjamin Goodman of the racket squad was called in with the West Roxbury division police and together they tackled the problem.

They determined beyond any doubt, they said, that O'Rourke was robbed of his "showpiece," a $500 three-carat diamond ring, which was wholly in accord with cheap gangster methods.

Then they determined that the attractive blonde girl with whom he was last seen Thursday evening outside his home at 125 Sanborn ave., is his sister-in-law, Miss Margaret Mitchell of Groveland st., Mattapan.

Miss Mitchell told them this. It appeared, police said, to eliminate the possibility that the murder was the result of a love quarrel or that a girl had been used as a lure to put him on the spot, theories which had been held when police were told of the "strange woman" being seen at his house while his wife and daughter were at Wells Beach, Me.

They know he wasn't killed where he was found because there was no blood there from the bullet holes. They don't think he was killed in a car because the autopsy indicates he was dead Friday night or Saturday and circumstances indicate he wasn't dumped into the bushes at Easton until late Sunday night or early yesterday.

So they figure he was killed in a house and because he was suspected to have gang connections in Roxbury and Dorchester they think it may have been a Roxbury or Dorchester house—in fact one tip the murder took place in a house in Belgrade ave., West Roxbury, is under investigation.

WIDOW IS QUIZZED

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank E. Smith came to Boston from Easton with State Detectives Brouillard and Fleming. They questioned Kenneth L. Hamilton of Washington st., Roslindale, who said he was a partner of O'Rourke in the moving business. Hamilton said they used to move rum but quit the business a year ago. The last time he saw O'Rourke, he said, was early last week.

Then they questioned the widow, Mrs. Mary O'Rourke.

She said her husband was to have gone to Wells Beach on Sunday to get her and the baby, and when he failed to arrive she communicated with his brother.

Then they questioned Miss Mitchell.

In a car registered to James L. O'Rourke of Old Colony st., Quincy, two men, one stating he was a brother of the victim, appeared at the morgue in Taunton this morning and made corroborative identification. They asked concerning the diamond ring and were told it was missing.

A club card in O'Rourke's pocket led to identification by James H. Murphy, Jr., steward of the Masconomo Athletic Club of Dedham. Two neighbors, John P. Dempsey and Arthur Millet, both of whom lived near O'Rourke in Sanborn ave., Roslindale, verified the identification.

FIND BLOODY AUTO

Police went to the victim's home and found a blood-stained auto parked in the yard. Although neighbors generally regarded the car O'Rourke's, it was found to be registered at a Lynn address that police said was fictitious.

Two penciled notes were found at the O'Rourke home, one on the front and one on the rear door of the house. Both were signed by "Eddie" and read:

"John: Car is in the yard. Have no key."

The notes led police to Edward J. O'Rourke of Spring Garden st., Dorchester, brother of the dead man. He said the notes were not his. O'Rourke told police, however, that the bloodstains on the car at his brother's home were the result of an automobile accident several weks ago. He pointed to cobwebs on one wheel as an indication the car had not been used.

Police decided the car didn't have anything to do with the case, then abruptly changed their minds and posted a guard over it. They think the "accident" in which O'Rourke was cut may not have been an accident.

HI-JACKING MOTIVE

West Roxbury police said O'Rourke had been under surveillance for three weeks. There was a rumor about a week ago that he had been involved in a Cape Cod hijacking which, if fact, might also be motive.

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, who was at Wells Beach with her daughter and grandchild, said her other daughter, Margaret, had gone to the home Thursday night to tidy it up in preparation for her sister's return.

Snowden Princess Is Under Guard in Maine Plot

Poland Springs, Me., Sept. 5—Kidnap plots, armed guards and threats of harm were revealed here today as the latest in the life of 19-year-old Janet Snowden, heiress to oil millions.

Princess Caravita

Following close upon last month's elopement with Prince Di Tirignana Don Francisco Caravita of Italy—and her flight from marriage after five days — the new turn caused great excitement in the exclusive summer colony.

The pretty young princess revealed to Sheriff David Walton that threats were also received by her stepfather, Walter Davidson, retired navy commander, summering here with the mother of the young heiress.

The navy man said he was convinced the threats were the work of a New York gang whom he suspected of a plot to "shanghai" the former Miss Snowden to Italy.

The text of the threatening missives was kept strictly secret but officials admitted there had been no demand for money. The contents, they said, were "of a purely personal nature."

The princess who said her elopement was a "mistake" directed her own request for protection in a note to Sheriff Walton.

"For reasons best known to me. I feel that I should call upon you for protection against physical harm and for protection against agencies that might seek to restrict my freedom of action," it read.

GUARDED IN NEW YORK

A conference with her mother about proceedings to have her marriage annulled was cut short by the threats and the young heiress was hurried to New York under armed guard.

In the same city, at a lonely honeymoon suite at the St. Moritz Hotel, the deserted Italian prince was reported waiting in the hope that his bride would return.

He was wed to Miss Snowden after a romance of less than two weeks, much the same as was the elopement of Miss Snowden's sister two years ago with Prince Girolamo Rospigliosi, childhood chum of Prince Caravita.

The threatening note here was preceded by telephone calls. On Aug. 25 a man inquired at Hotel Mansion for the runaway princess. Told that she was out he sat down at a table and left the note that induced her to seek the protection of Sheriff Walton.

PHONE CALLS FIRST

Sheriff Walton said the note was written in excellent English and that it ended with the phrase, "Thus Spake Zarathustra," the title of a play by Nietzche. The significance of the phrase was not explained.

Gold Medal Ready for 'Kingfish' Hero

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—The design for the medal to be given the man who took a poke at the Senator from Louisiana, Huey Long, has been completed and its designer George de Zayas said today it would be struck in gold this week.

To whom the medal will be given has not been determined owing to the reluctance of the washroom foe of the Senator's to admit his part in the affair.

"There are names under consideration" the artist said. "One is Al Williams, the aviator; the other is the police chief of Port Washington, Long Island, in whose jurisdiction the affair occurred; and a well known society man."

The expense of preparing the medal De Zayas said is being defrayed by public subscription. Whatever oversubscription there may be "will be given to the Louisiana women's committee to aid it in eliminating the kingfish from politics," he added.

Forest Fires Halt Canadian Autoists

Winnipeg, Sept. 5—Five hundred motorists were stranded at Whitemouth, Ontario, unable to get through forest fires raging along a seven-mile stretch on the trans-Canada highway.

Approximately 100 men were drafted in nearby towns for duty against the flames which threatened to cause further damage in the dry timber along the right of way of the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

'Shimmying' Car Kills Girl, Hurts 3

Meriden, Ct., Sept. 5—Emily Richardson, 22, student nurse in a Hartford hospital, was killed and Rose Pullan, 26; her sister, Marie, 22, of Meriden, and Nicholas Benjamin 52, of Yonkers, N. Y., injured in an automobile crash on the Meriden-Berlin highway today.

Police said the front wheels of a car driven by David Jacobs, 39, of Yonkers, began to "shimmy" and crashed into the Pullan car. Jacobs was detained by police.

Maid Put on Probation

Mrs. Lillian Howes, 23, of Dowd st., Roxbury, maid in the home of William Simon, 23 Low rd., Mattapan, was placed on probation for a year today in Dorchester court, when she was arraigned charged with larceny of a $475 diamond ring from her employer.

FLORIDA STORM TOLL GROWS

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 5 (AP)—A trail of ravaged homes, businesses and citrus groves today marked the wake of a tropical storm that struck Florida on the east, swept through the south central portion and blew into the Gulf of Mexico north of Tampa. Damage was estimated above a million dollars.

Meagre reports disclosed the loss of but two lives. A Negro, refused to leave his home near Palm Beach as the storm approached and was killed when it collapsed. An amateur radio message told of the death between Sebring and Lake Placid of a flagman when 11 cars of a Seaboard Airline train were ditched because of a trak undermined by rainwater.

After wrecking small boats and damaging small homes along the east coast from Lake Worth to Vero Beach the storm swung inland Sunday night and damaged the rich citrus section. Most estimates placed the loss at 80 per cent of the crop.

As the storm veered inland it diminished in intensity.

150 Dead, 5000 Left Homeless in Cuba

Havana, Sept. 5 (AP)—A delegation arriving here today from Marti in Matanzas province reported 21 persons drowned and 150 injured in last Friday's hurricane.

They urged aid be sent immediately since 1000 persons had been made homelss and proprty damage would aggregate $1,000,000.

The deaths in Marti raised to about 150 the toll of the hurricane and violent winds which swept the western half of Cuba.

One government official estimated that 5000 persons were homeless and 5000 were starving and said food was available for only 800.

One Dead in Storm Area of Bahamas

Nassau, Bahama Islands, Sept. 5 (AP)—Returning from an aerial survey of territory swept by Saturday's hurricane, Sir Bede Clifford, governor, today reported one killed and three injured at Bogue Settlemnt, a village near Harbour Island, where 100 were made homeless, many churches wrecked and all crops ruined.

Chicago, Sept. 5—Robert M. Hitchins, president of the University of Chicago, was elected national president of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Ambulance Bumps Jaw Back Into Place

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 5—Yawning heartily Edward Hines, 21, dislocated his jaw and his parents summoned an ambulance. En route to an emergency hospital the ambulance hit a bump and the jaw snapped back into place.

Roxbury, Lawrence Choirs Tie for Title

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 5 — The D. A. T. V. Singing Society of Roxbury, Mass., and the L. M. C. Singing Society of Lawrence, Mass., tied for first place in the Class A men's chorus competition of the three-day song carnival of the New England States singing Association.

Sisters Meet First Time in 77 Years

Ellsworth, Me., Sept. 5—Two sisters met for the first time in 77 years, when Mrs. Henrietta Carr, 86, was unexpectedly visited by Mrs. Hattie Ayer, 81, of Manchester, N. H. Two years ago Mrs. Ayer learned her sister was living here and began a correspondence which ended in the present visit.

Michigan Family Skates to Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 5—Dr. John R. Carter, 52, of Ferndale, Mich., and his daughters, Lois Jean, 13, and Robina, 9, roller-skated their way to the Century of Progress. The doctor said it was "good for our health."

U.S. NEEDS MANY AIRMEN FOR WAR DUTY

By ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT
Aviation Edition of Boston Evening American

Copyright, 1933, for the Boston Evening American.

Los Angeles, Sept. 5—Is this country facing the problem of training intelligently a large number of pilots for use in time of war? No, the number of pilots in active military service and those on the reserve list is pitifully small. The 700 men now employed by air-transport companies should be members of the reserve corps, ready on a minute's notice to enter actively into the service.

The ilot plays a major part in the defense of our country. Therefore, it is to the advantage of the people of this nation to maintain a high standard of intelligence and capability among the men who fly our great air routes.

MAIN DEFENSE OF NATION

Under the present administration's policy of cutting down on air mail contracts and franchises, the revenue of the airlines has been greatly reduced. They are unable to maintain the pay levels that have existed in the past. They must retrench. Any aviation code that demands shorter hours and higher wages for pilots and mechanics is not taking into consideration the burden that the infant industry is being called on to carry already, and will car cheerfully.

The way to meet the situation is not to have the companies cut the pilots' wages, nor is it to force these companies any further into the "red" by making them maintain a higher wage scale and shorter flying hours so that more men may be employed.

This is essentially a government problem. We must maintain a high calibre of men in the pilot service. The government evidently does not wish to subsidize. Very well, let the air-lines sink or swim on a competitive basis on their passenger and express business. Let the government put the pilots on the routes and pay their salaries while they are on active duty, as they should be paid.

Abolish the organized labor in the pilot profession. Let us train 50,000 men for active flying in time of war and there is no country on earth that can attack us successfully. Our army aviators fly some 18,000,000 miles a year for training. They fly nowhere and are performing no other service other than that they are receiving training. There are 15,000 pilots in this country and 700 have jobs. Let the government employ many more than the 700 who are now employed and allot them to fly as pilots and co-pilots for six months periods on each of the air routes of the country.

PROVIDES INCENTIVE

When they are on the reserve list, the government should pay them a retired officer's salary, and have them train for a two months' period each year in army maneuvering. In this way, the pilot would maintain a position comparable favorably with a profession.

The air-lines would not have to be given large air-mail subsidies. They could exist on the merit of their service and the pilots would be intelligent and capable men assigned by the government.

Last, but not least, the country would have a corps of men of education, ability and courage in whom they could place their confidence that their homes and children would be secure in time of war.

(Mr. Roosevelt, in this and subsequent articles, which will appear under his name, is writing as a private individual and is not in any way to be regarded as having any connection with officialdom in Washington.—Editor's note.)

Hospital Wedding Denied Sick Man

Lawrence, Sept. 5—John Zaines of 58 Wilson st., Haverhill, whose wedding plans were blasted last week by an attack of acute appendicitis, must wait for at least another two weeks before he can take Lena Bouchard, of 58 Farley st., this city, as his bride, although he insisted that he be allowed to marry her last Saturday in his room at Clover Hill Hospital.

The girl was just as agreeable to such a plan as was he, but his doctor and nurses prevailed upon him to "forget it," because he was in no condition to stand the nervous tension of a marriage ceremony.

If everything goes well, they told him, he will be able to "middle aisle" about two weeks' hence in Sacred Heart Church.

Brookline Couple Hurt in Gloucester

Gloucester, Sept. 5—A Brookline girl and her escort were seriously injured early this morning on Western ave., Gloucester, when an automobile operated by Charles M. Talbott, 25 years old, of 55 Cottage st., Brookline, skidded on the slippery pavement and then crashed into a telegraph pole.

Nuns Give Town Old Landmark

Water Mill, N. Y., Sept. 5—Long Island's oldest wind-mill is to become a museum. The Dominican Sisters of Brooklyn have presented the mill to the Village Improvement Association. It was built in 1880, with not a bit of metal in its construction. Until 1887, it ground corn and wheat for the village.

'Ideal Girl' Falls to Cupid in Church

MRS. KEARNS

Beauty Who Doesn't Smoke, Rouge, Dance Is Wed to Minister

America's "Ideal Girl" is a consistently splendid and splendidly consistent person—which is by way of saying that Miss Alice M. Thompson has married a minister.

Seven years ago, when she was 17, Miss Thompson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roger Thompson of East Rochester, N. Y., won the American youth award and was chosen from among 48 girls, representing 48 states at the Philadelphia sesquicentennial celebration, as the "most ideal" American girl then extant.

Stage offers and film test offers besieged her.

"No, thank you," she declined. "I'm going back to my home town to work in a shoe factory to earn enough money to take me, with my scholarship, through Ohio Wesleyan. Then I'm going to devote my life to the field of religion."

FULFILLS HER PLANS

She went back to East Rochester. She worked in the shoe factory. She went to Ohio Wesleyan. She became a missionary worker.

And Saturday, according to word received today, she was married at Peterboro to Rev. Francis E. Kearns of Bentleyville, Pa.

Tall, slender, attractive, the bride has changed little in appearance and none at all in her views of the worthwhile things of life for the American girl since she won her honors.

"Making others happy, doing things for others which I would like to have them do for me—the Golden Rule of course—about sums it all up," she said.

TO BE GRAND WIFE

She doesn't rouge or powder. "Because I don't need either yet."

She doesn't dance. "Just because I don't like dancing."

She doesn't smoke. "Because I never had any desire to smoke."

She still swims, plays tennis and basketball and gets a lot of fun and exercise from snowshoeing. She was the best scholar in her classes at Rochester high and Ohio Wesleyan.

"She'll make somebody a grand wife," they guessed when she won her title back in 1926. And that's just what she is setting out to do.

FOUR WARSHIPS SENT TO CUBA

the same policy pursued before and dispatch armed vessels.

That the situation was viewed with greater gravity, however, was indicated by the fact that a cruiser was ordered to Cuba, whereas in the previous instance only destroyers were sent at the outset.

De Cespedes Dethroned in Bloodless Coup d'Etat

Havana, Sept. 5—After only 22 days in office, the government of provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes capitulated today following a bloodless coup d'etat by enlisted men of the army, navy and police force.

Secretary of War Horacio Ferrer and Raoul de Cardenas, secretary to the presidency, announced the cabinet had decided to resign, but will await the return to Havana of President de Cespedes, who was leading the relief work in the hurricane area.

The cabinet ministers said they would await President de Cespedes at the presidential palace. Indications were he would join his ministers in resigning immediately upon his arrival.

COMMUNIST LEADER

The new revolutionary junta, headed by Sergio Carbo, long prominent as a Communist leader, will take possession of the government immediately.

The coup d'etat placed power in the hands of the extreme radical socialists, representing student groups, the ABC revolutionary society which was largely instrumental in the overthrow of Machado, and certain university professors.

Although the shift in power was accomplished without fighting, there were numerous disorders. ABC headquarters in the Prado were in an uproar. Automobiles loaded with young men, armed with pistols and rifles, dashed about the streets. Fears were expressed that there would be bloodshed before nightfall.

PUBLIC FAVORS

United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, who was quoted by revolutionary leaders as saying that if bloodshed is avoided "the independence of Cuba may yet be save," refused interviews to the press.

The revolt was carried out with lightning speed, the revolutionaries establishing their junta, relieving all army officers and police officials of their commands and demanding the resignation of the De Cespedes government within two hours.

The radical section of the A B C went along with the new revolutionary movement. An official delegation representing the A B C was, however, excluded from the meeting at which the commission was selected. It was reported that Ambassador Welles had an observer at that gathering.

The Junta bitterly criticized what was described as the Fascist trend of the ABC. The rift between the ABC radicals and the more conservative group of that organization meant an important breakup in the coalition which had been backing De Cespedes.

The commission five had planned to go this morning to the presidential palace and complete the formal transfer of power without further to do. At the last moment this plan was changed.

Newburyport Auto Values Off $85,820

Newboryport, Sept. 5—Persons not registering their cars this year because of the depression, according to the board of assessors, is the contributing factor for the decrease this year of $85,820 in automobile valuations.

NRA in Lawrence Near 100 Per Cent

Lawrence, Sept. 5—Of the thousands of family heads approached by members of teams crusading here last week to secure signatures on the NRA consumers pledge cards, less than a dozen refused to sign, according to Dr. Robert Farquhar, general chairman of the campaign committee.

Instructions have been received here from the national headquarters to keep all signed cards carefully guarded pending further orders regarding the recovery campaign.

Because several team captains are yet to be heard from, a complete tabulation of figures on the number of consumers enlisted will not be possible until probably tomorrow.

2 Children Hurt in N. Andover Crash

North Andover, Sept. 5—Two children were slightly injured and the operators of two automobiles which collided at Railroad ave. and the Salem turnpike escaped hurts here, although both cars were badly damaged. The two injured were the children of Mrs. Agnes D. Pfau, William, 6, and Patricia, 3, of 229 Weld st., Roslindale. They suffered minor cuts and bruises. The driver of the other car was Joseph R. Hutchinson of 39 Chase st., Methuen.

Police Seek Men Who Beat Priest

Winchendon, Sept. 5—Aroused at the brutal beating given the Rev. John P. Hackett, 69-year-old pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, police sought two youths who slugged Father Hackett after he had arranged to feed them.

The pair entered the church rectory after Father Hackett answered the door bell. He invited them in and learned that they were "in need."

10,000 Hopes Sewed Into Roosevelt Bag

San Francisco, Sept. 5—Ten thousand stitches went into a purse made here as a gift for President Roosevelt by Mrs. J. D. Reeng. Each stitch represented a "hope for success." The purse bears a red, white and blue shield and on the reverse side the legend: "To our beloved President—F. D. R."

2000 See Cripple Crushed by Truck

East Norton, Sept. 5—Vincente Ferreira, 60, of Newark, N. J., was killed by a truck which the owner had cranked while it was in reverse gear.

The fatality occurred in sight of 2000 persons attending a picnic. Scores of others were in the path of the truck but Ferreira one-legged and on crutches alone was unable to flee.

Juicy Pickings Made by Crooked Roulette Operators in Summer With Victims Silent After Trimming

By "GYP J. GRAFT"
Gambling Wheel Operator

I'm not trying to put on any lugs about the class of the people behind the gambling wheels that infest Boston in the summer season, but don't ever think they're dumb. I've been in the sap-taking business for 15 years. We travel the country, and Boston is considered a juicy spot.

I'll tell you why. There's a lot of independent operators around here and when we come in—I've been coming into Boston for six years—we always dig up these gents to find out the dope. They are always, at least they have been for the last six years, geting away with everything in the pack. They don't have any trouble. A Boston loser is soft. In some of the Southern or Western states, I'm telling you, you got to watch your step or some rough gent will shoot you from under your hat; or gang you for a beating after he's been cleaned. Here in Boston the reaction seems only to be that the sucker is ashamed of himself. He takes his trimming and slinks off. It's an ideal location for the wheel racket.

SUCKERS EVERYWHERE

In my experience in the game I've found people all over the country about the same—while they are actually in there trying to win money—and being steadily trimmed. They all think the same way. The only difference is the way they act after the dough has been snatched from them. Men are always the easiest "takes" anywhere. The important looking guy with a flower in his buttonhole and a cane is worth 5 bucks and no more.

My favorite sucker is a guy from 30 to 60 who is one of the upper working class. A guy who works hard and is all cleaned up when he comes out with his bankroll to earn some "easy" money. These guys are what are known as "Saturday's Children." They are just never going to get any money except by hard work. They've been waiting for luck so long they come out rarin' to find it and knock it over themselves.

DUPE IS REALLY SMART

I know how these guys feel myself. I was born a half dollar short, too. But instead of putting up with it and getting somewhere by hard work I quit cold after a few tough years and went out after the easy money myself. Don't let anyone ever tell you there's any "easy" money. I've been in trouble about money all my life and all the "slicking" I can do—and I have no scruples—has never been able to give me as much real comfort as any sucker usually has. Don't ever let any glib half-wit tell you that a thief gets anything out of it. Believe me, the sucker is the wise guy after all. He may get tipped over anytime for some money he can't spare. He may feel foolish for a few days but all the money that he and 1000 other honest, careless guys lose to thieves is not enough to make the thief even half comfortable.

I'm a swell one to deliver a sermon, at that. I'm just saying that a sucker can get over being a sucker with a couple of lessons, but a thief is going to be a thief till he rolls over and takes his cheap carcass out of the world—without any grief from anyone with sense. Me reform? Say, I'll be what I am till I croak—but don't think I'm stupid. I'm on to myself, even if a sucker has never guessed me.

But about suckers! Big men are always freer than little ones. Jews are very easy . . . they'll gamble for their last sock when they are in the humor. Funny thing about them too, almost always they figure you've tricked 'em when they are cleaned. But instead of being mad they sort of hand it to you for being able to do it. That's funny? They don't expect any favors anytime. I hear people talking about Jews and their habits and cleverness and what-have-you. Well, I'm of Scotch and German descent and I'm here to tell you that I like Jews even if I've never done them a nickel's worth of good. I'd like to get Hitler at my wheel sometime. I'd take that monkey's mustache. Italians are a cinch. An Irishman will come in for a while, lose $10 or $12 without any sign of pain and then stop right there when the old wheel seems againt him. (And believe me it IS.) Yankees are hard to get interested or started, but once they are hooked they stop thinking entirely and will stick along wildly trying to make a come-back.

WOMEN POOR LOSERS

Women are absolutely no-dice when it comes to gambling. When a woman is out $5 you can hear it in Newark. I always try to get them "even" in a couple of turns and then let somebody in to take the betting. I rather see a black leopard coming near my wheel than any woman, unless she's old and stout. Stout women are easy-going, old women are wise. A stout old woman will stick around briefly and then beat it—winner or loser. But a swell dressed doll has usually lost money that she was going to spend for som definite thing — and boy, what a racket that is! No janes for me, in the gambling game.

I don't mind a sad horseface of a loser, but I can't stand a wowser—that is a screamer. Women are almost invariably screamers. The ones that were in the stock market for real dough in 1929 must have put on an international chorus. I could never figure brokers giving them a tumble, anyway.

But while on the subject of suckers let me get around to the things that happened at the raid at Marshfield a couple of weeks ago. Ever hear of triple suckers? Marshfield had 'em. I'll tell you the next time I'm in.

Don't miss the further "inside" information regarding the "soft" situation which the crooked wheel gamblers find in Boston, with an absorbing insight into the odd doings at Marshfield during the recently widely heralded raid. Read it in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

GIRL FLIER IS KILLED IN RACE

Florence Klingensmith

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP)—Tragedy marked the close of the international air races. Florence Klingensmith possessor of the trim woman's loop-the-loop airplane record was killed while flying at 200 miles an hour in yesterday's Phillips $10,000 trophy race. The airplane plunged to earth a half-mile from the flying field after the ship's tail was seen to tip as it passed the grand stand. Miss Klingensmith had completed seven laps for a total distance of about 60 miles of the 100-mile track when the mishap occurred.

The victim, a resident of Minneapolis, was 26 years old. She established her woman's loop-the-loop record in Chicago, in 1931, completing 1,078 loops in four and a half hours of flying.

She was the second victim of the four-day events. The other was Roy Liggett, 22-year-old Omaha flier, killed Saturday.

James R. Wendell, Louisiana speed pilot, who established an unofficial land plane speed record of more than five miles a minute earlier in the day, was the winner of the race in which Miss Klingensmith lost her life, receiving $3600 of the $10,000 in awards. Lee Gehlbach of Patterson, La., and Roy Minor of Los Angeles were second and third, respectively, each taking $2000.

Seven Robbed in City Over Week-End

Seven robberies over the week-end were being investigated by the police today. The latest were Frank Fairbanks, 58, of Littleton, N. H., who was beaten by three men in Leverett st., West End, and robbed of $40. He was treated at Haymarket Relief Hospital for injuries to face and head, and Leo Travis, of Vinton pl., South Boston, who was attacked by two men in A st., and robbed of $1.

Officer's Widow Ends Life

GAS FELLS 2 ON MOTOR BOAT

Two Belmont men, overcome by fumes from a leaky exhaust on the motor cruiser Mermaid II, were alive today because of the stamina and will power of the craft's skipper, James Vaughn, 40, commodore of the North Weymouth Yacht Club.

Dazed by the fumes which had overcome his guests, Earl Robertson, 37, and William Lincoln, 38, Commodore Vaughn stuck to the wheel and guided his boat to the yacht club float before he collapsed.

As his last conscious gesture, Vaughn shut off the motor and the cruiser crashed into the float. Men from the yacht club leaped on board, and revived the trio.

Mother of Missing Revere Boy Stricken

The Boston Evening American has been asked to aid in the search for Lincoln Boyington, 14, of 20 Hall st., Revere, who has been missing from his home since July 28.

Lincoln Boyington

He is described as five feet in height, weighing 110 pounds, with brown hair and eyes and, when last seen, wearing a white shirt with green stripes, dungarees and old white sneakers.

Youth in Crossing Crash Identified

Caribou, Me., Sept. 5—The 20-year-old youth who with his employer was killed near here by a Bangor and Aroostook railroad train has been identified as James Wood of Long Beach, Cal.

Tom Snow, 44, Caribou farmer, was the other victim. The two were killed as their auto was struck by a combination train on a field crossing five miles east of the village.

Electricity Feeds Illinois Park Fish

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 5—Illinois is using electricity to feed its fish. Here's how: High voltage lamps over the feeding and breeding ponds at Mattoon attracts bugs which are killed by the heat. When they fall into the water the fish gobble them down. It's cheaper than buying fish food.

Melrose High Adds Ex-Y. Instructor

Leonard W. Clark, former physical director at the Melrose Y. M. C. A., has been elected by the Melrose school department to direct the physical education program at the new Melrose high school. Under the new plan all pupils of Melrose High, on pleasant days, will be required to participate in out-of-door physical exercises on De Mar field.

U. S. Jesuit Granted Audience With Pope

Vatican City, Sept. 5—Pope Pius has granted an audience to Jesuit Father Edward F. Garesche of New York City, spiritual director of the Catholic Federation of Nurses and president of the Catholic Medical Mission Board of the United States.

Glider Pilot Sets New Loop Record

Skytop, Pa., Sept. 5—A new record for consecutive loops in a glider is claimed by J. K. O'Meara, of New York, after making 43 circles during a 31-minute flight.

His glider, "The Skytop," weighs 200 pounds and has a wing spread of 38 feet.

SHOES PUZZLE IN CLIFF DEATH

Great Barrington, Sept. 5—Investigation continued here today into the 300-foot death plunge of Mrs. Dillie J. Scully, 28, of Springfield, from Devil's Pulpit, on Monument Mountain.

Absence of shoes and a hat on the crushed body of the young matron also puzzled police, although they admitted they might have been torn off in the terrific rush of air as she plunged to death.

Mrs. Scully's husband, William J. Scully, 30, a Springfield mechanic, was questioned by Asst. Dist. Atty. Harold E. Goewey and State Detective Silas P. Smith, but was allowed to return home.

Scully told police he went riding with his wife, an expectant mother, and that they drove to a point within walking distance of Devil's Pulpit.

They sat near the edge and admired the view for a while and had just decided to return to the car when Mrs. Scully arose, uttered a shriek and disappeared over the precipice, the husband said.

Boy Scouts located the body of Mrs. Scully and officials were more than two hours recovering it from the ravine.

$10,000 BAIL ON 28TH ARREST

Charles F. Gillen, 24, of Norfolk st., Roxbury, who has faced court 27 times on various charges, according to police, was held in $10,000 today in Quincy court, when arraigned on a charge of perjury.

Since last April, Gillen had been hunted by Weymouth police, and his capture came when a mysterious telephone call informed them that he had been arrested by police of Dudley st. station for drunkenness. Me was turned over to Weymouth by Boston police.

Gillen was charged with perjury in connection with a drunken driving case last April when he is alleged to have used the name of Frederick E. Goss of Ward st., Roxbury, and to have "taken the rap" for John F. Field of South Boston.

Gas Mask to Save World Kills Maker

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—Lawrence Horvath, 44, looked into the future and saw a world catastrophe.

He saw the nations at war again—millions of men, women and children dying in the fumes of gas bombs dropped from the sky.

The picture made him shudder.

"I will save humanity," he said. "I will invent a gas mask that will save the world."

Yesterday the model mask was finished.

He clamped it over his mouth and nose and, to test it, connected the intake to the gas range by means of a tube. He turned on the gas.

Baseball Man Killed, 4 Injured in Crash

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 5—W. L. Kenneth of Louisville Ky., minority stockholder of Minneapolis American Association Baseball Club was killed and four other persons injured early today when an automobile ran into a parked truck 16 miles east of here.

The injured are: Fred Seitz, driver of the car, W. E. Pearson, undertaker and Horace Newmark, all of Louisville and Mrs. L. Enger of Detroit, Mich.

Pioneer N. H. Woman Physician Succumbs

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 5—Dr. Ella Blaylock Atherton, one of the first women to be granted a license to practise medicine and surgery in New Hampshire, is dead at her home here after a short illness. She was 73 years old.

She started practise in Newport, Vt. in 1887 and, in 1889, came to Nashua.

80, His 30th Baby Is 6 Weeks Old

Winchester, Va., Sept. 5 (INS)—John T. Nalls, 80, a farmer of Rectartown, believes he has established a record for fatherhood.

He is the parent of 30 children, the youngest being six weeks old. Married three times, his present wife is 46. She bore him 11 children while she became the mother of seven by a previous marriage.

Study Chilean Drouth

Coquimbo, Chile, Sept. 5—A governmental commission has started a study of the north central agricultural regions of Chile afflicted by the worst drouth in a decade.

LAMSON READY TO TAKE STAND

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP)—David A. Lamson's defense starts here today—to be climaxed, his attorneys said, by his own denial that he killed his attractive young wife in their Stanford University campus home, Memorial Day.

E. M. Rea, chief of defense counsel, said evidence will be offered to show Allene Thorpe Lamson was killed by a fall against the bathtub in which her unclothed body was found.

He said witnesses will be called to refute prosecution testimony that discord existed in the Lamson home.

Before it concluded its case, the prosecution brought the name of the divorcee, Mrs. Sara M. Kelley, into the trial to support its contention Lamson beat his wife to death because their marriage had become bitter with jealousy and quarrels.

NORMA SHEARER HEADS CAST

Edmund Goulding to Direct Star in "Rip Tide," Story by Charles MacArthur

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 5—The idea for "Rip Tide," the sophisticated modern comedy drama Charlse MacArthur has written for Norma Shearer, was taken from an incident told him in Europe. Norma, for her very first Irving Thalberg production, will star in the MacArthur story, which gices her a chance to wear stunning clothes.

Louella O. Parsons

She is not yet sold on the "Marie Antoinette" story for herself. Remember I mentioned in this column, when she and Irving were still at Bad Nauheim, that Metro-Goldwny-Mayer had purchased Stefan Zweig's book for her. Irving Thalberg will produce "Rip Tide," staring his talented wife, before he starts work on "Good Earth." Edmund Goulding, in whom Irving has always had great confidence as a director, will direct.

I hope the Lila Lee admirers will be as thrilled as she is over her new job. Lila is the beautiful lady in Will James' story, "The Lone Cowboy," and she has as her chief vis a vis Jackie Cooper. Paul Sloane is directing the James drammer for Para and when you see it on the screen, dear friends, it will be called "Partner." Lila, who has been longing for a break, can now forget her broken romance with George Hill and look forward to a new deal in the film cards.

Passes Up Stage Bid

The truest thing in the world is the belief in Hollywood that one good offer of a job begets another. Charlie Starrett, the Missus, and the twins were at Laguna Beach enjoying the fiesta when Ruth Collier telephoned and asked Mr. Starrett to come to Hollywood and prepare to take a plane to New York for a part in the Max Gordon-Jerome Kern musical. He made all preparations to take the plane when an offer from the Fox Company to play the juvenile lead in the Will Rogers' picture, "There Is Always Tomorrow," gave him a new idea. He will do the Fox picture.

* * *

Don't for a moment believe the talk around Hollywood that Anna Sten cannot speak intelligible English. I talked with her on the set of "Nana" and she speaks unbelievably good English. There is a slight accent, but no more than the accent of Dietrich or Garbo. She is interesting, this blonde Russian with the big blue eyes. I should say that she will be well worth Samuel Goldwyn's investment. Still, you can never tell until the picture is released. Frankly, I was impressed with Anna Sten.

Chatter in Hollywood

Ruth Romaine, easily one of the prettiest girls in Hollywood, is now legally free. She obtained her final divorce decree last week in Chicago and the rumor is current among those who know that when Miss Romaine takes her next marital step it will be in company with George E. Stone. Georgie is very much smitten with the comely Ruth and Ruth is looking favorably on George these days.

* * *

I am told I should be impressed with the 12 baby stars gathered by Harry Rapf for "The Hollywood Party." Each one is a youngster of more than ordinary promise. Let's look over the 12; Margaret McConnell, cigaret ad girl, is one of them; Agnes Anderson, who won the Miss Detroit contest; Dorothy Short, Miss Atlantic City, another contest winner; Mary Carlisle, Florine McKinney, Polly Brooks, Martha Sleeper, Jean Howard, Ruth Channing, Muriel Evans, Linda Parker and Martha Ralston are the dozen. Some of these girls you have heard of and some are strangers, but all of them are attractive.

Snapshots of Hollywood

A little surprise was handed the film crowd at the Hollywood stadium when CAROLE LOMBARD walked in with GARY COOPER. They were guests of the ZEPPO MARXES. Directly across from them sat LUPE VELEZ and JOHNNY WEISSMULLER. Back of Johnny sat his ex-wife, BOBBE ARNST. ESTELLE TAYLOR, in somber black, devoting herself to ROGER KANE with whom she had supper at the Vine Street Derby. Bert Wheeler with very blonde and very attractive PATSY PARKER dining at the Vine Street Derby. MAXIE ROSENBLOOM, champion something or other in the fighting world, and JOHN McCORMACK in the same party. ADELA ROGERS HYLAND in a ringside seat at the Hollywood stadium with MARK KELLY CARNERA followed down the street by a crowd of excited youngsters after the fight, the good-natured giant shaking hands with everyone who spoke to him, whether he knew them or not. MARY BLACKWELL, Atlanta debutante, visiting her film actor brother, EARL. GEORGE RAFT off for New York to spend a three-weeks' vacation. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Globe Trotter

Splendid pictures of the recent hurricane at its height are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with a graphic description by The Globe Trotter, now at Loew's Orpheum.

So Enticing

Just Right

Hollywood's best known "separate domiciles" pair are Norman Foster and Claudette Colbert. The news photographer confesses he was surprised when he came upon them suddenly the other day, at Santa Monica, in the movie colony, apparently as deeply in love as ever. The photograph he took shows them happy as can be apparently. Perhaps that living apart is just a bit of publicity strategy. Anyway, they seem to be the best of friends. Both are favorites with the fans, and likewise among the stars themselves.

LIONEL BARRYMORE AGAIN KEITH STAR

Great Actor Is Brilliant in Doctor Role

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Through the acting of Lionel Barrymore you may set "One Man's Jorrney," featured at RKO B. F. Keith's, down as the saga of service and sacrifice of a country doctor. The actor fashions so expert a character, raises so realistic an atmosphere, that the film turns into something of an epic on the heroism of rural physicians in general. As only an artist of his class can do, he makes the theme his own, builds it, climaxes it, makes it appear a very vital excerpt from life itself.

* * *

Barrymore is the physician who feels himself a failure because he has not stepped up all the rungs in the big city. In his old home town he hangs out his sign. Life is paced slow, business is dull, money scarce. Often the pay is in produce. He adopts a baby he brings into the world. Each year is like another. Even his housekeeper (May Robson) fusses at him. Always, back in his mind, is his dream of winning recognition among the doctors of the land.

Then comes an epidemic of disease; Barrymore meets it, and conquers. He is the hero of the community. Still later, medical men give him honor, and then romance comes to him as it had to his son (Joel McCrea).

It is a simple tale, eloquently told, through Barrlymore's genius, and the sympathetic direction of John Robertson. It is a film that all the family can see, and become absorbed in. The characters of lesser importance are neatly portrayed; and as for Barrymore, he now gives the cinema one more perfect characterization, so superior that it holds a whole photoplay together, and makes it splendid entertainment.

Rejoins Staff at Keith's

Mary Hildegarde Healey has rejoined the RKO B. F. Keith staff under Jack Goldstein, publicity and exploitation chief for New England. Miss Healey, after a leave of absence, returns to participate in boosting the RKO Greater Show Season, being handled in masterly manner by Mr. Goldstein, under Regional Director Charles Koerner and Keith Manager Thomas Meehan.

Miss Healey at one time enjoyed the distinction of being Boston's only girl press agent. Graduate of South Boston High School and of a business school, she studied at Boston University and became connected with a large New York advertising agency. Her sister, Katherine, is on the staff of Warner Bros.' manager, Thomas B. Spry. With their mother, Mrs. Ellen O'Keefe Healey, the sisters live on Sutherland rd., Brookline.

Negro Stars in Another Hit at Scollay

By HARRIS MORGAN

The Scollay opened its holiday week with a midnight premiere at which there were patrons standing. It was a big house, and, as it turned out, it was a big show. The current stage feature is Danny Small's "Hot Harlem" troupe, so good that it was often "panicking" the audience. Its stars are many, and their contributions in each case were of outstanding quality.

* * *

Sheldon Brooks is a show in himself. You may or may not know the man and name; we don't recall having seen him before, and here and now accord him front place among comics and minstrels. He is a dandy pianist, good singer, and a particularly capable comedian—you haven't seen his equal in blackface since the Primrose & Dockstader era. Brooks had us guessing as to his race, but they tell us he is a Negro, and that he covers his dark skin with cork burnt black.

But just put it on record that he is going to be heard from among the brightest in a race noted for its song and dance and fun.

Danny Small himself is stellar, doing the master of ceremonies stunt niftily, and at times singing or dancing most agreeably. He also has a gift for patter.

There are plenty of highlights in this Negro program, ranging from Dixieland spirituals to Harlem hotcha dances. At times it becomes a typical Harlem night club show. Among the individuals meriting special mention are Mabel Scott, singer; Three Sams, unforgettable tap dancers; Tim Moore and Gang Jines, a couple of hilarity-making clowns; Consuelo Harris, star of many big shows; and Doc Hyder and his bandsmen.

On screen, George Arliss is seen in "Volatire," a lavish production, but as far apart as the poles from the jazzy stage show.

Coming Plays

COLONIAL—"Music in the Air," Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, operetta, coming for two weeks beginning September 11, following Broadway run that began November 8, last year.

TREMONT—"Brittle Heaven," new play by Vincent Yorke and Frederick J. Pohl, for one week only, commencing Sept. 11. Cast headed by Katherine Emery, Cynthia Rogers and Helen Huberth.

HOLLIS—"Inspector Charlie Chan" by Earl Derr Biggers and Valentine Davies, opening September 18. New play with William Harrigan in leading role. Based on the story, "Keeper of the Keys."

SHUBERT—"Let 'Em Eat Cake," coming for world premiere October 2. Sequel to the great success "Of Thee I Sing" and by the same experts. Features William Gaxton, Lois Moran and Victor Moore.

Another Play for Premiere

"Brittle Heaven," new play by Vincent Yorke and Frederick J. Pohl, opens an engagement of one week only at the Tremont, Monday evening, September 11, prior to its New York engagement. Arthur J. Beckhard and Irving A. Isaacs are the producers. The drama is based on the life of an eminent woman, a romantic figure in the history of American poetry.

Katherine Emery, Cynthia Rogers and Helen Huberth head the cast. The production is scheduled for New York after the Boston engagement.

Exeter Theater

Edmund Lowe in "Her Body Guard" and Kiepura in "Be Mine Tonight" are the attraction for today and tomorrow at the Exeter Theater. The last half of the week Randolph Scott will be seen in "Man of the Forest." John Boles in "King of Jazz" will also be shown.

Double Bill at the Bowdoin

The Bowdoin on screen has in its new show "Moonlight and Pretzels," with Leo Carrillo, Mary Brian, Lillian Miles, Herbert Rawlinson, Roger Pryor and Bobby Watson and "She Had To Say Yes," with Loretta Young, Lyle Talbot and Winnie Lightner. Charlie Chase is viewed in "His Silent Racket."

The vaudeville is excellent. The DePerron Duo present a fine acrobatic act. Ralston, musical artist, Barney and Brother, aerial stars, Will S[illegible]on, songs, The Three Ritz, a dancing act, and Weldonia, magic act, are on the stage program.

DAY OF DAYS FOR TEST WINNERS AT FAIR

(Special to the Boston Evening American)

Chicago, Sept. 5—Eager to get started on their visit to the World's Fair, Lorraine Lemire, eight, of Manchester, N. H., and Kenneth Jones, seven, of Rumford, R. I., arrived here from Detroit last night.

They are the typical New England girl and boy, winners of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser Contest, and their prize was a round trip to the Century of Progress Exposition, accompanied by their parents.

FAIRYLAND VISITED

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lemire, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Jones were as ready for the good time that was in store as were the youngsters. They were enthusiastic about the trip to Chicago, and felt certain they would have a fine time during their days at the fair. They are stopping at the Palmer House while here.

"I want to go to Fairyland," the little Lorraine announced on her arrival. And Kenneth knew what he wanted, too.

"I want to see the airplanes," he asserted, and evidently he'd put in a mite of persuasion with his father, for Mr. Jones had promised him a ride in an airplane.

Lorraine has brought along her diary and expects to have it pretty well filled by the time she leaves here Friday night for home. Kenneth is more concerned with seeing the airplanes and other mechanical wonders, than with writing.

FAMILIES NOW FAST FRIENDS

The two families, who had not known each other before they met in Boston to start the trip, are now fast friends. They tell with interest of their visit to Niagara Falls and to Detroit while enroute here. From Buffalo to Detroit the trip was by boat.

Good feeling exists between the youngsters, but it is not the friendliness that develops between two girls, or two fella's. It's no secret, either.

While being posed together for a picture, Kenneth remarked:

"Just my luck to have a girl win the other prize," and reports were that Lorraine had commented similarly.

But both are bubbling with enthusiasm for today they start on a conducted tour of the Fair Grounds. There is to be plenty of time for visiting whatever they want to see, and on Wednesday they will have another conducted tour of another section of the fair. Thursday and Friday they will be left to do with as they please.

Of the parents, only Mr. Jones has ever been in Chicago before, and so they are looking forward to a tour of places of interest, including some of the night life.

"Yes, we'll get a nurse for the children in the evening," Mr. Jones said, "and then we'll see what there is to see."

And there is much jesting among them, about whether it would be better for the men to go alone, while the women folks stay home to care for the children. But neither Mrs Lemira nor Mrs. Jones seemed to think that was such a good idea.

THE TIME OF TIMES

The tourists will end their visit here Friday night. Then, still as guests of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, they will return to Boston, where each family will go home.

"Everybody has been fine all along," declared Mr. Lemire with the others concurring. "Things are as nice as can be. We've enjoyed every minute of the trip so far, and expect to enjoy every bit of the balance of it."

U. S. Judge's Family in Crash in Bavaria

Kilheim, Upper Bavaria, Sept. 5 (AP)—Mrs. Robert Llewellyn Henry, Jr., wife of Judge Henry, American member of the mixed court of Alexandria, Egypt, remained in a serious condition today as a result of an automobile accident near here.

Judge Henry and his sons, Alvan, 22, and McCleland, 14, were less badly hurt.

Marland, Treasurer of B.&M. Road, Dead

Funeral arrangements are being made today for Charles N. Marland 62, treasurer of the Boston and Maine Railroad, who died suddenly late last night in his home in Ballardville, of a heart attack.

Marland had been treasurer of the Boston and Maine since March, 1928. He entered the service of the road July 1, 1888, as messenger.

Maid Threatened; Home Is Guarded

Worcester, Sept. 5—Following receipt of a telephone threat, a police guard was placed around the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shapiro, at 59 Heywood st. Members of the family said Miss Alice Dufresne, their maid, had severed friendship with a man within the past week, and that he had threatened to make trouble.

1500 Walkout in Derry

Derry, N. H., Sept. 5 (AP)—Approximately 1500 shoe workers, the entire number employed in Derry's five shoe factories, walked out today for what they called a two-day "holiday." No reason was stated by their leaders.

Lucky Finder

Helen Coleman of Arlington is all thrilled with the prospect of spending the brand new $5 bill she found in an envelope on Nantasket Beach in the Boston American Treasure Hunt.

Politician Shows Typical Wisdom

McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 5—Out of the boiling political pot emerged a candidate for school director who buttonholed a voter and began "roasting" Dr. J. D. Richey, superintendent of schools.

"I'm against Richey," he asserted vehemently.

"I'm sorry to hear that," commented the voter. "I happen to be Dr. Richey."

VERMONT VOTES ON REPEAL

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 5 (INS)—Traditions of three-quarters of a century were arrayed against a surge of nation-wide wet sentiment today as Vermont held a special election on the question of ratification of the Twenty-First Amendment to repeal prohibition.

For 50 years, long before prohibition became the law of the land, the Green Mountain State had anti-liquor laws on its statute books—even now it has a law prohibiting the sale of beverages stronger than 3.2 per cent even in the event of national repeal, until further legislation is enacted.

Vermont is the 25th state to vote on repeal.

Although both "wet" and "dry" factions were confident of victory, impartial observers predicted a close fight, with the dry rural sections opposed by the wet cities and larger communities.

Both factions conducted quiet campaigns calculated to "get out the vote." Prohibitionists centred their drive from pulpits at meetings at which Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Washington was the principal speaker. The anti-prohibitionists were aided by Postmaster-General James Farley and Representative J. W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York.

Italy Warns Nazis on Birthrate Drop

Rome, Sept. 5—Fascist Italy is noting with concern reports of a decreasing birthrate in Nazi Germany.

This, says Benito Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia is a sign of decadence. If it is not checked, this paper warns, then death will come from the north instead of light as the old saying goes.

Cloudburst Blocks Pennsylvania Roads

Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 5 — A cloudburst between Williamsport and Canton, Pa., delayed railroad service and blocked highways.

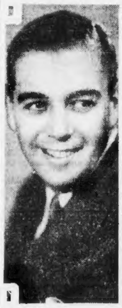
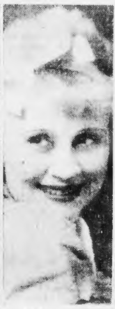
Gangster Targets Protected in Jail

Philadelphia, Sept 5—The secret of why the four Lanzetti brothers get arrested so often is out. The police say the brothers are marked for death by gangsters. It is feared bystanders will be shoe when the firing begins. So police arrest the brothers to get them off the streets.

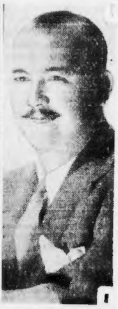
$100 in Prizes Offered in Test of Vaudeville Stars



1—Well known, radio, stage and screen tenor extremely well-liked in Boston. Called the "golden-voiced" tenor of the radio. Made two motion pictures, "Syncopation" and "Mother's Boy." Is now in RKO vaudeville. Know who he is?



2—Half of the most famous sister team in RKO vaudeville. She has just been reunited with her sister on the stage. Her sister married a well-known movie star. Girls were famous as "Topsy and Eva" on the stage and screen. Who is she?



3—Meet the "King of Jazz himself! Probably one of the best known orchestra leaders in the world. Was once very fat and lost considerable avoirdupois. His rendition of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" was the talk of musical circles. Know him?

To the readers of the Boston Evening American an opportunity is offered to build up that depleted cash reserve and to have fun while doing it.

Beginning today and continuing for two weeks, there will be published in the Boston Evening American, each day, three photographs of noted RKO vaudeville stars, with hints on their identity.

Your job is to fill in their names correctly and neatly, and as a reward receive cash prizes and tickets to the RKO Boston Theater, Washington and Essex sts.

To the person sending in the largest number of correct identifications $25 will be awarded. The second best list will receive $15 and the third place contestant $10. Two $5 bills will be awarded to the fourth and fifth choices and $2 notes will be distributed to the next 20 winners.

Fill in the names of the stars whose photographs are published each day and then send them to the Vaudeville Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

In the event of ties, remember neatness will count. In any event the decision of the judges will be final.

You must not send in identifications for single day. Save them for the two weeks and then forward the complete sets to the Vaudeville Editor, bearing in mind that to be eligible for judging they must bear a postmark not later than midnight, Sept. 26. Everyone except employes of the Boston Evening American and RKO Theaters is eligible to enter the contest.

One photo printed today is that of a famous radio, stage and screen tenor who is very popular in this city. Another photograph is that of a famous girl, who, with her sister, composed one of the best known "sister teams" in musical comedy and vaudeville. The third photograph is that of a very famous orchestra leader commonly referred to as the "King of Jazz."

So. End's Good Samaritan Falls Among Auto Thieves

For months the Rev. Raymond E. Allen has been a Good Samaritan, picking up fallen men and setting them again on their feet, but now the Good Samaritan has fallen among thieves—and the gift car he had only two days is gone.

The Rev. Allen opened the Welcome Home for Forgotten men at 34 Yarmouth st., South End, last winter, and since then has been feeding about 1200 men a week and has kept many a wayfarer in clothing and under a roof.

Much of the food has been donated, and in collecting these donations from merchants in the market district and other sections, the Rev. Allen has been walking about 100 miles a week.

Some weeks ago a friend donated an eight-year-old sedan to the Rev. Allen, but because of lack of funds he could not register it until last Friday.

And then—on Sunday night while it was parked for only a short time in Huntington ave.—the 1926 Hudson was stolen.

Malden Teacher Is Connecticut Bride

Miss Gertrude C. Handlin, teacher at the Beebe Junior high school, Malden, and William E. Connors, general manager of a transportation company in Waterbury, Ct., were married at a nuptial mass celebrated yesterday at St. Bernard's Church by Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. J. Donnelly, according to announcements received by Malden friends today. They are to reside in Waterbury. The bride is a graduate of Fitchburg State College.

Italy to Bear Costs of De Pinedo Funeral

Rome, Sept. 5—Funeral expenses for Gen. Francesco De Pinedo, Italian airman killed in New York Saturday, on the start of a trans-Atlantic flight, will be paid by the Italian Government.

It was understood a fitting ceremony will be held when the body arrives at Rome.

Houston Thomas Dead

Hamilton, Sept. 5—Houston Addison, 62, long active in the affairs of Hamilton and Wenham, is dead at his home here.

ROOSEVELT IN NRA PARLEY

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt cruised into home waters today refreshed by five invigorating days on the open seas and eager to begin another half year of economic rehabilitation.

He returned to a capital engrossed with recovery efforts. Summoned to review events with the chief executive and plan future efforts was the national recovery council.

While devoting most of his days on the Atlantic to relaxation, the President had kept informed of national affairs by wireless. So, as Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal carried him up the winding Potomac, he was ready to put new incentive where most needed behind the new deal program.

Trade Pact Sought

Texas Zoo Guarded in Hurricane

Houston, Tex., Sept. 5—Attendants at the Hermann Park zoo here were taking no chances with their denizens of the jungle during the tropical hurricane.

Hans Nagel, keeper, said two men with guns were stationed in the zoo to shoot any wild animals that might escape during the blow. Cages had been boarded up and made fast.

"We certainly don't want any lions or tigers strolling down Main st. in the middle of a hurricane," Nagel said.

STUDENT LOSES 300 BOOKS

More than 300 text books, owned by John B. Cortes, Harvard student, were reported stolen today from three packing cases in the basement of the Bexley Hall apartments, Massachusetts ave., Cambridge.

The books were stored there last June and Cortez returned to find them gone. He valued them at $500.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

DEPENDING UPON MOOD . . . WHICH IS really the most pleasant way to decide things . . . we decided to do some exploring into the gay life on the Cape over the past week-end . . . not all of it, perhaps, but certainly that part of it which was rumored would be so very, very merry . . . so

Packing up a few clothes . . . you know, a sport dress, one simple evening thing, the dark print in which we drove down and other little accessories after the fact, such as sun-proof cream and as much money as we could find in the kiddies' banks, we started off bright and early Saturday morning . . .

HELEN DAVIDSON

Oyster Harbors was to be our first port of call because the second horse show of that colony was being staged at the Oyster Harbors Club . . . and we would have been there for the first toot of Mr. Lovesy's horn had we not picked up a stray tack on the road and had to wait until a tire was mended . . . however.

Arrive we did before lunch in time to greet the charming Mrs. William H. Danforth, well-known for her ready smile and wit, who was chairman of the show . . . in fact, everyone told us SHE was the power behind the whole show and she is certainly to be congratulated on the sporty little exhibition which was witnessed by several hundred people . . .

Hundreds of shiny new motors with number plates from almost every state in the Union were drawn up to the rail, filled with extremely smart and well-turned out summer visitors to the Cape . . . Wianno, Osterville, Centerville, Hyannisport and points around . . . the grandstand was crowded with horse lovers, most of whom were well-known to us.

* * *

Mrs. William Ewald in Blue Boucle

THE DAY WAS PERFECT, CLEAR AND COOL . . . we greeted attractive Mrs. Bernard E. McGoldrick and her party as we mounted the grandstand . . . attired in the fashionable eel grey with touches of red. In the group were Mrs. William Ewald in a lovely light blue boucle, Mrs. E. J. Schroeder, also in the turquoise shade, Mrs. Sam Shaw cool and summerish in brown and white flowered print with Mrs. Jack Grant of Brookline in rose . . .

Mr. William J. Davidson was in his box surrounded by his attractive daughters, Miss Anne in a green sport frock squired by George Muir, Mrs. Miller who was Frances Davidson and two daughters who were in the various classes for young ladies and who made a splendid showing during the day . . . Helen, who won two blues in the morning, one in the horsemanship jumping class for girls under 16, and Miss Lillian, who was honored by winning the first leg on Mrs. Danforth's cup for lady hunters, riding Watchman . . .

Very much interested in each class but especially so in the classes in which her sons rode, Mrs. Edward Donnelly looked sweet in bois de rose crepe with dark brown hat as she chatted with her daughter, Miss Kay, in red and black sport dress, and Mrs. Edward Place, wife of the well-known sports writer . . .

The F. Harold Tolmans watched their young folks ride to victory from their box . . . Mrs. Tolman was appropriately costumed in tweeds and Mrs. Frederick Good wore the popular boucle in soft tan shades . . .

* * *

Hugh Bancroft Jr., Among Participants

PERCHED HIGH ON THE HOOD OF THEIR sporty car, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Atherton with daughter Marian and her friend, Natalie Sibley, daughter of Myron Sibley of Lynn, watched the show after a delicious lunch at the club . . .

Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., was a spectator as her husband rode his mounts . . . her costume was the popular eel grey . . . and

Mr. and Mrs. Allen White of Centerville proudly congratulated their young son, Allen Jr., who won the class for children under eight years of age . . .

Helen Danforth, daughter of the Albion Danforths, won several firsts . . . she is a dark, attractive girl who will be coming out soon . . . earlier in the week she won the reserve championship at Cohasset.

Leaving the club earlier than we wished, we dashed over to the Wianno Club in time to see the finish of the knockabout races . . . what a picture? Betty Wells and her fiance, Heywood Fox, were contestants and later we congratulated them at the club after the announcement of their engagement was made at a small dinner party at the Wells' beautiful home at Wianno . . .

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Wells, Betty's brother, Miss Sophy Whiting, Mr. George Draper, the Turner Wells, Jean Hinckle, Eleanor Fox, Lilla Draper, Robert White and others . . .

* * *

A. Felix duPonts Luncheon Guests

THE WIANNO CLUB HAS THE MOST enviable location on the edge of a cliff overlooking the sea . . . a pine grove terrace dotted with chairs makes it the most ideal spot from which to view a yacht race. They told us that the club has been unusually gay this summer and it would appear so over the week end . . . hundreds of young folks attended the dance Saturday night and it was really a very brilliant affair.

The A. Felix duPonts entertained at dinner beforehand, as did the Thornhill Broomes and the Frank Dunckles . . .

After the dance, feeling still more adventuresome, we dropped into the Coffee House and everything was going in full swing there, and at midnight, after the music stopped, we drove along the shore under the most perfect moon to experience the sensation that so many travelers have that Europe exists only to reveal America to us.

Mrs. A. F. duPont

Sunday was the hunt at the Oyster Harbors club which was exceedingly well attended . . . later we enjoyed supper with Mrs. Danforth as hostess to the riders . . . then off again

To the night club in the pines, Casa Madrid, for a dance and a midnight snack . . . it was all very delightful and exciting and we looked forward to the seaplane meet on Labor Day but started back to town because of the deluge . . . however, we felt well repaid for trekking so far, far away . . . we are never so happy as when we are going new places to tell you about in the daily half-dozen . . .

By the way, cable has been received that the E. N. O. will saunter merrily down the gangplank of the Scythia on Sunday next into the arms of his erstwhile wife . . . Cheerio!

HORSE SHOW EVENTS THRILL SOCIETY LEADERS ON CAPE COD

SKILL WAS SHOWN BY MISS MARTHA WILEY as she put her horse, Brandywine, over the jumps in the Hunter Jump class at annual horse show held at the Oyster Harbors club on the Cape. Many society leaders gathered for the event which was the closing climax of the season at this popular social resort. Among the features were the events for the children.

MRS. WILLIAM H. DANFORTH of Chestnut Hill was chairman of the committee that handled the Oyster Harbors Club's annual horse show and was snapped as she was about to present a trophy to one of the winners.

Sabina Lovejoy to Wed Soon

MR. ND MRS. CHARLES FOSTER LOVEJOY of Phillips Beach, Swampscott, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sabina Bogardus Lovejoy, to Mr. Joseph Langmaid, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frank Langmaid, also of Phillips Beach.

Miss Lovejoy was graduated from the Winsor school and made her bow in society in 1930-31 season. Since then she has been a student at the Amy M. Sacker School of Design.

Mr. Langmaid attended Governor Dummer Academy and is now associated with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co.

No date has been announced as yet for the wedding.

Alice Murphy of Brookline Engaged

OF MUCH INTEREST IS the announcement of the engagement of Miss Alice Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Murphy of Brookline, to Mr. Robert Coleman Child, Jr., son of Mrs. Robert Coleman Child, also of Brookline.

Miss Murphy is the great-granddaughter of Prof. Joseph Winlock, at one time head of the observatory at Harvard College; is a granddaughter of the late William C. Winlock, former assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institute; and is a granddaughter of Mr. Charles O'Brien Murphy, of Dublin, Ireland. Mr. Herbert E. Winlock, director of the Metropolitan Art Museum, in New York, is her uncle. She attended Wellesley College with the class of 1930.

Mr. Child is a graduate of Brown and Nichols School and of Williams College, class of 1928.

The wedding date has not been decided upon.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE W. CARROLL of West Medford announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Carroll, to Mr. Richard Herbert Cook, of Philadelphia, Pa. Miss Carroll attended Boston University, and was a member of the Pi Lambda Sigma Sorority. She also studied at Miss Pierce's School in Boston. Mr. Cook graduated from Northeastern University with the class of 1931.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. PHILLIPS GLOVER TERHUNE (Frances Matthews) of Swampscott and Washington, Conn., where they are an active part of the summer social life, are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first-born, a daughter.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. FRANK J. ROCHE, of Cambridge, have been spending the holidays at Hyannis, where they are registered at the Coffee House. They were noticed at the Casa Madrid on Sunday evening, entertaining a group of friends. Mrs. Roche is the daughter of the former mayor of Cambridge, and Mr. Roche is a prominent lawyer of that city. He is well known in political circles.

AT THE SUMMER HOME OF Miss Esther Louise Cuneen of Jamaica Plain, at Strawberry Hill, Nantasket, were Miss Gertrude and Carolyn Pfau and Miss Rose Marie Winterson, of West Roxbury, as house guests of Miss Cuneen.

Hat Is Key to Accessory Ensemble

Your next fall hat is merely the start of an accessory ensemble. Be sure to consider it as such. It may be of velvet, satin, suede, felt, woolen or duvetyne. It may be a taupe brown or a soft, indefinite gray, perhaps with a purplish cast. Green, either with a coppery or rusty look that suggests bronze, will be very good.

A fashion highlight will be olive green, and the color of the ripe olive is a beautiful newcomer. Rusts and the various rich reds are so flattering that they are sure to be in favor. Of course, the bulk of millinery is apt to be black, or those dark berry colors that threaten to replace black.

The hat will undoubtedly be one of these types: a beret, a sailor (either Spanish in type or one inspired by either a Gainsborough painting or a Breton fisherman!) or a cartwheel, to be worn with flat fur capes. In velvet, keep the cartwheel for formal purposes; in felt, wear it on the street.

Shoes that go with these hats may match in color; if possible, in fabric. The "cocktail shoe" is this year's development. It starts out at tea-time, but can go through an informal evening with ease. Often it is of satin, or satin - with - another - shoe-fabric combination. Suede grows more important from year to year. New this season are the high-cut oxfords and high cut step-in pumps.

Your bag may match your shoes and hat, too, certainly in color, if not in fabric. Suede, satin, velvet and faille are reserved for dress-up wear, while calf and leather novelties are for

The accompanying picture tells three complete accessory stories.

Top: A felt cartwheel of taupe-brown, for the street, with pink mother-of-pearl feather ornament. Pump of taupe-brown suede with patent leather trim and heel. This emphasizes the two-fabric idea for shoes. Bag of moirecalf with mat silver monogram.

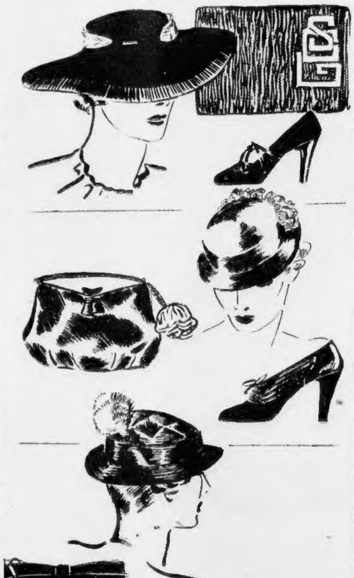
Bottom: Modified Spanish sailor, of brown velvet, with dark brown and beige feather pompoms. Bag of matching suede, shiny as velvet, with neat bow ornament frame. Shoes: a high-button oxford, of brown suede with fine gold pipings and buttons.



A fashion highlight this fall will be olive green, with rusts and rich reds also favored. See accompanying article.

Langes on Bridal Trip in Maine

Dr. and Mrs. Karl O. Lange, whose marriage took place on Sept. 2 at Menauhant, will make their home at 18 Southgate park, West Newton, after their wedding trip motoring through Maine.

The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wright of Wellesley Hills and Menauhant. She was graduated from Smith College in 1930. Her sister, Miss Barbara Wright, attended her as maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Atwater and Miss Edith Kennelly.

Uxbridge Plans for Horse Show

The benefit horse show which is to be held Saturday, Sept. 16, in Uxbridge, is being arranged by an able committee of energetic workers under the guidance of Miss Edith Washburn Clarke, chairman. The other members of the committee are Miss Deborah Root, Miss Harriet Hayward, Mrs. Frederick Snowling, Mr. John E. Washburn, Mr. Gordon Scott, Mr. D. L. Evans and Mr. Howard Walker.

Patronesses for the show include Mrs. Charles A. Root, Sr., Mrs. John E. Washburn, Mrs. Chandler Bullock, Mrs. George S. Ball,

EASY TO WEAR, EASY TO PACK, SMALL HATS ARE VERY IMPORTANT THIS SEASON

At Least Two Small Hats Should Be in Every Wardrobe to Wear Dancing and Traveling

By Charline Davenport

WE ARE NOT even suggesting for one minute that the brim hat in its many new varieties and fascinating shapes is not more than holding its own in the fashion picture, but we are saying that when we would a-traveling go, or when we want a hat to wear to tea, dinner or theater, there is nothing quite so smart or so comfortable as the small hat.

Ask any man who has tried to waltz about a floor with a lady in a large hat, which he prefers, large or small hat. Chorus, "Small Hat." Ask most women who have a crook in their necks from trying to keep the edge of the picture hat out of the eye of the nice old gentleman in the theater lobby when the curtain is about to go up and everybody makes a dash for his and her seats the last moment. Chorus, "Small Hats."

For Dress Wear

Even with Mae West doing so much for the return of the be-plumed elegance of the picture hat which did its share of gaiety for the nineties—we still feel attached to the small hat for dress wear.

Fortunately for our self-esteem and the good of the generation, we can go a little original in the choice of our head gear, this season. We don't have to look like every other woman we meet on the streets to be "in the mode." If our nose turns up, we can go the limit in getting a hat—THE hat which should go with the nose. If the nose is long and aristocratic, we can put a veil over it, plant a pancake of velvet over two-thirds of it—be just as independent and individualistic as we please.

Very Flattering

And by the way, these new hats made of antelope are very flattering. They make the skin look at least two shades whiter than it should after a summer in the sun. Not to be out done by the antelopes, there are now velvets which are rain-proof—or, rather, we should probably say there is a variety of velvet now used in hats which will not spot in the rain, believe it or not. Also we can't say enough for these gay little feathers, or plumelets which flaunt themselves from the top of so many of the hats like sturdy, little pines on the top of miniature mountain peaks.

All in all it is a great year for the little lady who can dig herself out of the deepest depression with a new and becoming hat.

Smart and New For Slender Silhouette

By MARIAN MARTIN

THE UNBROKEN SILHOUETTE is the most slenderizing line Fashion has conceived for the woman who is no op[illegible]m. This stunning model owes its success to these length-giving details . . . the surplice bodice, pointed seamings, straight pleats and unbelted waistline. Buttons and binding are noteworthy accents. Satin or crepe would be lovely for afternoon wear, cotton for mornings.

Pattern 9709 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric and 2⅞ yards binding.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern ordered.

Listen, World! "Dare to Live"

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"JERUSALEM SLIM" — that's what the convicts in San Quentin call Jesus of Nazareth.

Now, just wait a minute, Sanctimonious Citizen! Wipe that horrified frown from your brow. You're not listening to sacrilege. Never in all your righteous career have you rendered your Master greater homage than those poor, barred souls offer Him when they call Him "Jerusalem Slim." And there are tears in my heart when I remember what Tip O'Neil answered when I asked him why.

Elsie Robinson

"Why do we call him that?" said Tip, with his fighting Irish eyes hard on me, wondering if I'd understand. "That's easy—because He did time, too."

He did time, too! Not as a criminal, though in the end, they condemned Him to die as one. No; Jesus of Nazareth "did time" because He DARED TO LIVE. And it was a desperate gamble for any man to demand life, or urge his brothers to demand it, in those dark days of Roman tyranny and High Priest conspiracy.

Yet "Jerusalem Slim"—born in a manger, trained at a carpenter's bench—dared to demand life; all the great adventures of life. He dared to demand life; all the great adventures of life. He dared to think—doubt—ask questions—reject the old, dead answers—make experiments—rebel—claim freedom, and teach others how to claim it.

Noble? Yes; by the reckoning of God. BUT UTTERLY UPSETTING BY THE RECKONING OF HUMAN BEINGS!

For humans have ever been lazy, stupid and cowardly. They like to read about danger, but they hate like poison to face it in actual experience. And they resent, and punish as brutally as possible, any disturbing mortal who challenges them to face it.

"He saved others; himself He could not save!" jeered the mob, as He hung dying. But He might have saved Himself at any time. With such shameful ease He might have saved Himself from it all—made of His life a success story."

And often and often when I'm against it—when I'm wondering if I can stand my particular rap any longer—I remember that. Sometimes it seems so useless even so wrong, to try to do the decent, unusual thing. Not that I've ever, in all my selfish life come even within shouting distance of Jerusalem Slim's performance. But—you know how it is—we all have those reckless yens to Go Noble. And when we do, what a panning we get!

THEN IF HE COULD TAKE IT—SO CAN I!

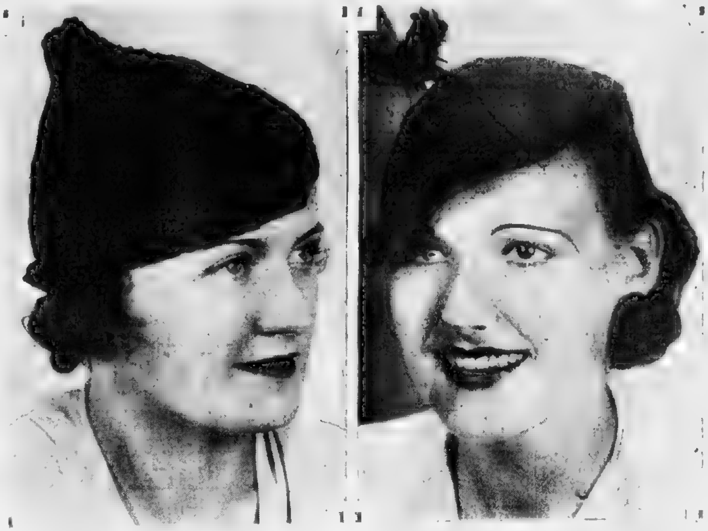
GAY AND YOUTHFUL HATS HELP REVIVE THE MORALE



Two little models that have more than their share of this season's "IF".

The velvet (on the left) should be worn to an afternoon bridge, or informally when dining in town. The neat small suede goes shopping in the morning, into the country for the week-end or traveling around the world. Both these hats may be purchased in Boston. If you will telephone Margaret Matson, Liberty 4000, or write her, she will give you the name of the shop and other information to assist you in making your selection from the season's hats.

Correct Place For Return Address

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to know if, when addressing an envelope, you put your name and address in the upper left corner or on the back.

A FRIEND.

The postoffice authorities suggest that we write the return address in the upper left corner of the front of the envelope. So evidently this is considered the most convenient for the mail man, and he is the one to be considered. However, this often means crowding, and running the return address into the address itself, so if your handwriting is large, I think the back of the envelope is the better.

Salt and Celery

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me the proper way to use salt when eating celery. Should the salt be put on a plate and celery dipped in it, or should the celery be sprinkled with salt?

2. When a girl friend comes to spend the evening at your home, and is already seated when you enter the room, should she rise when you go forward to shake hands, or remain seated? (We are both the same age.)

It is considered better form to put the salt on the side of the plate, preferably the bread and butter plate, and dip the celery in it.

2. It would be natural for her to rise when her hostess entered the room.

It's Easy-Going Husband Needs Most Watching

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN SELDOM stops to ask himself whether he has charm or not. When it comes to doing the charming, most men leave all the heavy work to the women.

* * *

Helen Rowland

For some reason, it's usually the easy-going, lovable husband who needs the most watching when there are other attractive women around. And the sort which you can wind around your finger is likely to be pliant enough to be easily unwound—by the next woman.

* * *

The more a man sees of suntanned backs, sunburned thighs and half-portion bathing suits, the more heartily he approves of Mother Eve's sagacity when she invented clothes, and the more he admires the Eskimo maiden's sartorial effects.

* * *

Since love is the most exciting and absorbing game of a woman's life, it's amazing how little she ever learns about when to play her winning cards and when to keep a poker face and sit tight.

* * *

Intuition is the cold chill that runs up and down a man's back when he decides that it is time to "cut bait" and ask the girl to marry him, or to reel in and run.

* * *

Nowadays a man appears to judge a girl's character by her back. If her shoulder-blades and vetebrae are sweet and innocent-looking, he seldom stops to glance into her eyes.

* * *

In the matrimonial market, an old bachelor is a shop-worn remnant; a divorced man is a second-hand article; but a widower is a treasured heirloom, inherited only through death.

* * *

A matron usually has more poise than a young girl—probably because she realizes that, when she tips the scales at 160 pounds and has a thirty-six inch waistline, there's no adventure ahead to get excited about and nothing worse to worry about.

* * *

Sauerkraut Renews Your Youth

By MARTHA LEE

AFTER A WEEK end of overeating—or at least perhaps unwise eating—today might be a good day to talk about that "whiskbroom of the stomach—sauerkraut" — and for your health's sake, I do want you to lend me an ear.

James Collins in his interesting book, "The Story of Canned Foods," quotes the steward of a great Chicago hotel thusly.

"Remember that sauerkraut is a serious proposition," he said, the poor man's dish and the rich man's medicine. Pasteur declared that sauerkraut was the most useful and healthful vegetable dish on earth. It is a part of the fighting ration of armies on the Continent of the Europe. It is the greatest conditioner on the face of the earth.

"If you're getting old, get busy with a sauerkraut diet. Those friends of yours who have diabetes will thank you for the information that sauerkraut is a direct cure for it. It is a wonderful blood purifier.

With Franks

Turn the contents of one No. 2 can sauerkraut into a buttered baking dish. Boil eight frankfurters 20 minutes, then arrange on top of the sauerkraut. Pile four cups seasoned, mashed potatoes, lightly on top, dot with butter and brown in a hot oven. Serves eight.

Tomato Juice Cocktail

Mix one part sauerkraut juice and one part tomato juice, salt and paprika to taste and cracked ice together in a cocktail shaker. Shake until very cold and foamy. Serve at once in tiny glasses.

What to Do---When Your Nice Summer Bronze Begins to Turn a Wan Brown

By Therese Deschamps

NOW THAT you have had a wonderful summer in the sun and you look brown [illegible], we are going to let loose all our [illegible] tendencies and remind you that it is all very well [illegible] about in all your bronzed glory making [illegible] little [illegible] violent green with envy, until your bronze starts to fade to a dull tan. Then [illegible] something [illegible].

We sincerely hope it is a glorious day and you are in complete [illegible] the world the [illegible] your mirror [illegible] really going [illegible] the tan to its [illegible] social season [illegible] toward [illegible] of the fashion [illegible] to blend [illegible] a wan brown.

Caring for Looks

Believe it or not, when the [illegible] of your particular set come out in dazzling fair glory, you will want to sink through the floor or hide behind the couch unless you have so much personality and so many [illegible] to spring that you [illegible] whoop about the [illegible].

[illegible] of us care two whoops or [illegible] about our personal appearance aside from any mental brilliance we may want to drag along in case the curl comes out of our hair on a damp evening.

Tan Bleaching

So—to get back to the morning when you find you are going to have to take the last three shades of summer tan off as quickly and painlessly as possible, we sincerely hope you can call up your favorite salon, make an appointment for a series of bleaching and [illegible] treatments and start the good work by stretching out luxuriously and letting somebody else do the work.

If you are unable to go saloning for one reason or another, we know of an excellent bleaching treatment which may be undertaken safely at home with [illegible]. If you will enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, we will send you this information along with our hopes [illegible] bronze stays [illegible] enough to let us [illegible] weeks.

Weather Not Always to Blame

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

NEURALGIA is a term commonly used to describe vague and discomforting pains. In reality it is pain in a nerve due to an inflammation or infection.

Dr. Copeland

The sufferer from neuralgic pain usually describes it as "throbbing" or "shooting" or [illegible] in character. It may be a constant pain or one that "comes and goes."

One of the most severe forms is that spoken of as "facial neuralgia." In this affliction the "facial nerve," or nerve of the face, is involved. The pain is of a serious nature, extremely uncomfortable, causing great distress and suffering.

When the pain of neuralgia is mild it is apt to be neglected. As I have stated, it is often mistaken for rheumatism, neuritis or arthritis, and is disregarded. Since the disease is extremely difficult to cure when it is chronic, it should be treated upon the first complaint of pain.

No cure can be hoped for until the underlying cause is determined. The irritation or inflammation of the nerve may be due to an infection somewhere in the body. This may come from diseased teeth, [illegible] sinus or gall bladder. When the cause [illegible] removal [illegible].

If you are a sufferer from neuralgia I would advise that you consult with your physician. He will give you a thorough physical examination and endeavor to determine the [illegible].

[illegible] recommend [illegible] other tests that will help determine the exact cause and aid in its removal. Do not neglect this disorder.

She Wonders Why He Has Changed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 37 years, not bad to look at and home loving. I was married very young and have two fine sons, 18 and 20 years [illegible]. I have been father [illegible] to both of them since the youngest was four. Three years ago I met a navy man, and we have been writing to each other and seeing each other when he could be in the city. I have always loved him and he has told me that he loved me. He paid for my divorce, and has been very kind. He has now resigned from the navy and he has no [illegible] job. What I can't understand now is the change in him. Do you think it's because he hasn't enough money to [illegible]?

Dear H: I expect [illegible] deal of a man to [illegible] when he [illegible]. At the same time if this man's feelings toward you have changed for any reason, he should be man enough to tell you.

Best Way to Wake Up Household

IF YOU are the one to arouse the household in the morning a very kindly procedure is to allow five minutes for the waking-up process, particularly with children.

This keeps the shock from [illegible] too abrupt. Orange juice can be squeezed the evening before which will allow the [illegible] her extra [illegible].

Health is half of success

FEW men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"We went on a hike last summer and got all turned around and lost back of Swampscott. We found our way at about nine o'clock at night and we had miles to walk yet. Boy, were we tired. There were eight of us, too many for anyone to pick up.

"Finally a limousine came along and we all wearily thumbed toward the city. It stopped and we all got in. I guess that was the best ride I ever had. Gee, I was dead! It was Mr Crowley and he kept us laughing all the way into town. Talked with us all the way. Maybe that isn't news at all, but I thought I'd come in, because we wrote a letter of sorrow to his house when he died."

10 CANDIDATES GET BOSTON MAYORALTY PAPERS

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Three cheers for the young Democrats in convention assembled at Kansas City, and a tiger for Master Edward Lee, who stood up on his hind legs and advised his youthful contemporaries that he was blamed if he thought it was the intention of the convention to give up all its time to the subordinates, underlings, assistants and chair-warmers of the administration to tell how good the administration is.

Apparently the young Democrats had called their first convention with the idea of getting down to brass tacks and saying something. But either the program committee was unimaginative and conventional and lazy, thereby making up its program with the least trouble to itself. Or — and this is quite possible — the program committee was neatly and efficiently taken into camp by the administration's political scouts, with the result that the program was loaded with speech after speech by party wheelhorses holding down minor jobs—all with the object of telling how good F. D. R. and the NRA are.

* * *

It was after an address on the C. C. C. work by the director of the Emergency Conservation Work that the storm broke. The Young Democrats looked at their programs and saw that they were due for addresses by the assistant secretary of war, the publicity director of the NRA, the secretary of the special industrial board, the assistant secretary of labor, the special assistant commissioner of agriculture, and other visiting firemen. They had already heard a "keynote" address by the governor of Indiana. Flesh and blood could stand no more.

So Edward Lee of Minnesota [illegible] the new Declaration of Independence—applicable to every kind of convention, business and industrial as well as political:

I want to know how long we are going to sit here and listen to all these set speeches by these men from Washington. Are we going to spend three days here on a set program like this, when we came here to discuss problems close to the hearts of young men and women in the Democratic movement? We all want to make this country Democratic. But we are going to lose that opportunity if we have to come here and face all these empty seats."

* * *

Apparently the Young Democrats were walking out on the office holders. The attendance got so small that the other speeches were postponed and the convention adjourned. Presumably it took up again later as a debating forum.

I will say this in defense of the program makers. It is true that most set speeches on business or political subjects are weary, flat, stale and unprofitable, deadly dull and repetitive, simply because the speakers themselves have little new to say and say it very monotonously and stupidly. That is the kind of speaking to be expected from most politicians and business men. Yet let a single man with something real to say, a touch of oratorical ability and a personality of his own, get up to speak and he will hold an audience far more closely than any amateur discussion.

The trouble with the kind of unscheduled discussion which young Mr. Edward Lee of Minnesota proposes is that it is likely to be quite as bad, as dull, as futile, as the set speeches. The chances are that a few highly vocal youngsters will hold the floor, their debates will degenerate into backchat, if not actual wrangling, the discussion will spin like a teetotum without getting anywhere, and the more silent and thoughtful part of the audience will be almost as bored and disgusted as they are by the professional political apologists.

Such a free discussion from the floor needs a chairman of positive genius to control it, steer it, keep it going in an ascertainable direction, encourage the silent ones who have something to say, shut off the embryo Ciceros, Websters and Huey Longs, and arrive at some conclusion capable of being phrased in a brief and pungent resolution expressing the will of the assembly. And such geniuses are rare.

* * *

I have a better scheme. Old Dr. Rogers, the political diagnostician! The Young Democrats should have arranged a program of set speeches—but by eminent Republicans and former office-holders. A series of speeches by former Postmaster Brown, Ogden Mills, Pat Hurley, Charlie Curtis, Reed Smoot, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and even Mr. Hoover himself, if obtainable.

Those speeches would have been listened to with interest! The discussion period that followed would have had a quality all its own. Young Democrats would have reached heights of oratory hitherto undreamed of. They would have gone home at adjournment time all hot and lathered, sweating pure Democracy at every pore. And the present administration would have profited. At present it looks to be quite unpopular.

AUTO CRASHES TAKE TOLL OF SIX LIVES

Deaths Reach 8, With 2 Drownings, Over Holiday Week-End

Eight persons were dead today, victims of auto and drowning accidents marking the wettest Labor Day in years, featured by a downpour which ruined week-end parties, depressed returning vacationists and caused heavy losses to resort proprietors. Total number of fatalities for the week-end was 25.

Ball games and other sporting events were called off, beaches were deserted, and thousands of persons who had planned to make trips over the holiday, stayed at home.

TEACHER DROWNED

The dead were:

Balfe, Edward, 40, of 58 Lonsdale st., Dorchester, drowned in Lake Contocook, Rindge, N. H.

Balfe, teacher of commercial law at the Dorchester boys' high school, and his wife had gone out in a boat for a last fishing expedition before starting home from their vacation. When they failed to return a search was started which revealed the boat anchored off shore and a man's raincoat floating nearby. Balfe's body was recovered shortly afterward, but that of his wife was not found.

TRUCK FALL FATAL

Boslene was killed at Brookfield by a fall from a truck. Ferreira lost his life at East Norton when a truck which was in gear, backed over him at a barbecue when its owner started it. Gabrielle, who died at Greenwich, Ct., was fatally injured Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger was in collision with a truck.

Miss Gallagher died at Bennington, Vt., from injuries received when the auto in which she was a passenger overturned. Snow and Wood, his employe, were instantly killed at Caribou, Me., when a train struck their auto.

Four Pinned Under Auto in Skidding

Gloucester, Sept. 5—Four Gloucester men were seriously injured today on Eastern ave., near the Calvary cemetery, when their automobile skidded and overturned, pinning all four beneath the car.

They were taken to Addison Gilbert Hospital. The car was operated by Thomas J. McDonnell, 31, of Woodbury st., Gloucester. The others were Joseph E. Morgan, 2[illegible], Robert Mackey, 27, of Harrison ave., and John J. Ahearne, [illegible], of Washington st., all of Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER TO FIGHT SHIFT OF AIR BASE

Fishermen Want Better Protection of N. E. Coastline

Plans [illegible] extended patrol of the sea [illegible] were revealed today in a move [illegible] coast guard officials for an [illegible] aviation base in New E[illegible] to replace the quarters now at Gloucester.

Ten [illegible] island at Gloucester, where one amphibian and a seaplane [illegible] now quartered, will be abandoned under the plan because the area there would not be enough to care for the new plane.

FISHERMEN TO FIGHT

Through Congressman A. Piatt Andrew a move already is under way for establishment of the base at Fort Pickering, Salem Harbor, part of which has been ceded to the city of Salem for years.

The move is opposed by others who would locate the new base at a point near the easterly tip of Long Island, N. Y. Fishermen and other seafaring men of Gloucester have announced they will fight such a plan, however, on the grounds that it would be too far removed for protection along the northern portion of New England.

READY TO CEDE LAND

Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, commander of the Coast Guard forces, already has been apprised of the location at Fort Pickering and is said to have been favorably impressed.

Congressman Andrew has pointed out the strategic advantage of that point to government officials and has been assured by them officials that the part of the island ceded to the city could be turned back at a short notice for such a development.

3 BREAK JAIL, 1 GIVES UP

Within a few hours after three alleged auto thieves escaped early today from police headquarters in Williamstown, one of the trio walked into police headquarters in Auburn, N. Y., and surrendered, according to word received at Boston police headquarters.

The three who fled the Williamstown cell room were: Howard Jones, 23; Edward Ta[illegible], 2[illegible], and John McCann, 27, all of Williamstown. Their escape was made by sawing the bars of the cell room window.

When Jones surrendered to the Auburn police he declared he had been forced to flight by the other two, who are armed with revolvers and who said they were going to New York.

He will have to walk a straight line for 400 yards from the home of Commodore James A. Tower to a point in the wooded section of Annisquam.

It seems that Commodore Tower's pet crow took a trip to the front piazza of the chief and snatched the favorite T. D. Fifteen days passed.

Then the crow was found by a man in the wooded section and was returned to Commodore Tower. All was very well until Chief Taylor called for his pipe, but in vain.

'BUY AMERICAN' CAMPAIGN ENDORSED BY BOSTON LEADERS

SEPTEMBER PURCHASE PLAN WINS CURLEY'S FAVOR

Drive to Give Business New Momentum Viewed as Means of NRA Success by Congressman McCormack

The "Buy in September and Buuy American" movement of the Hearst newspapers was endorsed and lauuded by leading speakers in Boston's observance of Labor Day.

Mayor Curley, Congressman John W. McCormack and President James T. Moriarty of the Massachusetts branch, American Federation of Labor, gave their support to the program.

"I commend certain Boston newspapers for the great 'Buy in September' campaign as a means of insuring the success of the NRA," said Congressman McCormack.

"I urge everyone to buy in September and buy American. I ask business men, the consumer and every loyal American to co-operate with the NRA."

Congressman McCormack, Mayor Curley and President Moriarty spoke at the Boston Central Labor Union observance.

"We are co-operating in every way with the NRA and are living up to its every provision," said Moriarty. "But I see that the president of the National Chamber of Commerce recommends a a change in that law.

"I say to the national president, go along with this law. I say to you, forget your banking interests and support this progressive measure. Let us forget our differences and remember that we are Americans first.

This is the time to wipe out all company unions, to wipe out all private unions. I invite all workers to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, that we may benefit by the NRA and take out of this depression our American industry.

In a buying rush comparable to the pre-Christmas shopping period, Boston stores were crowded today as the "Buy in September" movement gained momentum. At Slattery's, Margaret C. Thompson of Cambridge was shown a mink coat by Saleslady Jane Martin.

Great Rush of Shoppers in 'Buy Now' Drive

By PEGGY DOYLE

A shopping-day of Christmas-holiday magnitude today will usher in the greatest September sales throughout Boston's department store area since 1928, store officials confidently predict.

A. W. Ackermann, president of Houghton and Dutton's, has increased his selling force 30 per cent, he announced, to take care of an influx of shoppers unprecedented for this time of year. Hundreds of additional sales people have been employed by Jordan Marsh Company within the last week, according to a store executive. Both these organizations it was further stated yesterday, will continue to increase their sales force as the season advances.

RECORD SALES SEEN

"We expect September's sales in our house furnishings department to break all records in the past five years," said the dynamic president of Houghton and Dutton's, yesterday, after lauding the Boston American's "Buy in September and Buy American" movement in connection with the NRA campaign to put millions of unemployed men and women back to work in this country.

"The shopper who spends money now saves it, because his dollar is worth more than it will be and he can get more for it. Our present stock has been purchased at the lowest prices and when it is depleted, as we expect it to be by the end of the month, we are going to have to pay more for our merchandise and so will our customers."

According to a Jordan Marsh executive, people know that prices are going up and they have already begun to purchase necessities and, in some instances, even luxuries they denied themselves during the late and anything but lamented depression.

SCHOOL SALES HEAVY

"Our after-Labor-Day sale will continue throughout the week," he said, "and it will include a countless number of excellent values. As a matter of fact, our kitchen ware sale is the greatest ever presented in New England with prices less than present wholesale prices."

The Federal Reserve Bank, in a report recently released, reveals actual proof of this revived purchasing power. The report, which was prepared following a sales survey in 30 representative stores, members of the Retail Trade Board, shows that during the week ending Aug. 26 sales were 22 per cent greater than during the same week in 1923. From Aug. 1 to Aug. 26 sales were 20 per cent higher than during the same 26 days of last year, according to the survey.

Today's early shoppers included Mrs Theodore Browne of Hinsdale, Ill., who is visiting friends in Boston. She outfitted her strapping young son, Edward, for the coming school days in the boys' wear department at Jordan Marsh Company. The salesman who waited on her confided that he had sold $300 worth of merchandise one day last week and that he'll "tell the world business is picking up."

Another youngster, who'll be dressed "fit to kill" when she returns to school, is little Miss Patsy Corning, whose mother, Mrs. G. T. Corning, 11 Orchard Circle, Phillips Beach, purchased a complete school outfit for her.

BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN

Spitalny Composes 'Buy Now' March

New York, Sept. 5—Classic and popular music joined yesterday to advance the movement to Buy In September And Buy American.

Phil Spitalny, who composed the Blue Eagle March, wrote a stirring new march, "Buy Now," dedicated to William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst newspapers, which started the movement. The new march will be played by Spitalny and his orchestra this week in Washington.

Sophie Braslau, former prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who sang recently at the Lewiston Stadium, also joined the Buy Now appeal. Miss Braslau said,

"Women are not generally employers. They cannot win the Blue Eagle by putting people on their payrolls.

"What they can do is to open the purse strings and buy what they can in the month of September. That is just as real a contribution to the new deal as opening an idle factory or hiring a larger force of workers.

"Women should join the campaign of the Hearst newspapers to Buy in September, to buy under the Blue Eagle, and to buy the products of American workers."

Spend and Produce Jobs Slogan Wins Friends

By WINIFRED BLACK

San Francisco, Sept. 5—"Happy Days Are Here Again!" Did you hear the band at the head of the big parade yesterday?

On the faces along the curb, as the parade went by, the look of doubt and worry and sadness lifted.

Yes, the faces were sad—and what wonder. Why pretend any longer?

We couldn't talk about it, when we were back there in the dark woods, mired down with depression. Now that we're getting out of the woods let's smile and lift up our heads and sing, "I Love You, California," and show the world what we intend to do out here on the Pacific.

What do we intend to do—why, that's simple.

We intend to stand together, shoulder to shoulder, and whatever comes we're going to take it—together.

We're going to buy now, and help make jobs for people who haven't had a good square meal in months.

And we're going to give them that work, you and I, and the rest of the plain everyday folks we know and understand and love.

It's up to us—it's your business, and my business.

POLITE BANDIT IN LYNN COURT

Politeness may be a virtue, but it did not save Gustave Clough, 24, recently of China Lake, Me., from arrest on a charge of holding up and robbing a pajama-clad young matron in her Broad st., Lynn, apartment.

Clough was to appear in Lynn court today charged with the armed robbery of Mrs. Betty Read, of $30. She told police she admitted Clough to her apartment thinking he was her husband who had gone out on an errand.

Mrs. Read said Clough was very polite and did not gaze at the pajamas in which she had just gotten out of bed. Nevertheless she said he pointed a gun at her and forced her to get the money from a pocketbook. Her description was so good that police picked up Clough.

Society Yawl Is Floated Again

Woods Hole, Sept. 5—The yawl Nimbus, which went aground in the harbor during the storm, was hauled off and put out to sea today with Mr. and Mrs. DeCoursey Fale, socially prominent New Yorkers, who were taken off her by the Coast Guard at the time of the mishap. Nimbus, owned by Robert Jacob of New York and chartered to the Fales, was undamaged.

Two Boston Bankers in National Body

Chicago, Sept. 5 (INS)—Robert E. Christie, Jr., of Dillon, Read Co., was chosen president of the Investment Bankers' Assocation of America by the board of governors of the organization, it was announced today. Christie was a captain in the air service in the army during the war.

Governors selected for a three-year term included: Orrin C. Wood, Estabrook & Co., Boston.

No Porter in School, First Time Since '85

'BUY AMERICAN' MOVE WINS CONVERTS

New York, Sept. 5—Public officials, acting in concert, responded heartily to the appeal of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson to support the NRA through the buy in September—Buy American movement.

Mayor O'Brien has given assurances he will issue a proclamation today, setting aside the month of September as "Buy now—buy American month."

Maj.-Gen. Nolan, in charge of the great NRA parade, Sept. 13, which Mayor O'Brien has proclaimed a half holiday, promised that banners with the message of the movement would be given prominent positions in the parade.

These banners will carry the message of the Hearst newspapers, "BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN."

San Francisco, Sept. 5—Mobilized in the cause of national recovery, the hosts of labor paraded through the streets of San Francisco yesterday, matching their pace to the wings of the Blue Eagle.

It was labor enlisted in the Nation's cause, for on every hand flashed the watchwords of the recovery fight—"Buy in September," "Buy American," "Buy Under the Blue Eagle," "Spend a Dollar and Make a Job."

Chicago, Sept. 5—Refreshed by a three-day vacation, several hundred thousand residents of Chicago and surrounding suburbs returned to their homes to rally to the Blue Eagle emblem of the NRA in earnest.

Families, everywhere, have come to realize that the success of the National Recovery program depends upon the consumer. The slogan Buy in September — Buy American and Create Another Job —is on the lips of every housewife.

BOUVIER WILL STAY IN SHOE UNION FIGHT

Haverhill, Sept. 5—Omer Bouvier, who, with Daniel M. Fitzgerald and Edward R. Gleason of this city are candidates for general president of the Shoe Workers Protective Union, opposing John D. Nolan of Boston, seeking re-election, stated today he is to continue in the fight.

Bouvier, who has been actively connected with the union for more than 20 years, and is now agent for three locals, Finishers 1, Turnworkmen 2 and Edgemakers 4, was formerly an assistant to District Manager Charles E. Persons and in charge of Locals 1, 4 and Woodheelers, 13. He is also secretary and trustee of the Shoe Workers Protective Union Building Association.

Fitzgerald is a former general secretary-treasurer of the union, with headquarters in Boston, and is a member of McKay and Welt Workers Local 8. Gleason for several years has been a collector for the union in this city.

Fitbgerald and Gleason will also undoubtedly remain in the battle for general president, although there have been rumors of possible withdrawals by some of the candidates.

Bouvier declared today that he will receive strong support for the office not only in Haverhill, which has about 10,000 union members, but in Nashua, Derry, Manchester, N. H., and other sections.

The election will take place Friday, November 10, when the members of all union locals throughout the country will vote for general president and for members of the general council or resident committee. The union now has nearly 30,000 members, it having been largely increased the past eight months due to the formation of new locals in many sections, and the reinstatement of hundreds of Haverhill members during the March strike.

Girl Hurt in Crash Treated in Haverhill

Haverhill, Sept. 5—Lear Pellerin of Lisbon, N. H., reported to police here that as he was driving through East Kingston, N. H., his car was sideswiped by another machine, the registration number of which he failed to obtain and that Miss Ferman Rodrique, 23, of Spruce st., Lewiston, Me., sustained injuries to her knee. She was treated here by Dr. Frederick Radcliffe.

By AUSTEN LAKE

Mr. Chairman: I rise to make a few remarks on football, now that we are past Labor Day and the college players who have been toting ice, digging post holes and laying bricks for the summer are reporting back for early instruction on character building, manly ideals and self sacrifice. Already Holy Cross, Boston College and Northeastern are in the field and within the week coaches and officials are meeting in Boston and New York to discuss the rules and start a new campaign against football injuries

You know, Mr. Chairman, that "clipping" has always been one of the nasty words in football and counted the source of more disabling injuries than any other practice in the game. And when the rules committee last winter forbade interferers from striking opponents from the rear, any part of the rear, instead of merely below the knees as formerly, it was intended to stamp out all forms of hamstringing forever and completely. And by reducing the penalty from 25 yards to 15 yards the committee hoped that officials who hitherto had contracted sudden cases of cinder-in-the-eye when clipping occurred right under their noses, would have their sight restored. For we all know that benevolent or timid officials disliked to enforce a 25-yard punishment even when they were able to tell whether a rear block had been thrown above or below the knees, which was sometimes difficult.

There was a time, not so many years ago, when clipping was free and practiced openly, so much so that coaches taught their men to dive across the hocks of any opponent left standing while the ball was in play, no matter on what section of the field or how far away from the center of action. It was "good football," a phrase that used to cover a good deal of unnecessary roughness.

Players going down the field to cover punts developed swivel necks from twisting their heads around to watch their rears as they ran. Complaints and injuries were frequent, and the best that officials of that day could do was to admonish the injured player that "after all, football is a rough game and you must expect to be hurt now and then."

The Committee Does Something About Clipping

Several years ago the committee sat down and remarked that it was going to settle this business of clipping once and for all and slapped on a punishment of 25 yards from the spot where the offense was committed. And the committee rubbed its hands and said, "There, that'll hold those guys for a while." But somehow clipping still went on to a large extent, partly because of the ignorance of the players and partly due to reluctance of officials to plaster 25 yards or loss of ball against a team so far up field

But the coaches did not appreciate the tender heartedness of the officials, especially when it was one of their men who had been clipped, and one recalls hearing many shrill squawks coming from the benches, accompanied by windmill gestures. The usual phrasing in such cases was, "My God, didn't you see my end cut down from behind?" To which the official's reply was usually a [illegible]

Of course, the coaches and spectators often suffer delusions of what has actually taken place on the field, owing to the angles [illegible] And most of the officials were befogged by the subtle line between clipping and non-clipping, since it was clipping if an interferer threw himself across an opponent's stern between knees and ankles, but it was not clipping if he struck the man a fraction of an inch above the knee joint, although it was clipping again in the latter case if he struck his man high and inadvertently fell across his calves on the rebound.

So that officials were inclined to pause in their decisions and stand gnawing the nipples of their horns and whistles while saying, "Now, was that clipping or wasn't it? I wonder." And the moment that an official begins to temporize and debate with himself, he has failed the decision and gradually develops a glow of philosophy which causes him to say "O, well That one was close and could be called either way. I'll let it go and watch for the next one."

Professionals Separating From the Mother Game

This fall the rules have done away with all subtleties about what is and what is not clipping. If a blocker jams against any part of his opponent's rear between the top of his head and his heels, he is automatically guilty of clipping. So that in the games that start three weeks hence there will be no excuse for officials gnawing the nipples of their horns and whistles and saying, "Now I wonder?" Although there will always be a certain amount of benevolent officials who will develop cinder-in-the-eye when violations occur within scoring radius and who, rather than take the onus of calling a painful penalty, will turn their spines to the scene and occupy their minds with more pleasant thoughts

Yet the professional football rules still enforce the 25-yard clipping penalty, just as the pro code this year is setting up a number of rules that differ from the intercollegiate code. For example, the colleges have the goal posts at the rear of the end zone, and the pros have theirs on the goal line And the colleges do not permit a forward pass to be launched less than five yards behind the scrimmage line, while the pros permit it anywhere behind the line

For this fall marks the parting of the ways between the college rules and the pro rules, and the establishment of commercial football as a separate identity which is as independent of the mother college game as major league baseball is from scholastic baseball. Hitherto the professionals accepted the decisions of the intercollegiate committee as a commandment from on high. But you will find, within a few years, that the pros, who have no obligations to the parents of their players, or to finnicky graduate managers, will have a set of rules that has small kinship to the college set.

One remembers what roars of laughter the old story of Joe Pendleton, Boston's veteran official, used to provoke Joe was about to referee a Sunday game between two independent football clubs and gathering the captains for the coin toss, he said, "Now are you playing professional rules or college rules? I know them both." For, at the time, there were only college rules and Joe merely wanted to know whether free hand slugging and go-as-you-please dirty work was mutually agreed upon.

That day, except on the hard scrabble back lots, is gone forever, and the pros, as exampled by the Braves of last year and the Redskins of this, adhere as closely to their rules as the colleges do to theirs, and for the most part the same set of officials handle both games.

BRAVES ABANDON FLAG HOPES IN RACE FOR SECOND PLACE

CHANNEL WORK SOUGHT TO AID YACHTSMEN

By E. B. SCHRIFTGIESSER

Hopes and plans for future development [illegible] waters gave the [illegible] at the Winthrop Yacht Club an unusual significance this year.

Commodore [illegible] whose [illegible] annual races over the Labor Day week-end were again brought to a successful conclusion, is looking toward the future. Among [illegible] ambitions [illegible] the channel that leads to the club float, so that deeper craft [illegible] boats can navigate the [illegible] safety. [illegible] Idala, which served as the committee boat during the regatta just clears [illegible] and craft drawing [illegible] six feet must wait a favorable tide to make the landing.

MAY DREDGE CHANNEL

Hinging upon the possibility of dredging the Winthrop channel, a matter which local authorities are to take up with the Legislature in the fall, are plans for a new racing class at Winthrop next season.

A [illegible] committee and other club members have investigated various types of boats, and if prices remain reasonable it is safe to count on the inauguration of a class of keel racing knockabouts under the double crescent burgee another summer.

The class of Winthrop 15-footers have served their purpose and have passed out of the picture and the Winthrop Hustlers fast boats of the cat boat type, are now sailed almost wholly by youngsters. Winthrop needs a [illegible] of racing yachts and will probably [illegible] that need before [illegible] next June.

As for this year's regatta, it was a great success in spite of varying winds and weather. Yesterday the downpour kept the number of starters down, but even so 76 boats crossed the starting line and all classes but one finished before the wind died. [illegible] delicate yachting [illegible] meanwhile were postponing their next to last Corinthian race.

Prizes at Winthrop [illegible] ed on [illegible] entire three days of racing. Two ties developed which will be sailed off later the Oriental and the Sally having 15 points each in the Manchester I Class, and the Vision and the Tip knotting the score in the Star class.

JENKINS WINS

Ed Jenkins in the Marilyn took the older Marconi I Class trophy, while Chet McClintock's Gypsy sailed by [illegible] Cottage Park [illegible] Other trophy winners follow: Crane 15-footers, the Spidon, owned by White and Carlson; Winthrop 15-footers Harry Burroughs' Prancer, Winthrop Hustlers, Custer Edwards' Hupset, Snipe Class, Bill Aicardi's O. K., Coot Class Johnny Nugent's Corsair; Snowbirds Wendell Davis' Kingbird Handicap Class, Harlan Smith's Norma, Quincy Cats, Al Helrich's Dorothy.

Bob Dalrymple, finishing fourth yesterday among 26 Indian Dories, clinched the season's cock of the walk pennant in that division for his fast little vessel Firewater.

During the morning young Rendle McNamara sailed his father's Indian boat Tammany to a first place in the junior races and won the Norman Gray trophy, a fancy stop-watch, passing Babe Van Dalen on the point score. The South Boston Y. C. forces proved too great for Squantum.

Zbyszko, Linnehan on Revere Mat

Karol Zbyszko of Poland, member of the famous Polish wrestling brothers, will attempt to carry on the prestige that belongs to the family name when he stacks up against George Linnehan in the main bout of Alex McLean's weekly show at Rollaway Rink, Revere Beach, tonight.

Mike Romano, will be tested by Jean Le Deaux, huge Frenchman in a 30-minute semifinal.

In the special bout, Boris Demetroff, faces Nick Costa.

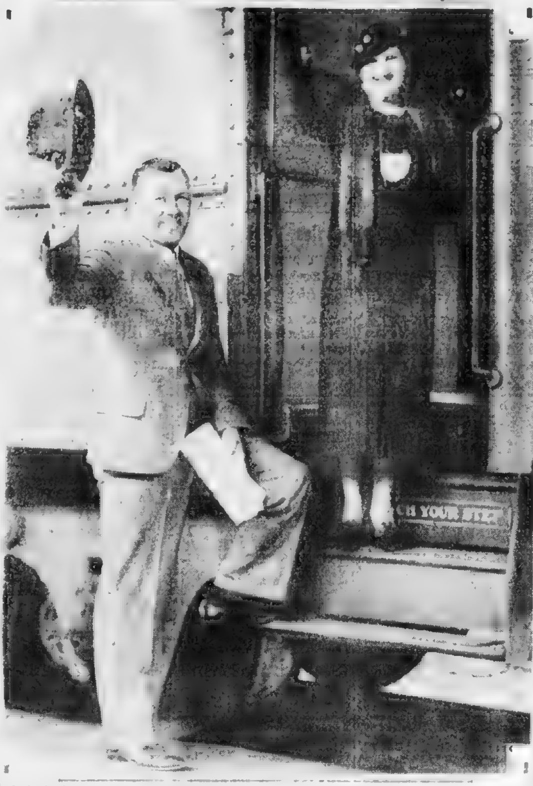
ON TRAIL OF KING LEVINSKY



Jack Sharkey and the missus left for Chicago today, Jack to fight King Levinsky and the missus to see the World's Fair and go shopping. Sharkey has planned an active career in his attempted comeback. Should he be successful in defeating the king, he will next single out Tommy Loughran, whom he knocked out in New York.

Sharkey Off to Chicago to Meet Levinksy

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey left for Chicago today in the first step of a new ring campaign which he confidently believes will terminate with a victory over Primo Carnera. Sharkey will clash with King Levinsky in a ten-round bout at Comiskey Field, Chicago, on Sept. 15 under the direction of Sammy Wolff. Sharkey must win from Levinsky if he is to remain as a heavyweight contender.

The former champion was accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey, Al Lacy, his trainer, and Chester Maytan, a sparring partner. Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, was at the train to see the former champion leave, but will not depart for Chicago until Thursday. Tony Palazola, another one of Sharkey's trainers, will join the [illegible]

Sharkey said he weighed 201 pounds and that he was in the best [illegible] he has been in [illegible]

"I have been training for three weeks and am ready to fight right now," said Sharkey. "I shall resume training in Trafton's gym in Chicago tomorrow. Levinsky is young, strong and a good puncher. I must be at my best to win.

"I am anxious to lick Levinsky in decisive style and then defeat Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia on Sept. 27. If I win these bouts, I shall then be prepared to sign for a meeting with Max Baer or Primo Carnera."

While in Chicago Sharkey will make his headquarters at the Edgewater Beach hotel. This was the place Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor lived at the time of the Dempsey-Tunney bout at Chicago.

Donald Martin of Newton winner of this tournament for the past two years, who has two legs on the Mayor Curley's trophy is seeded No. 1 with Walter Levitan second and Maynard Walsberg third. The other seeded players are Edward Murphy fourth, Sumner Redman fifth, Leon Bayard sixth, George Gloss, seventh, and Howard Brown, seeded eighth.

GRIFFITHS IS 10-8 CHOICE

Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago has been installed a 10 to 8 favorite for his ten-round bout with Tony Shucco of the North End, which will open the new Burke Sporting Club at Mechanics Building tomorrow night.

Griffiths stated that in the event he wins from Shucco he will try to secure a Boston bout with Jack Sharkey.

Shucco is of the opinion [illegible] and speed will enable him to outscore the rugged Griffiths.

Giants Grid Team in Training

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 5 (INS)—With 28 players on hand, Coach Steve Owen of the New York football Giants, began the second day of practice here today. Two workouts daily until Saturday is planned by the Giants' coach.

Harry Newman, former Michigan ace and Max Krause of Gonzaga were among the missing at the opening session yesterday.

Levinsky Must Lose Seven More Pounds

Grand Beach, Mich., Sept. [illegible] (INS)—King Levinsky, the eccentric Chicago heavyweight, has seven more pounds to lose before meeting Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion, in Chicago a week from Friday night.

The most strenuous training grind he has undergone since he gave up fish hawking has already melted 17 pounds from Levinsky's frame, said "Doc" Casey, his conditioner.

QUINN LAMENTS IN SYMPATHY WITH YAWKEY

By DAVID F. EGAN

Mr. Bob Quinn, who was president of the Red Sox until early this season, sighed sadly.

Mr. Bob Quinn has been sighing [illegible] this establishing a precedent among Red Sox owners.

He sighed when he first glanced at inept young pupils like Ike Boone and Oscar Rube and Tom Winsett.

He [illegible] the beaters were rained out. He didn't cry, you understand, and he didn't put on a long face or carry on in a babyish manner. He simply sighed that he had [illegible] the county for a few years and figured that it was his luck to be a loser.

YAWKEY A MARTYR

There are born winners you know, and there are born losers, too, because if one fellow wins, another one has to lose. And Bob Quinn thought that he had tasted the dregs of misfortune. So he sold out to young Tom Yawkey, and Yawkey inherited all the misfortunes that afflicted Quinn, plus several additional misfortunes that just popped up.

For example, they had a date to play an exhibition in Buffalo. So then everybody got hurt in Cleveland, and nobody was speaking to anybody else, because of the general disgust at the situation, and they decided not to play that game of night ball in Buffalo. So those who hadn't seen Niagara Falls were disappointed, but Secretary Phillip Troy described it to them, and all was set.

All was set, that is, but it cost Mr. Yawkey $5000 at least, for night baseball in Buffalo was drawing great crowds at the time and still may be.

Your envoy is not going to mention the injuries to Pipgras and the Johnson boys and all the rest of them. That is water over the dam. In fact damn water over the dam.

But the Red Sox were rained out on the holiday which cost Mr. Yawkey a few more bucks and stirred Mr. Bob Quinn into his oration. He heaved a vicarious sigh for Mr. Yawkey, he did, for Mr. Quinn knows how it feels to take it on the chin whiskers.

The season is over so far as the results are concerned. The Giants, after their splendid showing against the Braves, are firmly in first place. The Senators are even more firmly entrenched.

But the Sox are playing out their string, simply because Foreman Marty McManus and Coach Rudy Hulswitt never stop trying to win ball games. They come from the hard-bitten tight-lipped old school of baseball and with Joe Judge in there snapping his curt commands to the youngsters, they form a front that would be the envy of many a team.

Judge is still pale and weak from the grippe, but he said that he'd play today. McManus was to play second. They're the type that write baseball history.

Columbus Star Is Bought by Cubs

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today announced the purchase of Ed Lee, right handed pitcher, from the Columbus Club of the American Association.

William Veek, president of the Cubs, said Lee would report in the Spring. He said the purchase involved cash and one or more players, the players to be named later.

An outstanding pitcher in the minor leagues, Lee has won 21 games and lost nine for the league leading Columbus Club. He is 24 years old, six feet three inches tall, and weighs 195 pounds.

Hauser Now Holds Home Run Record

Minneapolis, Sept. 5—Joe Hauser, Minneapolis American Association first baseman, today held the home-run record for organized baseball by hitting his 63d, 64th and 65th homers in a doubleheader with St. Paul. His old record was 63, made with Baltimore in 1930.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

I find renewed interest in the boxing game. The ring game was one of the last sports to feel the depression, but when it did, boxing hit a new low with almost every show. Conditions finally reached a stage where only a handful of promoters were making enough money to pay off their ushers and box office men. The natural result of this condition was that many clubs closed their doors.

Mr. Boston

Boston suffered with the rest of the country. The Argonne A. A. folded up and Eddie Mack, its matchmaker retreated to Rockingham Park where he found gold in the horse racing game. The Boston Garden tried "New Talent" shows which [illegible] back of the shows was all right, but the public didn't go for such [illegible] showing in a building which was erected to house $50,000 attractions. So other than when it was able to secure an occasional first class attraction the Garden passed out of the boxing business.

Maybe it's the NRA or possibly a decision on the part of some of our noble fighters to work at their trade, but I believe we have a very busy boxing season right around the corner.

Bobby Burke has opened a brand new boxing club at Mechanics Building. He intends to get the best possible matches, and will stage shows every week if possible.

Burke has a particularly strong card for his opening show tomorrow night. In the feature ten-round bout, Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago will oppose Tony Shucco of the North End. They used to refer to Griffiths as the "New Stanley Ketchell." His aggressiveness and punch sent him out front in the heavyweight parade.

Shucco is a better boxer than Griffiths. He does not thump as hard as the Chicago heavyweight, but he is faster and is not as easy to hit. Griffiths and Shucco have opposite styles, and as a result should furnish a rather lively skirmish. I would like to see Promoter Burke get off to a good start as his club should help develop our boxers.

Petrolle Against Fuller

The ten round bout between Billy Petrolle, Fargo Express, and Sammy Fuller of the North End at the Garden on Friday night should produce a punching duel. Petrolle is my idea of one of the most rugged scrappers in the world. The fellow is a miniature Dempsey. He keeps walking forward every second he is in there, and throws a great deal of leather. He is liable to knock out anybody he nails on jaw with his heavy left hook.

"I shall try to bring Fuller into the ring at 138 pounds," Kelley told me. "The weight for the bout is 144 pounds, but I would not care to have Sammy up around that notch. It would mean he would be slow and easy to hit. At 138 pounds Fuller will have all of his strength, and will also retain his speed.

"Petrolle always keeps going forward which means he will be nailed on the chin by one of Fuller's punches. I would not be surprised if Fuller wins by a knockout."

Brouillard's Title Bout

As announced exclusively in this column last Saturday, Lou Brouillard will make his first defense of the world's middleweight championship in this city. He will clash with either Vince Dundee or Benny Yaroze at the Garden the latter part of October. Dundee and Yaroze will meet this month in New York, and the victor will get the Boston match with Brouillard.

Jack Sharkey will also probably appear in a bout at the Boston Garden. He will be opposed by Steve Hamas, Dan Cornkindale or some other well known heavyweight.

Sharkey left for Chicago this morning to finish training for his ten-round tussle with King Levinsky which will be held on September 15. Al Lacy left the Hub with Sharkey. Tony Palazola, who has been with Sharkey since the Wills fight, will leave New York for Chicago today.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, will start for Chicago on Thursday. Sharkey will return to Boston for a day's visit with his family after his engagement with Levinsky, and will then go to Philadelphia to finish his training for his 15-round tussle with Tommy Loughran on September 27.

It looks as if things are picking up in the Cauliflower industry.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

George Hall, chairman of the tournament committee, is making an eleventh hour drive to fill a few vacancies in the Charles River member and guest invitation, which starts tomorrow. Due to late withdrawals, Chairman Hall has been suffering from headaches over the holiday but now believes that he is on the road to recovery and that a capacity field will tee off on the morrow.

George Sexton, who, while teamed with Bobby Hopkins, went to the 19th hole in the finals against Eddie Murphy and Jack Drake, will be missed at Charles River this week. George contracted blood poisoning last winter and has been out of the game all season.

Frank Craven and Pat Mullaney comprise one of the strongest teams in the field at Charles River. Paired with Dr. Owen Keefe, Waltham, Craven won the member and guest invitation three years ago and he believes that he will go places this year with Pat Mullaney, who has few peers as a comer through when pressure is applied.

Get in touch with Johnny Ford at Canton 0353 and make your reservations for starting times for the Blue Hill Country Club open tournament which begins on Thursday and continues through Saturday.

Norma Yeaton is the pride of Beverly since she brought the girls' junior championship title to the North Shore. Although there are some fine golfers on the northern side of the metropolis, they have not brought home any state titles. Therefore Norma Yeaton, queen of the girl golfers of the state, is fully deserving of the many honors she has received since she supplanted Virginia Bascom, the supposedly unbeatable champion.

Within twenty four hours all of the New England qualifiers for the national amateur championship will have departed for Cincinnati. Of the nine New England representatives, at least three and possibly four should reach match play.

In order to build up the strength he lost defending his state title at Worcester, playing in the New Englands at Manchester and the 36-hole qualifying rounds at Brae Burn, Eddie Kirouac put aside his clubs for a fortnight and has benefited by the lay off.

Providing his health is normal, Eddie Kirouac is a sure qualifier at Kenwood. Because he plays with his head as well as with his clubs, Eddie is a fine medal player. He has qualified in every championship he has played and if Cincinnati is the exception it will be because his stamina, not his game, let him down.

There may be something important back of Francis Ouimet's withdrawal from the Charles River invitation. Francis was to have played with Ray Van Arsdale, but notified George Hall that he would be unable to play.

Will he play at Cincinnati?

WESTERN SWING TEST GROUND FOR ROOKIE

By JOE CASHMAN

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 5—Westward wends the course of the National League pennant race today with our Braves heading for Chicago via this Hoosier hamlet, where they are stopping off to play and exhibition game and permit "Pinky" Hargrave to visit his family up on Main st.

The only interest left in the race is the fight for second place. The Giants nailed the 1933 bunting securely to the mast during the late and lamented series at the Wigwam. Nothing but an earthquake can stop the New York entry now and our best scientists can discover no signs of such a catastrophe [illegible] the wide open spaces before the end of the month.

FORGET THE ROOF

The Warriors will tell you that the flag hasn't been won yet, but they're smart enough to forget the roof and make the runner-up berth their goal, as they prepare for 19 road games against the Cubs, Cards, Pirates, Reds, Phils and Giants.

New England fans had such high hopes of the pennant before the Giants reached the Wigwam they naturally, will find this news hard to swallow. Yet those who are honest with themselves must admit that the Tribe has nothing to be ashamed of and will do remarkably well if it can finish second, or even third.

Frankly it's not surprising that the McKechniemen haven't done better, but greatly surprising that they have done so well. A month ago it seemed they couldn't get out of the second division. On Thursday last they had an outside chance of gaining the title and if they could have forced a break and beaten Carl Hubbell in the first game of Friday's doubleheader, they might have swept the series. As it was, the worst they should have had was an even split in the engagement.

They provided Boston with its greatest and most unexpected baseball thrill in 15 years and it would have been glorious if they could have reached the pinnacle, if only for a day, but they far exceeded all expectations in getting as close as they did.

Fortunately for themselves the Tribesmen realize this. While they're disappointed of course over their failure against the Giants, they're far from being demoralized knowing they have no reason to be. They have as much fight, ambition and pep as ever to carry into their battle for second place.

RACE FOR SECOND

If they had less, they wouldn't stand a chance. The Cubs, Cards and Pirates are very much in the race for that runner-up berth and all three are home to close the season.

It will be a long while before the post-mortems on the Giants series are finished. The Warriors, to a man, agreed that it was the most interesting and exciting engagement in which they ever participated.

They offer no alibi for any of their four defeats. But they do feel badly about the last game which ended in a tie because of the Sunday baseball curfew. Ben Cantwell gave only four hits and not an earned run in seeking his second victory of the series and his 20th of the year. And nobody will ever be able to convince the Tribesmen that Umpire Cy Pfirman didn't miss a third strike on Bill Terry to rob their mound ace of the verdict.

The Warriors are loud in their praise of the showing of Tommy Thompson, rookie outfielder from Albany, in the Sabbath games. The kid was in a tight spot. He played a doubleheader in Jersey City the day before. At midnight, he was told to hustle to Boston and make his major league debut in the most important series of the campaign.

ACTION LIKE VETERAN

He should have been nervous and was, extremely so, before play started. Once in action, though, he appeared to be the coolest player on the field. He drew a walk in both games, got a single and was robbed of two more safeties by Hughie Critz in the nightcap made several fine catches and throws in the difficult sun field and ran the bases like a scared rabbit.

"He has a great eye," said Umpire Bill Klem, who worked behind the plate in the first game. "If a pitch was a fraction of an inch outside the corners, he never took his bat off his shoulder."

Final judgment on the youngster must be suspended until he faces a top-notch southpaw pitcher. A left-handed sticker, he may be bothered by portside shoots. In the event he isn't, he'll have to be set down as the Braves most promising minor league acquisition.

BONNIE MILLER, HELEN GROWN ALSO WIN

Philadelphia, Sept. 5 (AP).—Without loss of a game, top-seeded Bonnie Miller of Los Angeles entered into the second round of the girls' national tennis championship tournament today by overwhelming Katherine Bogan, Darby, Pa., in straight love sets.

Miss Miller, a finalist in the tourney last year and favored to annex the title left undefended by Helen Fulton of Chicago, opened her drive toward the championship impressively, scoring on her deep driving game and hard service.

Elizabeth Kesting, seeded third, of St. Paul, Minn., defeated Eliza Disston, Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—0, in their first-round encounter.

By a 6—4, 6—0 victory, Helen Grawn, national indoor girls titlist from Detroit, eliminated Marian Crezer, Philadelphia, while Virginia Hollinger, Dayton, O., defeated Jacqueline Dawson, New York, 6—2, 6—0, in another first-round match.

The Massachusetts state girls' net queen, Helen Jones of Swampscott, also had an easy time eliminating Beatrice Churchman, Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-0.

The East's top ranking girl star, Millicent Hirsch of New York, seeded second, also advanced by a two-love set victory over Elizabeth Goodman, Philadelphia Cricket Club.

FIRST ROUND

Bonnie Miller, Los Angeles, defeated Katherine Bogan, [illegible] 6-0, 6-0.

EAGLE SWOOPS FROM AERIE

Led by Coach Joe McKenney, Boston College indulged in its first football practice of the season this morning. A squad of 63 reported. They seem in high spirits as they prance down the hill to the Alumni field gridiron to get their first taste of leather. The boys will work out twice daily until Sept. 16. Boston College opens with St. Anselm's Sept. 30 at the Heights. It is the first time in 20 years that St. Anselm has been represented by a varsity eleven.

Gar Wood's Plucky Rival Will Challenge Again

Algonac, Mich., Sept. 4—White-haired Gar Wood in his powerful speedboat Miss America X won as he pleased from the little Miss Britain III, piloted over the St. Clair River course by the plucky Hubert Scott-Paine of England.

It was the second easy victory for Wood in the series and in consequence the Harmsworth trophy, long in Wood's possession, remains in this country at least another year.

But Scott-Paine, a sportsman of the first rank, was undismayed by his defeat and declared he would be back next year for another trial at the trophy.

"But next year," he said, "I will have two engines instead of one."

Wood's average speed over the 35-mile course was 86.937 miles an hour. This was under that of Kaye Don's heat record of 88.685 established in 1932.

Miss Britain's average was 85.789.

Wood allowed Miss Britain to take the lead at the start of the race, but the frail little craft was unable to hold it for more than 300 yards.

The roaring Miss America quickly closed the gap, and most of the remainder of the race the tiny Miss Britain was wallowing in the tempestuous wake of her huge [illegible]. Nevertheless, [illegible] Scott-Paine [illegible] a record [illegible] his [illegible] competing [illegible] heats against the champion Gar Wood.

40 Players Report for Fordham Drill

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—A [illegible] reported to Head Football Coach Jim Crowley of Fordham for the first fall practice session, but spent most of the days indoors doing calisthenics and listening to a discussion of plays.

During the afternoon the squad got outdoors for a few minutes of limbering up exercises. Capt. Ed Danowski was not among the players, but will report for his first practice tomorrow.

3 SWIM TITLES ON BLOCK AT NAUTICAL

Mildred Twoomey, Charlestown, member of the Boston Swimming Association, will defend her 220 yds. senior title back stroke at the Revere Nautical Pool tomorrow night in the grand finale of the 1933 outdoor swimming season.

[illegible] Miss Twoomey [illegible] against Alice Bridges, star of the Whitinsville Swimming Association and holder of many New England and national records. Alice has raised havoc the past few seasons, winning most of the championships in the women's classes.

Now she has turned all her attentions to Miss Twoomey's cherished possession and not only intends to win the event, but is also determined to set a new American record.

Others who will compete for the honors at this distance are Geraldine Vance, Olneyville Boys' Club, Lillian Davis, B. S. A. and Mary Doherty of the same organization.

Two other championships are at stake in the women's classes, with Mabel [illegible], [illegible], Helen [illegible], Grace [illegible] of the Boston Swimming Association and Roberta Baldwin of the [illegible] Club competing for the New England junior 440-yard free-style championship, and Millicent Lewis, a member of the latter mentioned club, and Elna Bloomquist, Elinor Weene, Mildred McGlynn, Catherine Lynch, Irene [illegible] [illegible] N. E. [illegible] champion [illegible].

Three Weeks to Name Ace for South

Only three weeks to go, scout fan[illegible].

They'll have a job on their hands. Some of the entries received in the last mail include Joe De Wire, Waltham's pitcher, [illegible] Rebholtz, Beachmon [illegible], Danny Crowley, Malden's shortstop, Frank Meehan, Belmont, Tommy [illegible], [illegible] Mc[illegible] [illegible].

"Jerome McCarthy (Dedham pitcher), has a fine record for the season. He has won 14, lost one. He allowed only a few hits in each game. He struck out 151, passed 31. He bats and throws left handed, and his batting average is very good. Over .300 . . ."

If anything the gals have it on the boys when it comes to statistics. They tell you how many times at bat, runs, base hits, total bases, etc.

So hurry up and get your entry [illegible].

But the last letter received midnight, Sept. 25 will receive just a [illegible] the first one [illegible] opened.

Pro Golfers Under NRA Banner

[illegible], Sept. 5 (INS).—The Professional Golfers' Association of America will soon be fully enrolled in NRA.

BARRY WOOD PLAYS LOTT AT FOREST HILLS

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 5 (INS).—Heard here and there at the men's national tennis champion[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the 30 [illegible] George Lott [illegible] between the former Harvard quarterback and the ex-Chicago [illegible] pitcher should [illegible] of today's program.

Jack Crawford aspires to the title of poker face among the male tennis players. But the husky Australian is really a good sort, very much liked by everyone. Although he gives the impression of being a grouch, nothing is further from the truth. Jack just doesn't go in for conversation.

Bitsy Grant thinks he should have been seeded higher than No. 10 in the list of American favorites. [illegible] Atlantan has to open with [illegible] Murphy, continue with [illegible] and then clash with the champion, Vines.

"And how I hate to play that guy; he bits too hard for me," was Bitsy's wail.

ROOSEVELT RUN ANNUAL AFFAIR

The success of the first annual Roosevelt marathon run which was held over the streets of the North Shore last Sunday has assured the event as a fixture for the future, according to Promoter Arthur McCarthy of Winthrop.

Officials of the A. A. U. were pleased with the manner in which the long grind was conducted and expressed their willingness to consider Promoter McCarthy's application for the national marathon championship for 1934. This event, which was held at Washington, D. C., this summer, was won by Dave Komonen of Toronto.

Carstetter First 1933 Grid Casualty

Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP).—Harry Carsetter, former Dickinson Seminary football star, is the first gridiron casualty in this section. He suffered a fractured leg today.

Northeastern has possibly the most difficult task of all, for here Al Mccoy moves up from freshman ranks with the object in view of establishing the Huskies in the varsity gridiron firmament for the [illegible].

McCOY KNOWS PLAYERS

In one way McCoy is better off than other local coaches. He has enjoyed the advantages of working Al McCoy moves up from freshman ranks last fall, knows his players and their particular talents and can start exactly where he left off [illegible] November.

Past performances will mean [illegible] at Holy Cross. Capt. McEwan's [illegible] or comes here with little knowledge of previous players' record, and his starting eleven of the coming months will be selected entirely on form displayed in the next few weeks and not at all on past performances.

The Crusaders will display an entirely different offense than in previous years. Where McEwan used an adaptation of the Warner system built along [illegible] by the former army officer, Anderson comes here a product of Notre Dame tactics.

While [illegible] at Boston College will carry along much as it has in the past, certain changes in coaching will affect the team somewhat, for Harry Downes '32 has been named coach at Reading High and has been replaced with another former Eagle of renown in the person of John R. "Dinny" McNamara, former Fordham backfield coach and chief scout in the tenure of the late Maj. Cava[illegible].

MALONEY CAPTAIN

[illegible] Maloney of Brighton [illegible] fullback for two [illegible] leader of the maroon and gold forces and it is likely that the Eagles' offense will be built around him as the key man.

Boston College was hard hit with the graduation of Pete Chesnulevich, main cog in the powerful machine which humbled a great Fordham team in the christening of the [illegible] [illegible].

Mooney was a member of the [illegible] backfield which included [illegible] Dugan and Ed Scott and where his special presence was to [illegible] and place [illegible] the [illegible] the ball [illegible] the [illegible] game.

Freitas is still playing baseball with Falmouth on the Cape and will not report until next week.

Randy Wise of West Roxbury, promising junior candidate for center, will be lost to the squad this season, according to Coach McKenney, who feels that Wise's [illegible] has not entirely healed. Randy suffered a concussion in football last year but played hockey with a head gear.

Joe and Bobby Curran of South Boston, Ed Kelley and Johnny Duggan will be back in there banging away for starting position in the backfield while Eddie O'Brien of Jamaica Plain, Gregory Sullivan and Louis Musco are forwards from whom much can be expected in the absence of Mario Romano, Maurice Whelan and George Taylor who are now on the sidelines looking on as alumni.

All three squads will report for double practice sessions daily until the official opening of the college term late this month.

SPEND A DOLLAR AND MAKE A JOB

CONTRIBUTE IS TODAY'S BEST

By BILL CONNELL

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Sept. 5.—A neat card of seven races were tendered the folks here [illegible] of the fall meeting of the New Hampshire Breeders' [illegible] settled into stride for [illegible] 23 days stretch.

And the meeting [illegible] dash and sparkle of a [illegible] following the Labor Day races [illegible] pudding which drew 20,000 fans, who wagered some 274-odd thousand dollars on the eight races.

A remarkable indication of the hold racing has taken, that holiday crowd. It came early while rain spilled steadily, making the track ankle deep in ooze. And stayed until the early evening end of the last when the [illegible] sun brightened the course [illegible] the tail end of the card.

Again Jackie Westrope was a headliner. The boy finished second in the opener on Sept. [illegible] a new record of finishing [illegible] off on 10 successive races. One place before he came here, eight on Saturday and the opener of the holiday gave him the mark.

Jackie was out of the money in the second holiday race, but lifted Lerack home third in the third, won on Morsel in the seventh, and on Adorland snatched third in the eighth. A good day's work.

Don Meade provided the individual riding classic with his victory by a slim margin in the eighth. High Socks seemed out for the exercise for the first half of the mile run. But Meade was up as he shaved the rail out of the back stretch and around the turn and steered the horse out a bit down the stretch to win by a [illegible] from Grand Acre.

The long shot players [illegible] fun, with Sir Anthony [illegible] straight on the [illegible] dealing $31.60 for a win [illegible] second and Happy M[illegible] rewarding win investors [illegible] on the fifth.

The $5000 Labor Day [illegible] conquest went to W. W. Vaughan's Canron, which broke fast, and earned the win by fighting off a bid by Cattail. The latter snared the place. The win earned $3890, oats money for Canron for the rest of the year.

Cattail was painted as a bold bad character after the race for the stewards decided that the horse must in future have a strong boy to keep the wide running rag on its course. The decision seemed reasonable, for the average boy has not the strength to pilot this horse on the straight and narrow.

Today's bill offered excellent entertainment, with seven races including only two with large fine fields, the fourth and eighth. Contribute, which missed out on a victory effort Saturday by a small margin, appeared one of the best bets of the day in the third.

A Horrible Drama Is Enacted Before the Girl Spy

READ THIS FIRST

Only 20, Gail Loveless was an experienced actress. When she became a spy—Operator 13—in the Federal Secret Service, she was able to convince everybody that she was Lucille Lyndon, quadroon laundress. Even Belle Boyd, shrewdest of Confederate women spies, was deceived. So was handsome Captain Jack Gailliard, Confederate spy, who kissed "Lucille" and was ashamed of the shock of joy it gave him. But Vespasian Chancellor, long, lanky chief of the Southern spies, remained suspicious of "Lucille Lyndon."

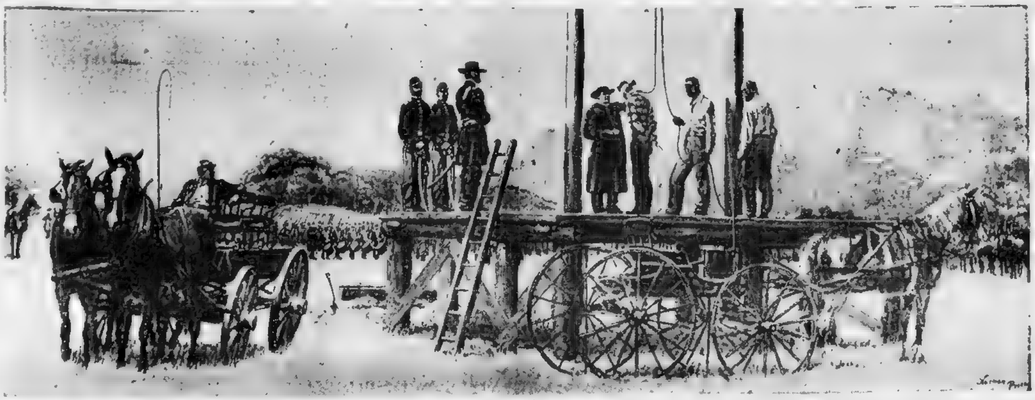
When Gen. J. E. B. Stuart planned to lead his gray jacketed riders on a mad, gallant raid into Pennsylvania, Operator 13 sent warning to the Union Army. And that same night Vespasian Chancellor exposed her as a spy. For spies, man or woman, there was one fate only—death at the end of a hangman's rope, the dreaded "Sunset Dance." Operator 13 stole Gailliard's horse, slugged him with his own pistol when he tried to stop her, and fled desperately into the night.

Unable to find any other way out, she rode across the Potomac with Stuart's cavalry when it set out in the mist of early dawn on its march into Pennsylvania. She robbed a frightened little boy of his clothes and disguised herself as a colored stable boy. Again Chancellor penetrated her disguise, trailed her to her hiding place in a barn, but Gailliard, although he saw her, persuaded Chancellor that she was not there, and for the moment her life was spared.

She stole three horses, two of them belonging to Gen. Stuart himself, and galloped for her life along a disused wood road. Chancellor pursued and Gailliard followed to see where he had gone. She ambushed and trapped them, separately, made them give her their parole, on pain of instant shooting, and led them toward the Union lines. There all knew the two men certainly would be hanged. Nevertheless they sat down together to share a meal politely when the day drew near its end. Then they were startled by sound of fifes and drums.

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

A CONFEDERATE SPY HAS ERRED AND THE 'SUNSET DANCE' BEGINS



"Now, under the crossbeam, the figure in collarless shirt and black trousers stood alone. A strip of cotton sealed his eyes, his colorless hands were bound behind his back. A long pine box stood near on the grass. The setting sun's red blaze swept field and forest. A spy was about to begin his journey to eternity."

Operator 13 witnesses this horror. With her, seeing it also, were two men she was leading to exactly such a death.

And one of those men had stirred her heart as no other man had ever done. Could she deliver him, as duty dictated, to be strangled with all this ghastly pomp and ceremony when the next day's sun went down?

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Suddenly an entire regiment of cavalry in sky-blue overcoats trotted out of the woods, maneuvered smartly and halted in single rank, forming, with the lancers, the three remaining sides of a square with the hayrick in the center.

After them rattled a light buggy driven by two civilians. The face and hands of one of the men were blackened.

The buggy stopped beside the hayrick; both men got out and climbed to the platform, dragging with them a short ladder and a noosed rope. This latter they adjusted to the long beam between the two uprights, jerking it about, raising and lowering it until finally satisfied—they [illegible] the ladder to the grass and sat down on the platform.

The ghastly thumping and squealing of the Dead March [illegible] the sunset silence now, as a battalion of infantry marched out of the sugar bush behind the fifers and drummers, followed by a [illegible] wagon guarded by dra[illegible]

In the wagon sat a man and a Catholic priest. The man, wearing only a collarless shirt, dark trousers and shoes, sat looking straight in front of him. The priest was whispering in his ear.

Now, in the red blaze of sunset, the wagon halted at the hayrick; the priest and the man with him got out and ascended the short ladder. A cavalry officer and two troopers also climbed up.

Immediately the man [illegible] the blackened face rose and [illegible] beside the priest—the whole forming a dark group on the [illegible] platform.

When the little crowd [illegible] far tenor command ran [illegible] the ranks of halted [illegible] "Draw sabers!" The thin, whistling swish of steel whipped the silence like a wind.

GHASTLY MOMENT

The next instant he shot [illegible] the air, then dropped [illegible] with a jerk.

The jolly drums and fifes [illegible] meadow were playing "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Long lines of lances aglitter, pennons flickering like tongues of flame, were moving off at a canter. Blue-cloaked dragoons formed [illegible] and followed. Some infantry soldiers were digging a hole beside the hayrick. A long pine box stood near them on the grass. The setting sun's red blaze swept field and forest.

Now it was time for Operator 13 to join her own people in the fields below. She started to rise, but stumbled, and would have fallen had not Chancellor caught her and lifted her to her feet.

"It was too much for a lady to look upon, ma'am," he said soothingly. "I reckon we all need a little of that peach brandy before we are ready to go on."

RETURNS PAROLE

"Ma'am?"

"Don't you understand?" she sobbed. "I give you back your parole. Get away from here! Quick!"

The girl turned from him sharply, blind with tears, and stood swaying, sickened, faint. In her throbbing ears sounded the merry rattle of drums and skirling of fifes; and there was a noise of hammering, too, as a man with blackened face and hands drove nails into the cover of a long wooden box.

Operator 13 made her way slowly to her horses, laid her quivering face against Skylark's saddle and wept in silence. When at last she lifted her head she saw Jack [illegible] standing beside her horse [illegible] her [illegible] few wide [illegible]

"Have you gone mad?" she whispered. "What are you lingering here for?"

"You did not return my parole to me."

Incensed, inarticulate in her rage and terror, the girl advanced toward him, her small hands clenched, her lovely mouth distorted.

"Get onto your horse and go!" she gasped, beating at his breast with frantic little fists, "go home and mind your d-damn b-business."

He took her futile hands into both of his; kissed them again and [illegible] wet face and [illegible] red lips [illegible] from them [illegible] of her [illegible] soul and body.

The zenith was afire in the crimson afterglow when Operator 13, [illegible] Skylark, and leading Lady Margrave, rode into Emmettsburg, and wearily asked the way to the [illegible] of the provost guard.

[illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] Emmet[illegible] [illegible] man who had been [illegible] The Old [illegible] fife and drum" sounded the marching music of the Maryland Line of the Continental Army. The Philadelphia cavalry that now rode into it were looking for rebel cavalry, reported near Chambersburg and riding south.

[illegible] had [illegible] to doors and windows to watch them pass—a torrent of whistling, snapping scarlet pennants and plunging horses. Among these good folk was the beautiful and celebrated Lady Green-sleeves, who stood with white hands clenched and stared at the avalanche of slanting lances driving northward through Main St.

Farther out on the Chambersburg road another person heard and then saw the lancers—a shabby young horseman in straw hat and hickory shirt, whose small gray eyes were wet with tears, and who emerged from the roadside bushes as soon as the lancers had passed, looked down at their hoof-prints in the damp road and then spurred his horse furiously toward Emmettsburg, urging him to a [illegible] long run.

Another person, also, heard but did not see the passing Union cavalry, did not even know whether the galloping horsemen were Federal or Confederate. This person looked like a negro boy, hatless and barefooted. She was Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service. She rode one horse and led another, and seemed to be very tired [illegible] the mountain [illegible] sunset [illegible] Emmettsburg pike.

DARKENING EYES

The young man in the hickory [illegible] Morris house he saw Lady Greensleeves on the veranda. He looked at her. She was [illegible] she did not appear to [illegible] him.

At that instant a sound of distant galloping again broke the [illegible] of the street; the young man turned his panting horse into a narrow, shady lane and dismounted. There was a horse trough there. He let his horse drink a mouthful, then bathed his head and legs with a handful of drenched grass, pausing to watch another small patrol of lancers canter up Main st.

Lady Greensleeves also watched them. Lady Greensleeves' eyes were the light violet tint of a flower-de-luce, but they seemed to [illegible]en as the Federal horsemen passed [illegible] were out of [illegible] ered the open doorway behind [illegible] Somebody presently drew the [illegible] windows of [illegible] Morris [illegible]

A little girl in the [illegible] back [illegible] played and sang "Maryland, My Maryland" [illegible] very softly.

* * *

When Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service rode wearily past Sainte Mary's College into Emmettsburg, she hoped to find the ancient village occupied by Yankee cavalry and already under martial law.

She saw no vedettes, no pickets, no cavalry, no provost marshal. There seemed to be nobody in the deserted street, through which [illegible] water [illegible]

As she rode up to the postoffice the assistant postmaster waddled out on the veranda in fretful argument with a dingy fellow citizen who followed dangling a paper bag containing dry prunes.

STUBBORN INDIGNATION

So Operator 13 drew bridle to [illegible] for the Federal provost [illegible] "I see that there fat Yankee [illegible] pompious onto a [illegible] like a yeller-belly frog onto a lily pad. Well, let him set pompious. He can if he's a mind to. But he ain't a goin' a lay down no milingtary law for me."

Clem expectorated, extracted a prune from the paper bag and munched it dubiously. "Martial law is milingtary law and ain't [illegible] be sneezed at, George," he [illegible] mildly. "Ef I was [illegible] I wouldn't want [illegible] no [illegible] bunk in Fort McHenry. No, sir, not me."

"I ain't aimin' to set onto no bunk of no kind, shape or manner nowhere, neither," retorted the postmaster. "I'm a deputy United States official, I am. So let the Yankees act pompious onto their hosses if they's a mind to. I ain't a-going to turn no letters over to them nor anybody else, neither—I ain't."

SHORT ANSWER

"Kin yuh-all tell me whar am de Linkum sodgers, suh?"

"There wuz a passel of lancers went kitin' through before sundown, scarin' everybody," grunted the postmaster. "What you wanta know for?"

"I tell you there ain't no provost here. There's a yeller-belly frog settin' pompious over to Frederick. Mebbe he'll charge you 10 cents to take a peek at him."

He waddled into the postoffice and banged the weatherbeaten door behind him.

His crony, Clem, expectorated, shook his wizened head, fished out a prune, munched it [illegible], reflectively, indicating the closed door with troubled thumb. "He's riled," he remarked. "One o' them lancer officers wuz all fer ransackin' the mail boxes, and George wouldn't have it. But I tell him he'll land into Fort McHenry ef he talks uppity to them Yankee lancers . . . What you want, Bub?"

A distant drum[illegible] Both turned [illegible] a dozen horsemen—more couriers from anxious headquarters—coming at a lively gallop [illegible] from the [illegible] hurled forward [illegible] some news of [illegible]

They wore sky-blue uniforms and [illegible] sleeve and breeches. They [illegible] up with a clash of spur and sabre in front of the postoffice. There was a civilian [illegible] low-chevroned [illegible] ing them, and Operator 13 kicked her mud-smeared horse into motion and, leading Lady Margrave, pushed up close beside him.

SMART TROOPS

She said. "I'm Operator 13, Gail Loveless. You remember?"

He inspected her leisurely, then nodded almost imperceptibly, and without any change of expression inquired:

"I'm dead alive in my stirrups," she whispered. "Can your troopers take these two horses to Maj. Allen?"

"That's where he said he was going. Everybody knew it in Chambersburg. I saw him pass eastward through the Gap with 2000 sabres. Isn't there anybody to take my horses, Capt. Rivett?"

"The Sixth Lancers will be following us. Tell Col. Rush what you want. I'm sorry, ma'am, but we's got to ride on." He spurred forward, calling out to his sergeant: "Push on! This little darky saw the rebel cavalry on the Gettysburg road! You better send a courier back to Frederick!"

A [illegible] trooper of the First Maine [illegible] curtains were drawn aside and [illegible] the window curtains were redrawn across pale, anxious faces, and silence settled over Main [illegible] again.

Clem and his bag of prunes had disappeared [illegible] did not even peep out of his dusty window. Operator 13, drooping in her saddle, touched Skylark with weary naked heels and the two horses moved on down the empty village road called Main st. Passing the old Morris house she saw a lady and a child on the veranda. The lady was slender and golden haired.

Coming now to a lane she noticed a watering trough. The only person in sight there was a young man in a hickory shirt wearing [illegible] straw hat.

He was [illegible] ing nag at the horse trough, and as Operator 13 turned into the secluded lane he looked up lazily. But his small, clever eyes belied [illegible] indifference.

What he saw [illegible] was a ragged Negro urchin on a handsome sweating horse, leading another horse quite [illegible]. He had seen the horses before, on the other side of the Potomac.

"Whose little nigger are you?" he drawled.

"I'se Marse Allen's nigger, suh."

"What Marse Allen?"

"Dunno, suh. 'Spec' he-all de onlies' Marse Allen what am."

TERRIFYING QUESTION

Something [illegible] small [illegible]

"Where did you happen to steal Gen. Jeb Stuart's two favorite horses?"

A [illegible] toward her [illegible]

"Damn you, do as I tell you!" she gasped.

"Very well," he replied, "but please handle your pistol with care."

"If I have to kill you I'll do it," she whispered hoarsely. "Drop your bridle! Stand wide of your horse and mine!"

Then he began to laugh noiselessly, his shrewd smooth face glo[illegible] "Put up your shooting iron," he said under his breath, "and let us quit fooling and discuss the weather. I reckon it's likely we shall have a night of stars."

SHOCK OF RELIEF

The passwords of the Federal Secret Service seemed to shock her. [illegible] began to quiver [illegible] find [illegible] the prescribed answer. "Yes, it—it will be a night of stars and bars. H-how many stars do you reckon will be shining tonight?"

"One hundred and seven."

"Add one hundred and seven to thirteen—" began the girl, but her voice was out of control and ended in a sob; and slowly she waited in her saddle, sinking forward and laying her face against Skylark's disordered mane.

"You seem weary, ma'am," whispered the young man. He had come close to her stirrup.

"I've been badly frightened today," she murmured, "and I haven't had any sleep. I'm nearly dead on my horse. I've got to sleep."

"Bear up a little, ma'am. You are Operator 13, of course. Do you know who I am?"

"You are Federal Operator 107, but I don't know your name."

"I was with Jack Babcock and Pauline Cushman in Martinsburg," he explained.

Operator 13, her wits dulled by fatigue, still feels a faint stirring of suspicion of this man who knows the secret phrases of the Federal spy service but somehow does not seem quite genuine. Is her suspicion well founded? Will he lead her to safety among her blue-uniformed comrades, or does he plan to deliver her to death on a Confederate gallows?

RAISIN COFFE RING

Make a sponge of 1 yeast [illegible] lukewarm water, 1 tsp. [illegible] 1/2 cup evaporated milk, 1/3 cup hot water and 1 cup of flour. Mix and let stand covered, until very light. Add 1 beaten egg, 1-3 cup brown sugar, 1/4 cup butter and 1/2 cup raisins. Add about 1 2/3 cups flour and 1 tsp. salt, using [illegible] flour as possible. Knead well, place in a buttered bowl, brush with butter and let rise again until double in bulk. Cut down, knead slightly and shape with hands into a long roll. Twist and bring the two ends together, making a ring. Place in a buttered pan, large enough to allow for more rising. Brush with butter and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake in a hot oven, 400 deg. F., for about 20 minutes. Remove from oven and brush the top [illegible] with [illegible] or any good [illegible]

LIVELY RADIO BUSINESS RISE LOOKED FOR

Pickup Is Rivaling That of Electric 'Ice Box,' Autos

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor, Boston American

A lively business for the radio industry in the next few months, spurred by approach of the year end holidays, is looked for by leading manufacturers and dealers. All are encouraged by the pickup which has been shown [illegible] the current general recovery movement [illegible] the electric 'ice box' [illegible] industries.

One thing that will be closely watched in the Street is the hazily sponsored movement to extend the week end closings of the stock market. If the movement should win out, it would undoubtedly mean further week-end shutdowns here, as the Boston Stock Exchange has rarely stayed open with New York closed. Much of the [illegible] is in stocks that have their primary market in Wall st. Credit for securing this business on the Boston board via local specialists goes to Secretary George A. Rich.

• • •

The last occasion when the Boston Stock Exchange remained open with New York closed was a few weeks ago, when explosion of tear gas bombs shortly after the noon gong drove members from the "Big Board's" floor. There was a similar instance on Sept. 16, 1920, at the time of the big explosion in front of the J. P. Morgan & Co. office. At that time many windows in the nearby Stock Exchange were shattered and the roof was seriously damaged. The New York Exchange closed at 12:00 but Boston kept open.

• • •

In the previous year there were two occasions when New York closed in order to honor returning troops, but with Boston remaining open. One such event was the "welcome home" to the 77th Division on May 6, 1919, and the other the welcome to the 27th Division on Mar. 25 of that year.

"After Labor Day" Doings of Market Awaited by Wall St.

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

Wall Street is back from the holidays all aquiver having been filled with promises for weeks of "big doings after Labor Day." And the market will come in for its test quickly enough. It's done a lot of fiddling around and waiting for a month and more now. The time has come for stocks to show their stuff.

The can companies are expected to show big earnings for the year. Wheat can do the handsome thing by starting its heralded "bull market" here and now.

STEEL IN NEED OF STIMULANT

For they need a stimulus to start them on the upward march again . . . Steel faces the normal letdown in the demand from the automobile industry and needs something to substitute . . . The rails would be a logical one to step in here; which accounts for the effort to start them buying equipment, rails, etc.

The story of Russian recognition that bobbed up again on Friday fits here, too, with projected purchases of machinery as well as [illegible] oils.

The oil industry apparently is sitting pretty now that Uncle Sam has stepped in actively to straighten out things. The sharp cut in production ordered over the week-end sent crude to the dollar mark in short order.

We hear of considerable switching from the motors to other groups, even to the "outcast" utilities . . . Cotton is said to have developed a bullish chart formation . . . Coal roads enter their best season with good earnings behind them.

Continental Puts Crude Oil Higher

Oklahoma City, Sept. 5—Continental Oil Co. besides posting a top price of 82 cents for 40 gravity crude oil and above in Oklahoma and Kansas also posted a top of 72 cents for like gravity crude oil in north Texas or 10 cents above the price posted by most purchasers in these fields. Pres. Moran said the advance to higher levels was to compensate producers for the company's failure to meet the previous advance from 62 to 72 cents because it did not consider such an advance sufficient.

Closing on London Exchange Is Quiet

London, Sept. 5 (AP)—There was little activity on the stock exchange today. Giltedged securities hardened on the somewhat better demand while gold shares were easier at the opening owing to the weaker tone of the French franc which is the basis for the determination of the price of bar gold. However these shares recovered subsequently. Other stocks were less active, while international issues eased and German bonds were weak. The market closed quiet.

Closing on Paris Exchange Is Mixed

Paris, Sept. 5—Business on the Bourse was quiet and indecisive with speculators inactive awaiting Wall Street's lead. The closing was irregular. Prices continued weak on the Berlin Boerse, losses amounting from three to five points, which was admittedly due to selling by German emigrants. There was a slight occasional improvement which did not affect the closing.

Air Transportation Speed Is Increased

The summer of 1933 marks the greatest increase in speed in the history of air transportation, states F. G. Johnson, president of United Aircraft & Transport Corporation and of United Air Lines.

From 1925 to 1927 [illegible] the [illegible] speed of commercial airplanes was around 100 miles an hour. By 1932 it had been increased to approximately 115 miles an hour. But this summer there are [illegible] service multi-motored passenger transports capable of cruising 171 miles an hour. Airplane fares have decreased from 12 cents a mile in 1929 to approximately 6 cents in 1933.

"It has been demonstrated," said Mr. Johnson, "that each time that air travel has been speeded up, passenger, mail and express traffic have increased, and the average airplane ride today is 327 miles. Likewise, speedier planes have increased night flying until today business men are traveling between points as distant as 2,000 miles without loss of business hours."

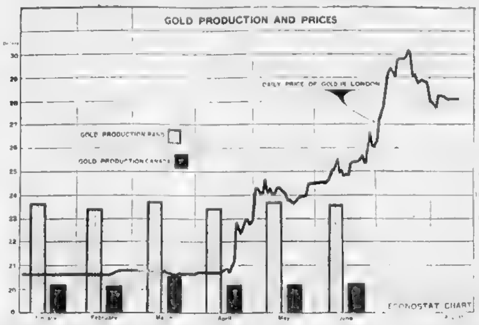
The public's demand for high speed and more comfort is reflected in the design and construction in this year's planes, and the trend is toward low-wing multi-motored monoplanes of all-metal construction, with lower wing loadings resulting in lower landing speeds, he stated. The tendency toward twin-engined transports is due to better performance and added dependability and public preference for planes of more than one motor.

Mr. Johnson believes that the combination express-passenger land transports during the next few years, at least, will be medium sized carrying from eight to fourteen passengers, instead of the thirty to forty-passenger planes predicted a few years ago.

"Medium sized planes," Mr. Johnson said, "have higher speed, lower operating costs, easier landings in case of emergency than the superland planes, and lend themselves to flexible and frequent schedules."

The more efficient airplanes of today are not due solely to airplane design and construction, but to engine development, as the latest aircraft engines produce one horsepower for every 1¼ pounds of weight, whereas certain automobile engines weigh fifteen to twenty pounds for each horsepower. Newly developed controllable pitch propellers have reduced plane take-off time and run twenty per cent, and increased the rate of climb twenty-two per cent, and give improved performance when the plane is flown on only one of two engines.

Gold Thrives in Hard Years



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat

It has been said that gold is a commodity which thrives on adversity and suffers from prosperity. The above chart would seem to corroborate this statement. During the last five years we note that American gold output was at a low point at the very time that business in general was playing at the peak.

During the long, hard years through which the country has just passed gold appears to have thrived. The output in America has increased from an average of 167,000 ounces monthly in 1928 to 187,000 ounces in 1933. This represents an increase in gold production of 12 per cent, taking place in a period when industrial production as measured by the Econostat index showed a decline of 55.3 per cent.

The reason, of course, is not far to seek and is one which has been stated repeatedly during the course of the last few years. Gold in a gold standard country is the only commodity whose price is fixed. All other goods and services fluctuate in terms of this stable commodity. In our country the law specified that one dollar was equal to 23.22 grains of pure gold. It is the price pegging of the yellow metal which accounts for its inverse fortunes.

When other goods decline in value the operator of a gold mine pays less for his labor and supplies while receiving the same for his output. As a result, his profit margin expands and he has this greatest of all business incentives to increase his production. As a result, he works his property more intensively and searches for other ores which, on the basis of reduced cost, can now be worked profitably.

It is this development which accounts for the paradoxical favor of the gold stocks during the period of the depression. At the present time producers of gold and the owners of gold stocks are appre[illegible] ity bring with it as it always has in the past hard times for the gold producer.

The NRA program of higher wages and the efforts of the government to stimulate higher prices of all commodities are champagne for most producers, but hemlock juice for the gold miner. His position today would in all respects be just as favorable as it was five months ago if the government would permit him to realize the natural world market price for his product.

He has agitated vigorously to persuade Uncle Sam to raise the ban on the export of gold. These efforts have been successful to the extent of securing at least four modifications to the President's gold order. These permit mines to ship abroad unprocessed gold ores and unretorted amalgams, concentrates and precipitates.

TEXTILE CREDIT STOCK SOUGHT

Baltimore, Sept. 5—Commercial Credit Co. has made an offer to all stockholders for the entire stock of Textile Banking Co. of New York of $[illegible]0 cash per share for delivery on and after Sept. 31, 1933, but not later than Oct. 24, 1933, upon which basis more than two-thirds of the capital stock has already been acquired.

Textile Banking Co. is the second largest factoring concern and serves some of the most important producers and converters of textile products, particularly cotton, wool, silk, rayon and knit goods manufacturers.

Invested capital of the company is in excess of $4,000,000 and its resources are over $12,000,000. Its business for 1933 should exceed $70,000,000 with an average turnover of less than 35 days and its estimated net earnings for 1933 are in excess of $500,000, which will be the most profitable year in the history of the company.

Commercial Credit Company will not need to do any new financing either to purchase Textile Banking Co. or to retire some $3,000,000 of its 6 per cent collateral trust notes due Nov. 1, 1934, which were recently called for payment at 101 and interest on Nov. 1, 1933.

Wool Consumption Is Well Sustained

New York, Sept. 5—Consumption of wool was well maintained in July, although there was a slight decline from the June total, presumably due to the woolen code taking effect in July. July figure was 57,377,000 pounds, grease equivalent, down a bit from the recent peak of 58,688,000 pounds in June, but well above the spring low of 24,943,000 pounds in March and also well above the high last fall of 46,055,000 pounds in September.

North Western Has Rise in Loadings

Revenue cars loaded on Chicago & Northwestern lines in August increased 4.3 per cent over a year ago, against increase of 33.1 per cent in July. Receipts from connections showed a larger increase than loadings on line, so that total cars handled were 8.2 per cent above a year ago. In July total cars handled increased 27.2 per cent over 1932.

Lumber Orders Gain

Washington, Sept. 5—New business at the lumber mills during the week ended August 19 was slightly in excess of that booked during each of the two immediately preceding weeks.

Domestic Wool Sales in Week Are Heavy

Prices were very firm to higher than recent quotation ranges in graded territory wools. Strong advances were realized in 56s and 48s, 50s qualities. Territory wools in original bags moved freely and a moderate advance in prices was secured on good French combing and average strictly combings 64s and finer lines on sales at 78-80c, scoured basis. Average French combing wools of similar quality were firmed at 75-77c, scoured basis, and short French combing wools were slightly stronger at 73-75c. Ordinary 12 months Texas wools moved more freely at 75-78c scoured basis, while choice lines occasionally realized 78-80c. Some eight months, Texas brought 75c, scoured basis."

LEADERS DOWN MODERATELY IN FINAL HOUR

New York, Sept. 5. Leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange showed moderate declines for the most part in today's final hour. A three-day recess apparently failed to renew the vitality of financial markets and both stocks and staples presented a rather wan appearance.

Share traders generally clung to the side lines and prices of leading issues were inclined to sag. At the same time, however, there was no pronounced liquidating pressure. The activity was only slightly greater than that of last Friday's dull session.

Grains started out with moderate gains, but quickly retraced their steps and recorded losses of a cent or more a bushel. Cotton was a bit heavy. Bonds were fairly steady. The dollar was somewhat erratic in foreign exchange dealings, moving up against the French franc, but easing in terms of sterling.

Stocks off around 1 to 2 points at their [illegible] Can, U. S. [illegible] Western Union, Johns-Manville, Case, International Harvester, Deere, Chrysler, Union Carbide, Columbian Carbon, du Pont, United Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Gulf, Standard Oil of California, Union Pacific, New York Central, U. S. Smelting, National Distillers, Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Prices for the main body of shares in the first hour ran irregular. The feature of the period was advancing tendencies on the gold mining issues. Homestake Mining, McIntyre Porcupine and Dome mines all sold up more than a point. Celanese rose a major fraction.

Reading was up 1½ points. U. S. Steel and Pennsylvania Railroad sagged major fractions, along with Chrysler and Consolidated Gas of New York. Bethlehem, Amerada, Auburn, du Pont, American Machine & Foundry and Union Carbide ran off a point or more.

Issues off a point or so included Loew's, Mack, Public Service of N. J., Sears, Western Union, General Motors, International Harvester, Goodyear, J. I. Case, Allied Chemical and Bethlehem.

In the third hour activity on the downside dried up, but some lower prices were established. Gold mining issues held well. Setbacks of 2 or more points were seen for Allied Chemical, du Pont, Union Carbide, U. S. Smelting and Atchison. Air Reduction was down 3 points.

Shares down [illegible] included National [illegible] Biscuit, N. Y. [illegible] ma, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can and U. S. Aircraft.

While the failure of the stock market to show some signs of the expected fall buoyancy was disappointing in some quarters, [illegible] it was pointed out that September has seldom lived up to anticipations.

Analysts recalled that last year the upturn was checked abruptly in that month [illegible] situation [illegible] September [illegible] did not start [illegible] European [illegible] break in grain [illegible] September 1930, halted efforts to promote an advance, and that the 1929 September preceded the collapse.

The fourth hour saw the majority of issues somewhat above their lows for the day with trading continuing quiet. Allied Chemical extended its loss to almost 5 points. Air Reduction was down 3 points. Homestake Mining was up 2 points.

National Distillers was off 2. Point or more setbacks stayed with Southern Railway, U. S. Steel, Western Union, Consolidated Gas of New York, American Can and Amerada.

United Aircraft was down a major fraction and du Pont was off 2 points. Many traders were still absent from the board rooms in extension of the Labor Day holiday.

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP) Higher prices for grains prevailed early today. An unexpected sharp upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool was an outstanding feature, and was attributed largely to Argentine reports of critical crop conditions because of drought.

Opening ½ to 1 cent higher, wheat afterward reacted somewhat. Corn started unchanged to ½ up and subsequently sagged.

The Jewel Tea Company, Inc., reports that sales for four weeks ending August 12 were $730,839, compared with $755,629 for parallel weeks in 1932, a decrease of 3.28 per cent. The average number of sales routes for parallel weeks in 1933 was 1351 and in 1932, 1333.

Sales for the first 32 weeks of 1933 were $6,044,134 as compared with $6,820,118 for a like period in 1932, a decrease of 11.38 per cent. For these weeks the average number of routes in 1933 was 1346, and in 1932, 1335.

Oil Industry Price Fixing Is Favored

Journal of Commerce Washington special says while sentiment for price fixing in the petroleum industry has been checked somewhat for the present, there are indications such action will be sought by members of the planning and coordinating committee of the industry in the near future. Revision of price control section of the code submitted by the planning committee would extend price-fixing powers of the President to include all petroleum products. Planning committee recommended crude oil prices to the producer be established at $1.11 a barrel.

Quarterly Income Holders Increase

Number of Quarterly Income Shares outstanding August 31 totaled 9,807,161 shares, an increase of 933,408 or 10.5 per cent over July 31.

Common stock holdings in the 35 companies on the investment list were increased from 252,653 shares on July 31 to 291,853 August 31. Total market value of securities held the later date was $13,939,532, against $11,339,390 at end of the preceding month.

Lighting Campaign by Westinghouse

Because few of the owners of the more than 20,000,000 wired homes in this country know how to use light correctly and to teach everyone to derive the most benefit from home illumination, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will launch a nation-wide campaign this fall, according to L. A. S. Wood, manager of the Lighting Products Division.

Standard of Kansas Income $146,442

Standard Oil Co. of Kansas net the quarter ended June 30 was $146,442 after taxes, depreciation, depletion, amortization of intangible development costs and other charges, against net loss of $271,134 the quarter ended March 31, 1933. For six months ended June 30 net loss was $124,692.

STREET IN DARK ON WHAT CODE WILL DO

New York, Sept. 5—Already most of the country's industries and business men are displaying the "Blue Eagle" and of those that are not, nearly all have submitted a code and are waiting for the President's signature. Only a few forms of business are waiting for the government's okay.

Although a code has been submitted for the brokers and their employes by the Association of Stock Exchange Firms, Wall Street is completely in the dark as to what it will look like, or what the provisions will be when it is finally approved, if it is approved.

They expect to see the "Blue Eagle" flying over Wall Street by the end of the month, however, because the government will hold public hearings the 24th or 25th of the month. But whether or not it will be as a result of the code they themselves submitted or one the government may tell them to follow, they know as much now as the man in the street.

What sort of a code did they submit? Could a copy be had? No sir! Because the government asked them to keep it a secret until the public hearings are held. One might get it from the government if they cared to try. But from the Association of Stock Exchange Firms? No sir!

That, despite the fact the full text of the preliminary code submitted had already been published on Aug. 25 in the newspapers.

But a "new deal" in some form is on the way for the "white collar" workers in the street, who in the recent short-lived "bull market" worked from early morning to far into the night keeping the wheels of Wall Street turning. And at deep depression salary levels.

The recent reforms instituted by the Stock Exchange itself gave one class of workers in the Street a "break." The ruling limiting the activities of the customers' man to a minimum salary which is more than a good many are now getting. But the ruling applies only to new employes and not those already working.

Repeal of Check Tax Is Advocated by Banking Group

Fremont, Neb., Sept. 5—Abolition of the Postal Savings System and repeal of the Federal check tax were advocated by 125 members of Group Two of the Nebraska Bankers Association in resolutions passed at the annual meeting here. P. J. Ternus of Humphrey was re-elected president, and F. W. Shonka, Jr., of Schuyler, secretary.

Resolutions also urged members to work against the establishment of chain and branch banks which it was declared threatened the lives of country banks.

William Edward Johnson, Chicago consulting banker, in the principal address declared the guaranty system in the 1933 banking act was uneconomical because bankers don't know when assessments will be levied nor how much they will be.

"Bankers alone can make this law succeed and this only by arbitrarily assuming that assessments will be levied and then setting aside funds to meet them," he said.

Johnson further said, depositors and not bankers should pay for the guaranty fund, since depositors are the persons ultimately protected. He gave no suggestion as to a system for levying support from the depositors.

Dollar Rallies Late in London Dealings

London, Sept. 5 (AP)—A speculative demand for sterling caused the pound to gain somewhat on both the dollar and the franc today. The demand lessened toward the end of trading, however, and the dollar which had touched $4.60¾, after opening at $4.58, closed at $4.55½. This was 1½ cents loss from last night's closing.

Allen President of Boston Safe Deposit

Lyman H. Allen has been elected president of Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., succeeding the late Willard T. Carleton. Mr. Allen has been with the company since May 1, 1904. He was appointed assistant trust officer May 1, 1917, and trust officer Feb. 7, 1928. On Feb. 5, 2929, he was elected vice-president.

BIG BUSINESS GAINS SHOWN IN WEST

Cleveland, Sept. 5 (INS)—First accurate figures on the trend of business in the Fourth Federal Reserve District today revealed astounding gains, ranging from 12 to 504 per cent, in major branches of trade and industry as compared to a year ago.

The optimistic news was disclosed in the regular monthly report of the Fourth Federal Reserve Bank, which was regarded as being of unusual importance this month because it provided the first uncolored picture of the effects of the prosperity drives by the National Government.

The table, compiled by the bank, revealed the following increases: Automobile production (U. S.), up 113.6; building contracts awarded (residential-4th district), up 49.8; cement production (4th district), up 82.6; coal production (4th district), up 105.9; coal shipments (Lake Erie ports), up 83.4; department store sales (4th district), up 12.1; furniture store sales (4th district), up 70.5; iron ore receipts (Lake Erie ports), up 504.9; pig iron production (U. S.), up 218.0; steel ingot production (U. S.), up 296.9; wholesale sales (4 reporting lines, 4th district), up 21.2.

Electric Output of Associated Gas Up

New York, Sept. 5—Associated Gas & Electric System reports for the week ended Aug. 26 electric output of 52,661,491 k. w. h., excluding sales to other utilities, an increase of 13½ per cent above the same week last year. Gas output of 282,119,600 cubic feet was 3-10 of 1 per cent below the same week of 1932.

Springfield's Bond Offering $890,000

Springfield will receive bids until 11 o'clock (D.S.T.) Sept. 7 for purchase of $890,000 one to five year coupon or registered "Springfield Municipal Relief Loan, 199" bonds dated Sept. 1, 1933, and payable $178,000 1934-1938, inclusive. Bids will be accepted on either a 3 per cent or 3¼ per cent interest basis.

September History of Stock Market Mixed

September record in the stock market back over the last 60 years is a spotty one. Down through the years the man who has not held stocks that month has fared just about as well as te man who has held them.

Prices have been higher in 23 of these Septembers, while 11 have witnessed practically no change in price, and 26 have seen levels lower than those of the preceding month.

The same trend was characterized the first week of trading after the Labor Day holiday. Going back for 35 years, the record for the first week after Labor Day shows 15 weeks of practically no change in prices, 9 where trend was higher and 11 where it was lower.

Of more significance, probably, is the record in the recovery years. There have been six such years in the last 60—1921, 1908, 1897, 1894, 1885 and 1879—and here the record has also been spotty, with the main trend toward lower prices in that first of the autumn months.

Only Septembers in two of these recovery years saw higher prices. They were in 1921, when there was a moderate rise after early irregularity, and in 1879, when there was quite a substantial improvement. The latter marked the end of a depression that more nearly resembled the present one.

In 1908, there was a break that carried the market down 5 points in the averages, from 84.66 at the end of August to 79.93. The low for that September was 77.07.

In 1897, declines carried the market off nearly 5 points in the price averages, dropping from 54.81 at the end of August to 50.98 at the close of September. This was the low for that month.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR IN BOSTON

Share prices were irregular in late trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes were held largely to a narrow range. Rail issues were soft with Pennsylvania dropping a point while New Haven eased fractionally. Old Colony moved against the general trend advancing a point.

Utilities firmed after a mixed start. American Telephone and Boston Elevated showed fractional improvement. New England Telephone held steady around its previous closing level. Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred was slightly higher.

Bigelow Sanford preferred was strong, gaining 3 points. Brown & Co. preferred advanced well over a point. Gillette, selling ex-dividend, was about a point higher. Venezuela Mexican reached a new high for the year on a run-up of over a point. Venezuela Holding equalled its previous high on a moderate rise.

Losses of minor importance were recorded for First National Stores, Nash Motors, Stone & Webster, Swift & Co. and United Fruit. Kingsbury Brewery was firm.

Rails' Surcharges to End This Month

Washington, Sept. 5—Emergency railroad freight surcharges, added to the rates on a wide selection of traffic set Jan. 1, 1932, under authorization of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be discontinued Sept. 30. Application of the emergency rates, which impose a six cent per ton extra charge on coal, expire by limitation at end o this month after an extension beyond the original expiration date of March 31, 1933.

The surcharges have netted the carriers only about $60,000,000 a year, as against the $100,000,000 originally estimated. The railroads are not asking for the continuance of the surcharges and there is no intention on the part of the Interstate Commerce Commission to volunteer an extension.

Phillips Pete Adds 3000 More Workers

International Statistical Bureau, Inc., estimates the cotton crop as of September 1 at 12,960,000 bales. The yield per acre is estimated at 192 3-10 pounds.

The reason the International Statistical Bureau states for its figures being larger than the government's estimate on August 1, despite the drop of 6 1-10 pound per acre, is that the estimated harvested acreage is larger than the government estimated a month ago.

Transue & Williams Reports Big Gain

Transue & Williams Steel Forging Corp. had August gross nearly 200 per cent above that of August, 1932, says J. R. Gorman, president. Orders for farm machinery and oil equipment supplies made important contributions to the volume.

Chemical Dividends

Time

Old Father Time is not annoyed
Because some city is destroyed.
If he would have a city there
Some day the damage he'll repair.
Should man cut down his forests wild
To such a loss he's reconciled
For in a thousand years or so
He'll watch another forest grow.

Old Father Time is not disturbed
Because some trivial whim is curbed.
Complacently from day to day
And silently he goes his way
For while men's brains and bodies tire
Struggling to win what they desire
Old patient Father Time can spend
A million years to gain his end.

'Tis only man who has to haste
Because he has no day to waste,
He wants his temple spires to rise
Before death comes to close his eyes;
The grain of truth he finds appears
The rich achievement of his years,
But Father Time can wait to see
The wonders that are yet to be.

To build a pathway to his goal
But change and storm and stress combine
To batter down his structures fine
While Father Time holds out to youth
An undiscovered grain of truth
And seems to know, beyond a doubt
Some day some lad will find it out.

New Deal for U. S. Army Is Roosevelt Duty

—By James T. Williams, Jr.—

In the whole history of the United States, no President has ever had a greater opportunity to discharge two of the fundamental functions of the federal government than the existing national emergency offers to Mr. Roosevelt.

These two functions are set forth in the preamable to the Federal Constitution. They are:

Congress authorized the expenditure of $3,300,000,000 on public works that were needed and the construction of which would provide work for hundreds of thousands of needy and unemployed.

Several hundred million dollars have already been allocated for new construction for the navy.

But the army has thus far been denied anything like an adequate share in this fund, either for new construction or for new material, both of which are urgently needed to make effective our small combat force. Except for $6,000,000 authorized to prevent the army arsenals from closing down, and $6,000,000 for new construction in Panama and Hawaii, the balance due the army has thus far been withheld.

WHY THE DELAY?

Various reasons for this inexplicable delay have been offered. It appears now that the delay is due to a dim hope that when the Geneva conference on armaments reconvenes next month the world will witness a miracle in an offer by the European powers and Japan to make drastic reductions in land armaments.

All the advices from Europe and from the Far East are to the effect that neither Japan nor the European powers intend to reduce their armaments in the present parlous condition of the world.

But even were a miracle to happen at Geneva next month in the form of a general consent to reduce armaments, the reduction would not involve the United States, which, as General Pershing warned his countrymen several years ago, is already practically disarmed.

This is especially true of our land force. It ranks about 17th among the armies of the world. It is far below the strength authorized by the national defense act.

But the great weakness of our regular army at the present time is its obsolete material. Since the Great War ended, tremendous advances have been made in the effectiveness of all weapons, aviation, mechanization and motorization.

Not only have there been great mechanical improvements in aircraft, but there have also been new inventions in automatic rifles, long range and rapid fire artillery, anti-aircraft artillery and fast tanks.

BETTER TRAINED

Except for some increase in aircraft and in anti-aircraft artillery, our combat troops have not yet been supplied with new material so necessary to their effectiveness.

In personnel our forces are better than they have ever been before, they are better trained today than ever before, but their effectiveness will continue to be crippled until modern material supplants the obsolete material with which they are now equipped.

During the last 15 years tremendous advances have been made in the mechanization and motorization of industry. We are living in a machine age, but what is left of our regular army is still living in an earlier age.

Little has been done now more cheaply than it can ever be done in years to come. Doing it will provide employment for thousands who are needy and unemployed. Doing it will provide for the common defence and promote the general welfare.

Why delay doing it until the world is told, officially what it already knows—that no miracle of disarmament is going to be performed at Geneva next month?

Bernie Brings Back Pauline Frederick

BY N. F. T.

More and more guest artists are finding favor among the front line loudspeaker hours and half hours we have become accustomed to, if we have. Ben Bernie follows up his idea launched last week when Sophie Tucker took her special turn with him. Tonight, he introduces Pauline Frederick, the stage and screen actress of more than passing prominence a few years back.

Tomorrow night, the Waring program of music and David Ross recitations (WNAC) at 10 o'clock, will ring in two extra entertainment personalities, namely Harry Richman, the night club ceremonies master, and Milton Berle, comedy vender of the vaudeville stages.

VETERANS VANISHING?

Certainly the above artists are capable and often furnish fine variety in their respective lines of endeavor, yet one wonders where some of the original broadcasting big timers are, since they continue out of the wireless whirl. Why doesn't an enterprising sponsor trot Henry Burbig back to the microphone? What has become of the "Red Headed Music Maker" and a few more? For one, the sweet singing lady Ruth Etting is returning next Sunday night during the George M. Cohan presentation. Also Jimmy (Schnozzel) Durante, but from a radio standpoint, that Ruth Etting announcement seems more important.

MRS. ANDREWS ON AIR

There is general eagerness abroad for the widespread "Buy Now in September and Buy American" program. Tonight when the "Globe Trotter" for your favorite evening newspaper is broadcasting late news (WAAB) at 7 o'clock, he will likewise introduce Mrs. Esther Andrews, lone feminine member of Governor Ely's Council. Mrs. Andrews has a brief but vital message to Massachusetts women, having to do with the part they can and should play in hastening the return of prosperity and increased employment.

SAFETY SPEECH

Governor Joseph B. Ely is slated to deliver a coast to coast network address on Friday (WEEI) at 4:45 when he advocates increased caution for the prevention of automobile accidents. It is one of a series of talks being conducted on the air as part of a nation wide safety drive to lower the number of deaths on motor highways and city thoroughfares.

That new novelty tune hit called "Rolling on Our Roller Skates" will be among the vocal efforts contributed by the Mills Brothers tonight (WNAC) between 7:30 and 7:45.

Pilgrims Journey to Lourdes for Diamond Jubilee—Miraculous Cures Certified

By Edwin C. Hill

The White Trains are winding outhward in France, through the fty passes of the Pyrenees, bearig pilgrims from every part of the hristian world to the miraculous rotto of Lourdes, one of the reatest of all Christian shrines. very year these White Trains urdened with the lame, the halt nd the blind, converge on the ttle mountain town in the southest of France. But this year, we re told, a million pilgrims, buoyed y faith and hope, will make the ourney to lave themselves with he miraculous waters that gush rom a rock. For Lourdes this year elebrates the Diamond Jubilee of he apparition.

The pilgrimage is founded on the adition of the appearance of the lessed Virgin to a sick girl. In he 14th year of her life, Bernaette Soubirous beheld, in the holow of a rock at Lourdes, the vision f a young and most beautiful lady , "lovelier than I have ever een," she cried out. There were 8 such apparitions in all, and one ay a voice told her to drink and ash in the fountain.

Now, the strange thing was that thers who were listening and lookig on could perceive no sign of a untain in the bare rock, any more han they could perceive the beautiful lady or hear the voice. But ernadette bent down and began o scratch the earth, and the little avity her hands hollowed out suddenly filled with water, and presntly a fountain was gushing. And hat took place, according to the acred tradition, on the 11th day of ebruary in the year 1858. And he spring thus miraculously disovered has been flowing ever nce.

It was only after exhaustive inuiry, which lasted four years, that he story was accepted and the iraculous character of the spring onfirmed by the church.

"We judge," wrote the Bishop f Tarbes, "that Mary, the Imaculate Mother of God, did eally appear to Bernadette on eb. 11, 1858, and on certain subequent days, 18 times in all, in he Grotto of Masabielle; that his appearance bears every mark f truth, and that the belief of he faithful is well grounded."

But the church itself counsels ainst excessive credulity. Every tient who claims to have been ealed is subjected to a medical exmination to ascertain whether the ure has been complete or whether lief has been only partial and mporary. Doctors from many nds carry on the work, and all e welcome to take part, no matr what their nationality or their ligion may be. All are welcomed the medical bureau and invited participate in the examination of ses reputed to represent miracuus cures.

That medical bureau, established year ago, as served to put ourdes on a different footin from y other spot where reputed fa th aling occurs. The case sheets or cord reveal the scientific concluons reached by the examining ysicians. Protestant doctors and ctors without any religion, as ell as Catholic physicians, have rtified to cures that could arcely have resulted from natural uses. On the average, ght or n cases are officially recognized ery year as cures of a supernatal character for which there is accounting in material medicine.

An air of deep religious devotion ermeates the scene, one of the ost affecting this writer has ever tnessed. There is excitement indescribable as the multitude intones chant, interrupted from time to me by the exhortation of the riest to kneel and kiss the earth. s the chant wells up, the suffering pilgrims are brought to bathe the healing waters, while the ayers sound ever louder and uder, and bathers cry out in nes that wring the heart: "I am ured!" . . . "I can walk!" . . . "I n see!"

There is something wonderfully cred about Lourdes, and someing mightily convincing. It is a ace for the poor, for the unforinate, for the victims of life. It the least commercial of places. ollars, pounds sterling and francs e brought down to dimes, shilngs and centimes. There is nothg for sale, but everything to be iven.

And there is probably in all the orld no greater emotional thrill be experienced than to hear 0,000 pilgrims in solemn procession intoning a triumphant Magnificat, marching with shining eyes as they chant "Ave Maria! Ave Maria!"

A Bad Apple in Eden

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

How about that exhausted Republican who masqueraded as a delightfully young Democrat in Kansas City?

He claimed to be an Alaskan Jeffersonian. When he objected to canned speeches they put the finger on him.

First, no juvenile Jacksonite objects to tinned monologues. Second, he didn't wear enough badges. Third, how could a minor Democrat afford all that carfare from home to Kansas City?

The interloper almost hamburgered the political kindergarden. Until one of Postmaster Farley's bright-eyed boys placed the heavy hand on his shoulder and denounced him as a former G. O. P. congressional candidate from New York trying to work his way through college.

The man was a spy trying to find out how the majority lives. He was dismissed with a reprimand. We will not print his name because he is repentant and will wait until 1936 to try and make a new start in life.

BIDS AND PROPOSALS

CITY OF BOSTON TRANSIT DEPARTMENT

Proposals for Removing Buildings on Merrimac Street, Boston Traffic Tunnel

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for removing buildings on Merrimac Street, Boston Traffic Tunnel. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of fifteen thousand dollars. Proposals must be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Removing Buildings on Merrimac Street, Boston Traffic Tunnel," and delivered to the Department, or to its secretary, before 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, September 19, 1933, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of five thousand (5,000) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. This check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the Department of the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contract for signature. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The sealed duplicate, without check, is to be deposited by the bidder with the City Auditor, Room 20, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening the proposals. Plans, proposals, specifications and forms of contract may be obtained at this office on or after Tuesday, September 5, 1933. A deposit of $5 in cash or by certified check will be required for a set of plans and two sets of specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

By order of the [illegible] of Boston Transit Department.

EDWARD F. CONDON, Secretary.

TOLD SHE HAD CANCER

Mrs. F. E. Dyan, Brattleboro, Vt., says: "I was told by two Boston Specialists that I had a cancer and advised to go to the hospital and be treated with Radium. I was frightened and when I read of Dr. Walsh I had him treat me. That was three years ago, and I have had no troubles since. When Dr. Walsh treated me I lived on Carden St., Brighton. Since then I moved to Brattleboro, Vt. I came to visit in Boston Aug. 19, and thought my case if published would help others who suffer as I did. That is my reason for this testimonial."

Signed Mrs. F. E. Dyan.

DIVORCE CHARGE

WASHINGTON—Lifted eyebrows, sly winks and titters behind fans are slowly, but surely, cutting the ground from under the feet of Mrs. Horace Frisby in her contemplated divorce action against the resourceful congressman. Capital society has suddenly come out unashamed in sympathy for Mr. Frisby, following his whirlwind campaign to show up his wife's never-to-be-forgotten past. Mr. Frisby, a master of propaganda, accomplished his purpose by circulating postcards of Mrs. Frisby taken in the days before he led her to the altar. "Study the photo," is Frisby's frank appeal. "It speaks for itself, and in no uncertain terms reveals Mrs. Frisby when she posed unashamed, like a rat in a trap, as a Greenwich Village artist's model. Who can blame me for refusing to pay alimony to a Greenwich Village dreg? Let him who dares speak up or forever hold his tongue."

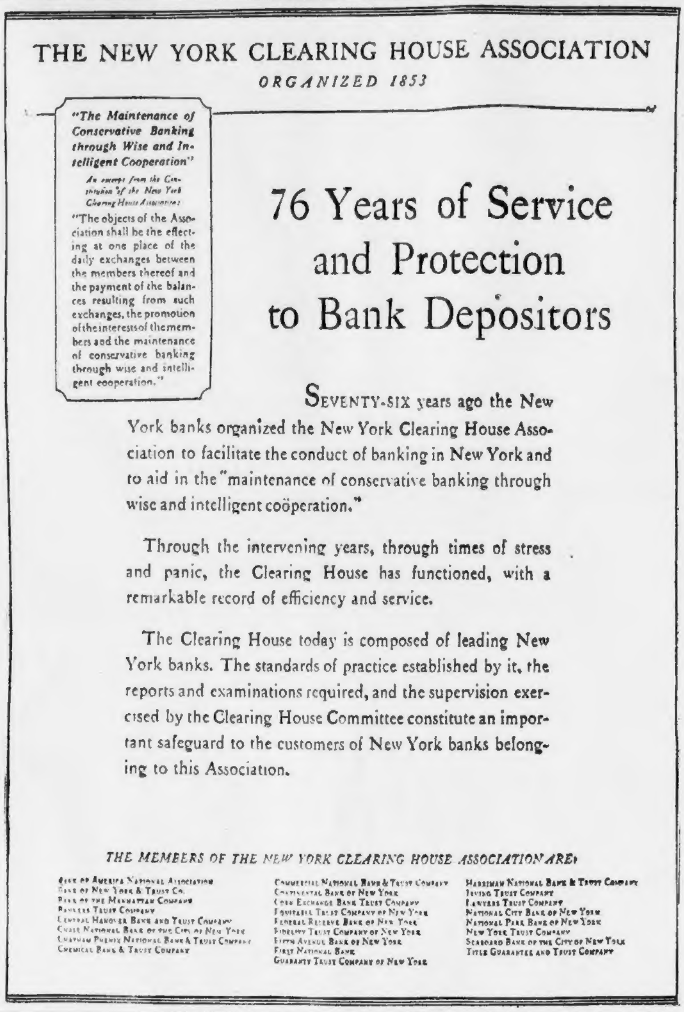
Is the New York Clearing House Association Lost to Honor?



THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION

ORGANIZED 1853

"The Maintenance of Conservative Banking through Wise and Intelligent Cooperation"

An excerpt from the Constitution of the New York Clearing House Association:

"The objects of the Association shall be the effecting at one place of the daily exchanges between the members thereof and the payment of the balances resulting from such exchanges, the promotion of the interests of the members and the maintenance of conservative banking through wise and intelligent cooperation."

76 Years of Service and Protection
to Bank Depositors

SEVENTY-SIX years ago the New York banks organized the New York Clearing House Association to facilitate the conduct of banking in New York and to aid in the "maintenance of conservative banking through wise and intelligent coöperation."

Through the intervening years, through times of stress and panic, the Clearing House has functioned, with a remarkable record of efficiency and service.

The Clearing House today is composed of leading New York banks. The standards of practice established by it, the reports and examinations required, and the supervision exercised by the Clearing House Committee constitute an important safeguard to the customers of New York banks belonging to this Association.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION ARE:

Bank of America National Association
Bank of New York & Trust Co.
Bank of the Manhattan Company
Bankers Trust Company
Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company
Chase National Bank of the City of New York
Chatham Phenix National Bank & Trust Company
Chemical Bank & Trust Company
Commercial National Bank & Trust Company
Continental Bank of New York
Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company
Equitable Trust Company of New York
Federal Reserve Bank of New York
Fidelity Trust Company of New York
Fifth Avenue Bank of New York
First National Bank
Guaranty Trust Company of New York
Harriman National Bank & Trust Company
Irving Trust Company
Lawyers Trust Company
National City Bank of New York
National Park Bank of New York
New York Trust Company
Seaboard Bank of the City of New York
Title Guarantee and Trust Company

Photostatic facsimile of an advertisement of the New York Clearing House Association, published in New York City, emphasizing the long period of years during which the association aided in the "maintenance of conservative banking through wise and intelligent co-operation."

The Harriman National Bank & Trust Company was a member of the association when the advertisement appeared and continued as a member until the bank was closed.

Note that the advertisement said "the standards of practice . . . and the supervision exercised by the Clearing House Committee constitute an important safeguard to the customers of New York banks belonging to this association."

RETURNING to the Harriman Bank affair, we continue the reproduction of the New York Clearing House Association's advertisements.

They are all of the same tenor. All bear the names of the twenty-one banks and trust companies, the foremost in New York, which comprise the Clearing House Association.

Like those we have previously published, the one we reproduce today calls attention to the constant supervision exercised by the Association over its member banks, its frequent and recurring examinations, the protection afforded depositors by the solidarity and mutual support of the Association and its member banks.

Our previous discussions of this case have been tempered by the fact that when the question first arose as to whether the Clearing House would make good or renege, nineteen of its twenty-one member banks were in favor of redeeming its representations to the public and manfully going through with the Association's moral, if not also legal, commitments to the Harriman depositors.

Since then the number of Clearing House members trying to wriggle out of their obligation has varied, but a strong numerical majority is reported as still standing for the honorable line of action.

This cleavage in the Clearing House membership—reports reach us of acrid dissension—is the only fact which reflects credit upon the Clearing House in this entire incident.

* * *

A flagrant wrong has been perpetrated upon thousands of deceived and innocent depositors in the Harriman National Bank.

The Clearing House Association has involved itself in a flaming duplicity before the public, and at a time when every thoughtful man is hoping that the banks of the country can somehow regain their lost hold upon public confidence.

It is a thousand pities that wrong-headedness should, at so critical a time, dominate such an institution as the New York Clearing House Association. Perhaps the self-destructive and uncomprehending perverseness of the Clearing House minority is due to bad legal advice—narrow, unimaginative, servile advice which seeks a client's favor by soothing his weaknesses, and supporting his selfish and mistaken impulses.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE ARE DAMNING.

They will not down. The sooner the Clearing House faces them the better it will be for the Clearing House and every bank in the country, including directors, stockholders and depositors.

* * *

THE conditions in the Harriman National Bank must have been known to the Clearing House shortly after April 25, 1932. It was on that date, according to the letter written by C. C. Francis, National Bank Examiner, to the United States District Attorney in New York that "the New York Clearing House examiners began their examination" of the Harriman Bank.

From July 12, 1932, until the bank closed it was known to be an INSOLVENT BANK, but still inviting and receiving deposits from the public. Throughout this period, it was under the charge and management of the New York Clearing House Association whose committee had insisted upon replacing J. W. Harriman, as President of the bank, by H. E. Cooper, its designee.

Mr. Cooper's testimony before the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee is highly illuminating as to the responsibility assumed by the Clearing House. He was being examined by Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate. The following questions and Mr. Cooper's replies make sickening reading for the friends of the Clearing House:

By SENATOR ASHURST—"Did you know of the so-called Harriman peculations or the irregularities or violations of the law?"

MR. COOPER—"I knew of them when I came into office; shortly thereafter."

SENATOR ASHURST—"You say that you knew of the alleged peculations soon after you came into office, and when you say you came into office, you mean President of the bank, do you."

MR. COOPER—"Yes, that is right. I think I was shown, just before I accepted the Presidency, A LETTER FROM THE CLEARING HOUSE EXAMINERS, the CHAIRMAN OF THE CLEARING HOUSE COMMITTEE, in which he spoke of these misapplications of funds."

SENATOR ASHURST — "During the months of December, 1932, and January and February, 1933, did you become aware of the perilous condition of that bank?"

MR. COOPER—"Yes."

SENATOR ASHURST—"DID YOU TAKE ANY STEPS TOWARD NOTIFYING ANY OF YOUR DEPOSITORS or any of the stockholders of the situation?"

MR. COOPER—"NO; because WE WERE GOING ON THE THEORY WE HAD THE FULL PLEDGE OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION BEHIND US and we were PLEDGING OUR BANK WAS NOT INSOLVENT. THAT MADE THE BANK GOOD."

Mr. Cooper, replying to a further question, said:

"YOU MUST NOT FORGET THAT WE HAD THAT PLEDGE OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE, that THEY WOULD SEE THAT BANK THROUGH, which MADE IT A PERFECTLY SOLVENT BANK."

* * *

BUT it was NOT a solvent bank! The pledge of the Clearing House turned out to be nothing.

It was an insolvent bank, known by the Clearing House to be such—suffered to continue as a MEMBER bank OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION—and kept open for the RECEIPT OF DEPOSITS FOR NEARLY A YEAR!

This is a very grave offense in the eyes of the law, which holds that the mere acceptance of deposits by a bank is a representation of solvency. The taking of deposits when a bank is insolvent is characterized by the courts as "a gross and outrageous fraud." The penalties are heavy, and they attach not only to the bank's officers but to everyone who aids and abets the fraud. By permitting it or conniving at it, one becomes an accessory.

* * *

MORTIFYING in the extreme, it must be—at least to some members of the New York Clearing House Association — to find that questions of criminal as well as civil liability force themselves upon consideration in any review of the Association's conduct with relation to the Harriman Bank.

A long, steep fall for an institution which has held itself out to the public as an exemplar of honorable methods in business, and an alert guardian of the very principles of good faith as it applies to the policies and the dealings of a bank!

O. O. McIntyre -:- Interviewing Stage Folk -:- New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—I was piloted through the children's ward of a large hospital today. Suddenly to quit the hubub of a city street to this silent room of endless cots is the most depressing of metropolitan contrasts. We came to see a little girl who at the moment was building blocks on her chest.

She was fair with spun-gold hair and large inquisitive brown eyes. Her arms shot eagerly around the nurse's neck and inquired: "When may I try to walk?" the nurse replied: "Soon, dear, I hope!" But as we walked away she said in faint finality: "She will never walk!"

On many pillows, with picture books flung aside, heads were buried in sleep. Tiny fists clutched as though resentful of unfair conflict. Zig-zaggy charts hung to every bed-post. Others sat up with dolls, indicating recovery by trying to cover themselves as we approached.

Screened off from the rest was a flash of wizened faces and scrawny arms. Dull eyes seemed cognizant of nothing. None made sounds but they twisted in slow snake like torsions, a sort of boneless writhing. They call it "waisting disease." The sins of fathers and mothers!

In running through a pictorial film magazine just now it struck me that Edna May Oliver needs only a mannish style of dress and hair cut, plus a monocle, to become the uncanny likeness of George Arliss.

* * *

George Arliss was the vanguard leader of the invasion of British actors to the American stage. He essayed a foppish silly-ass dido with Mrs. Fiske in a play if memory serves, called "The New York Idea." I remember interviewing him at breakfast at a hotel in Dayton, O. I had never seen a monocle before and Arliss to me was the replica of Punch's notion of a Piccadilly toff. It was noontime and he asked me if I would't have a bite. When I shook my head, he inquired: "You never take tiffin?" Not until I romped back to the office dictionary had I the vaguest idea what he meant. But I was so flustered I replied "No mam."

In Dayton, too, I interviewed Olga Nethersole who perspired the hill-billies panting through "Sapho" at $2 top. With two other reporters—only their first names, Bert and Chester, cling to memory—I waited in the salon of her suite. She came out of a fresh water shower in lacy negligee and wearing ostrich plumed mules. As natural as breathing she reached for a cigarette, paused, and I was conscious she awaited a light. So I scratched one of those big buck matches on the seat of my trousers, and so long as I live I'll never forget the way my hand pitched in extending it to her. I often thought that the beginning of a nervous breakdown ten years later.

Incidentally, how trite is the opening sentence on the application an actor must sign in an effort to join Equity. It reads: "I hereby solemnly affirm that I am at present obtaining or endeavoring to obtain a living from the Theatrical Profession."

Modern parents' close-knit confidence with children is amazing to those of us reared in the clinch of stern discipline. I remember when Arthur Somers Roche's two boys were in short pants and their governess forbade candy except on state occasions. Yet Roche was chuckling about how the lads confessed they were out-witting her daily by having candy charged to him at the corner drug store. He maneuvered every way possible to keep them from being caught. But when they were, he offered no interference with punishment. They were on their own!

There is something wincing about the sudden tumble in midtown cut rate drug store windows of some best selling novel of a few months before. It is as though the books had been having a race down the hill of reduction and collapsed together in a heap. To me nothing is so forlorn as an abandoned best seller.

I remember stumbling across a tattered tome of mine in a lower Madison ave. second hand shop. It was at lowest scale—marked 10 cents. Further to accent its ignomy, some donor had inscribed on a fly leaf to a friend: "You may not like this but it will make dandy shaving paper."
